Kennedy Has Good Lead

Doubtful States Biggest Factor

WASHINGTON (AP) — the eve of the election, Democrat John F. Kennedy evidently has opened a healthy electoral vote lead over Republican Richard M. Nixon and appears within striking distance of winning the presidency.

But in gauging the election battle tides, the Associated Press, found that many states —several of the bigger ones among them—remain in doubt. A number of them are believed inclining to Sen. Kennedy, a couple to Vice President Nixon.

Nixon could overtake and beat Kennedy by capturing a significant segment of the doubtful states and by wresting some of the states where Kennedy's lead is considered slight. Of course, Nixon would have to keep his own group intact. In various states, the undecided—or silent—vote is believed big enough to tip the balance.

The survey — encompassing the judgments of AP political observers, newspaper analysts, and party leaders, as well as certain poll findings—turns up this breakdown:

Kennedy rated out front in 15 states with 197 electoral votes—72 short of the 269 minimum needed to win. In all, there are 537 electoral votes.

Nixon credited with setting the pace in 17 states totaling 112 electoral votes, 85 behind Kennedy and 157 short of the minimum needed for election on Tuesday.

In the toss-up class 18 states accounting for 228 electoral votes—more than either man had to his credit.

This represented a substantial pickup for Kennedy over an AP survey three weeks ago when Nixon was given a lead in 19 states with 141 electoral votes, Kennedy in 14 states with 129 electoral votes, and 17 states with 267 votes were listed as doubtful.

This final pre-election survey indicates these states may be listed under Kennedy's name, with his margin ranging from substantial to tiny:

Alaska (3), Alabama (11), Arkansas (8), California, Connecticut (8), Georgia (12), Louisiana (10), Maryland (9), Massachusetts (16), Nevada (3), New Jersey (16), New York, Rhode Island (4), West Virginia (8), and Wisconsin (12).

In Alabama and Georgia—and in doubtful Mississippi as well—a Democratic popular vote victory would not necessarily assure Kennedy of all the electoral votes involved. And in Louisiana there is a rival slate of electors.

Only five of the 11 electors on the Democratic ticket in Alabama are committed to the Massachusetts senator. The other six are not pledged to anyone.

All 12 of Georgia's Democratic electors are unpledged, but a majority of them have announced their support of Kennedy.

Louisiana has a states rights slate bidding for the state's 10 electoral votes. They are not pledged to anyone.

Two slates of Democratic electors are competing for Mississippi's 8 electoral votes. One slate is pledged to Kennedy, the other is unpledged.

These may be placed under Nixon's name, also by varying degrees:

Delaware (3), Florida (1), Idaho (4), Iowa (10), Indiana (13), Kansas (8), Maine (5), North Dakota (4), New Hampshire (4), Nebraska (6), Oklahoma (8), Oregon (6), South Carolina (8), South Dakota (4), Utah, Virginia (12), and Vermont (3).

The doubtful states viewed as possibly leaning to Kennedy — Mississippi (8), Minnesota (11), Missouri, North Carolina, Ohio, Tennessee (11).

Tossup states possibly inclining to Nixon—Kentucky and Wyoming.

The other uncertain states — Arizona (4), Colorado (6), Hawaii, Illinois, Michigan (20), Montana (4), New Mexico (4) Pennsylvania (32), Texas (24), and Washington (9).

Clark Gable, 59 Suffers Attack

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clark Gable, 59, the King of the movies, suffered a heart attack Sunday, his doctor reported.

After Gable was taken to Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital and examined, Dr. Fred Cerrini described the attack as a coronary thrombosis, saying: "His condition is good and he is resting comfortably."

The physician added: "Fortunately I ordered Mr. Gable under oxygen as soon as I was told of his condition and sent him to the hospital."

Cardiographic tests were made at the hospital.

Gable's wife Kay went with him. She is expecting a baby in March which will be the first child for Gable.

"He is resting comfortably and they have given him a lot of medicine," said Mrs. Gable. "The doctors are leaving and will return later tonight."

She said he will be confined to the hospital for some time.

Also at the hospital was Howard Strickling, director of publicity at MGM and long-time friend of Gable. He said he and Gable had planned to look at a horse Sunday but the actor telephoned Saturday saying: "I feel too lousy to look at horses."

Mrs. Gable called Strickling Sunday morning and told him her husband was feeling worse. Strickling advised her to call a doctor immediately.

As far as is known Gable had no previous history of a heart condition. Only Friday he was working on a movie, appearing in a scene with Marilyn Monroe for "The Misfits."

At that time all he could talk about was his impending fatherhood.

"This is a dividend that has come to me late in life," he told a reporter. "When I wind up this picture I'm taking off until after the baby is born in March. I want to be there and I want to be there a good many months afterward.

"I've made 90 pictures in my time and I want to be with the baby."

Kennedy Outlines Aid For Students

EN ROUTE WITH KENNEDY AP — Sen. John F. Kennedy, campaigning all day long before spectacular Sunday crowds, promised Sunday to work, if elected president, until a college education is available to every American with the talent to pursue it.

The Democratic nominee made this pledge in his final bid for New York's 45 electoral votes with another foray into normally Republican Suffolk County.

He spoke there before a wildly screaming, cheering crowd that overflowed the Commack, Long Island, Arena and spread out all around the meeting place outside.

Kennedy went into Suffolk County after previous speeches, starting after midnight, before large and enthusiastic turnouts in New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury and other Connecticut cities. He chose the Long Island arena for a prepared address proposing a system of higher education measuring up to every American's capacity rather than to his race or means.

Scholarships

He proposed federal scholarships for a limited number of needy and qualified students — perhaps 15 to 25,000 initially.

"Such a federal scholarship program — paying a substantial portion of expenses," the candidate said, "would enable thousands of bright young Americans who otherwise could not afford to do so to pursue their educations full time."

Kennedy also proposed increased federal loans to needy students under the National Defense Education Act as well as through a new student loan insurance program. At the same time he proposed "an adequate college housing program" to enable schools to keep pace with increasing enrollments, and for construction of technical and medical schools.

He was almost mobbed by well-wishers as he made his way to the arena. Hundreds surged against his car in an effort to shake his hand or touch him. Police estimated the crowd at 9,000.

Kennedy in his arena speech said it was vital for him to carry New York State with its big chunk of electoral votes if he is to win the election.

Expresses Thanks

In a brief speech on his arrival at MacArthur Airport, he expressed thanks to the crowd for waiting patiently in the cold for his arrival. At that point he told his listeners that "my wife came from this county," and added: "I hope Suffolk County — which is not noted for Democratic strength —will go Democratic on Tuesday."

Kennedy told a crowd in New Haven, estimated from 20,000 to 45,000, that recently published reports of a sharp increase in unemployment helped prove the error of his presidential rival's arguments.

He said reports of U. S. Information Agency polls showing a decline in American prestige and the prospect that automobile manufacturers will have a million unsold cars on hand by the middle of next month give further support for his contention the Democrats will have to take over to start America moving.

Over and over again he taunted his Republican presidential opponent, Richard M. Nixon, for what Kennedy said was an effort to convince the American people "the country never had it so good and its prestige was never higher."

Kennedy contended that "unless we make a greater effort there will be a military gap." He also said that steps must be taken to remedy a situation under which "we would have more unemployment now than in any time since 1958."

Actually, Kennedy started his campaigning in Connecticut in the wee small hours. A crowd estimated by the police chief at 26,000 gave Kennedy a wild welcome to Waterbury at 3 a.m.

He began his day by attending Mass at the Immaculate Conception Church in Waterbury where he spent last night.

Everywhere he went he was greeted by large turnouts along the highway.

From New Haven, Kennedy proceeded to Bridgeport where he addressed a crowd in the railroad station estimated by police at from 55,000 to 60,000.

How To Split Ticket

"SPLITTING the ticket" in elections is a growing trend in American politics.

For those desiring to split their ticket, one procedure is as follows:

When told by one of the election board officials that the machine is ready for your vote, step into the booth and move the red handle to the right of the machine. This will close the curtain and unlock the machine to register your voting preferences.

Facing the voter will be the parties, names of the candidates and the offices for which the candidates are running.

Above each candidate of your choice is a small lever. Move the small lever downward. When this is done a small "x" will be seen. This is the candidate the vote will be cast for. Repeat this procedure for each office.

One other way to "split the ticket" is to pull the party lever after closing the curtain, then push up the levers of the candidates for whom you do not wish to vote, and pull down the levers on the corresponding columns for the candidates for whom you wish to cast a ballot.

The voter is now ready to register the vote. This is done by moving the red handle to the left.

With this action the vote is registered and the curtain will open allowing the voter to leave.

This is one of several methods used to "split the ticket."

Nixon Proposes Good-Will Tour

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon set forth Sunday night a plan for President Eisenhower to join after he leaves office with former Presidents Harry S. Truman and Herbert C. Hoover on a goodwill visit to the Iron Curtain satellite nations of Europe.

In a coast-to-coast television address as he started a final whirlwind drive for election to the presidency, Nixon said he already has talked this over with Eisenhower "and he assures me that he is more than ready to carry the torch of freedom on such a journey into the states of Eastern Europe."

Nixon, Republican candidate for the White House, said further that Eisenhower had suggested, "and I fully agree," that the two other living ex-presidents, Mr. Herbert Hoover and Mr. Harry Truman, be invited to join in carrying the message of peace and friendship to the comomn peoples of the Communist states."

In Washington, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said he would have no comment on Nixon's proposal.

Most of Nixon's 30 minute address — he called it "the most important half hour of the campaign" — dealt with the world situation. However, in an apparent allusion to the controversy in some areas over the Roman Catholicism of his Democratic rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy, the vice president said: "There is no legitimate religious issue in this campaign. Sen. Kennedy and I differ as far as our faiths are concerned, but we both have faith in God...you should vote for neither me nor him on the basis of religion."

Shortly before taking off for Alaska, Nixon also proposed that representatives of the Communist satellite countries in Eastern Europe be invited to visit the United States next year, "and travel here as they see fit under official auspices."

Nixon said this would give such representatives the same opportunity to see America which Soviet Premier Khrushchev had when he first came to the United States last year.

Nixon went before television cameras to record his nationwide broadcast for use later in the evening after he had departed for Anchorage, Alaska, 50th state on the campaign trail which he hopes will lead to the White House.

Before taking off, Nixon—in a statement—accused his Democratic rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy, of proposing to undermine the Selective Service military draft with a program "obviously concocted for campaign purposes."

In the prepared text for his TV address, Nixon said regarding his Eisenhower - Truman - Hoover proposal:

States Proposed

"Representing as they do virtually all the American people, regardless of their political affiliation, these three men who have held the most important elective office in the free world are uniquely qualified to carry our message of good will and state the case for peace and freedom behind the Iron Curtain.

"If they are willing, I would extend my warmest invitation to them to join President Eisenhower in this crusade.

"I say to the Communist leaders, if you believe in your system —if you believe that our grandchildren will choose your way—you can have no objection to allowing your grandchildren to look upon and hear the words of these American statesmen."

Nixon recently announced that if elected he personally would visit such European Iron Curtain countries. So far, however, there have been no indications whether an official invitation would be forthcoming from such nations.

Claiming he has won his home state, vote-rich California, Nixon started a whirlwind drive to the election finish line with a new blast at Kennedy.

The charge was aimed at Kennedy's plan under which young Americans could serve in a "peace corps" abroad with U. S. technical missions as an alternative to military duty under the draft.

"Here is another example," Nixon said in a statement, "of Mr. Kennedy's fast and flashy technique of proposing a program that looks good on the surface but which is inherently dangerous. The presidency is no place for a man who acts first and thinks later."

Mother Saves Child From Den Of Snakes

SPARTANBURG, S. C. (AP)—A mother jumped into a den of poisonous copperhead snakes to save her 2-year-old child. Neither the mother nor the baby boy was hurt.

There were holes which appeared to be fang marks in the child's rubber pants, but he was examined at a hospital and no puncture was found in his skin.

The incident occurred Thursday in the community of Startex near here.

The child, Donald Williams, was playing in his back yard and fell into an abandoned, 6-foot-deep septic tank which had been covered by planks. He fell into water at one end of the hole and three copperhead snakes were on some boards at the other end.

Record Turnout Of Voters Is Seen In State

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvanians are expected to go to the polls in record numbers Tuesday with 32 possibly decisive presidential electoral votes at stake.

One of the most intensive political campaigns in Pennsylvania history will be settled during the 13 crucial hours the polls are open —from 7 a. m. to 8 p. m., EST.

The importance of this state's bloc of electoral votes was underscored by the total of 28 days the four national candidates spent in active campaigning to carry pivotal Pennsylvania.

President Eisenhower made two appearances in the state in behalf of Republican presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon and vice presidential candidate Henry Cabot Lodge.

Sen. John F. Kennedy, Nixon's Democratic opponent, and Lyndon B. Johnson, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, also were frequent visitors to the Commonwealth. Former President Harry Truman made one visit in behalf of the Democratic candidates.

Record To Post Election Returns

RETURNS from the General Election will be posted on a bulletin board in front of The Daily Record building tomorrow night.

The results will be made known as quickly as they are received in the newsroom from the County Election Board.

First returns are expected about a half hour after the close of the polls at 8 p.m.

The complete election returns will appear in the election table to be published in Wednesday's Daily Record, along with detailed stories from local, state and national contests.

The driveway leading to the newspaper building will be barricaded to vehicular traffic for the safety of the spectators. The public is invited to park in one of the Daily Record's parking lots or on nearby streets while watching the returns being posted.

The public is also reminded that the election polls will open at 7 a.m. Tuesday and remain open until 8 p.m.

Vote Early, Avoid Rush

A reminder to all voters is that the polls will remain open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. tomorrow.

Those registered to cast their votes in this important presidential election are also urged to vote early in the day. This will avoid the possibility of congestion and inconvenience later in the day.

N.Y. Bomb Blast Kills 1, Injures 13

NEW YORK (AP)—A powerful dynamite explosion killed one person, injured 13 others and mangled a subway car at an underground station in the heart of Harlem Sunday night.

The blast—apparently not the work of New York's crazed "Sunday Bomber," who has been blamed for four other explosions since Oct. 2—wrecked a car of the express "A train to Harlem" of jazz music fame.

The victim and most of the injured were not immediately identified. The injured were rushed to three different hospitals.

The explosion left the subway car of the train—halted at the time beneath 125th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue—a twisted mass of smoke and blood. Until help arrived, the injured helped each other, improvising bandages and tourniquets.

Mysterious homemade bombs have exploded four times near famous places during the past 35 days. Three occurred on Sundays and the other on Columbus Day.

But Police Commissioner Stephen P. Kennedy said this latest blast apparently resulted from dynamite. He said he doubted that the "Sunday Bomber" was responsible.

The explosion was the first to kill anyone. Some of those during October caused injuries, however.

George Metesky, New York's "Mad Bomber" of the 1940s and 1950s who was captured in 1957, never killed anyone with any of his many bombs.

About 30 passengers were in the car.

Patrolman Rupert Cobb said he heard the explosion and leaped downstairs to the lower of the station's two levels.

"Smoke was pouring from the car. The platform was foggy with smoke. I got into the car and heard a woman screaming faintly "Please help me. Please help me," he said.

"Her legs had been blown off. She was sitting on one of the seats and then she fell over. She died within minutes."

Methodists Exceed Goal In Appeal

STROUDSBURG area churches have reached or exceeded their goals in the $3,300,000 Forward Fund for Christ appeal being conducted by the Philadelphia Methodist Conference.

This was announced yesterday by Rev. Dr. Alexander K. Smith, general co-chairman, following initial reports in the appeal among approximately 140,000 members in 357 churches.

Rev. G. H. Miller, pastor of the Tannersville Charge, reported 129 percent pledged from the Tannersville, Reeders and Wesley Churches. Lay chairmen are John Rinker and Mrs. B. H. Granacher at the Tannersville Church; Carl Price and Mrs. Warren Smith at Reeders Church, and James N. Canfield Jr., and Mrs. James N. Canfield Sr., at the Wesley Church. A total of $9785 was pledged at the first report, representing 129 percent of the suggested goal.

The Stroudsburg Church pledged $20,679 or 100 percent of its goal. Rev. R. C. Stimson is pastor and Howard Chester is men's chairman of the appeal.

A total of $27,688 was pledged from the East Stroudsburg Church. This also represented 100 percent of its goal. Rev. Harold C. Eaton is pastor.

These area churches were among 32 to reach or exceed their goals at the end of the first report period.

Postmasters Seek Unity

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pennsylvania branch of the National League of Postmasters announced Friday that the next president is being asked to help set up a better relationship with postal employes.

The Pennsylvanians, in their monthly publication now in the mails, call attention to a resolution adopted Oct. 22 at Gettysburg.

The resolution calls on the next president to ask his postmaster general to meet with representatives of the various postal groups quarterly "to discuss mutual problems of the postal service."

Copies of the resolution are being sent both presidential nominees, a spokesman for the group said.

Urges Gambling Be Legalized

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The October grand jury has recommended that gambling be legalized in Pennsylvania.

The jury, in its report to Judge Bernard J. Kelley at the end of last week, said the state should supervise and regulate gambling and that profits should go to health, welfare and educational agencies.

The jury said also it was shocked to hear that a political leader in the community offered to bet $25,000 on the outcome of the election.

Ward Bond, Actor, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A saddened duo is all that remained Sunday of one of the most successful triumvirates in movie history—Director John Ford, John Wayne and Ward Bond. Bond died Saturday.

Ford was mentor and Wayne and Bond starred in some of the screen's all-time classic Westerns. Wayne combined leading man good looks with his rugged frame and thus overshadowed Bond until TV's "Wagon Train" made him a star.

But unlike the usual run of actors, the success of Wayne in the movies never affected the friendship of the two buddies who first met as tackles on the Southern California football teams of the late Howard Jones.

County Set For Election Tomorrow

THE political scene is set for the last big move. While political candidates toured the counties and presidential candidates covered record-breaking trips, the citizens sat and listened.

Now the candidates will sit back as the citizenry goes out to express its honored obligation—that is, to vote.

The county's registration has reached a record high for the general election.

The Democratic party has 11,720 registered to vote. The Republican party has 8,054. The combined registration of other parties is 270, making a total of 20,044.

The big issue locally in the political circles is the Van D. Yetter, Jr. (D), and Hanford L. Cleveland (R), battle for the state representative role.

Rival Candidates

Yetter, a Democrat is the incumbent who hails from Marshalls Creek. He is a farm equipment and house trailer dealer. Yetter has been the party's biennial candidate for the state House since 1952. He was elected in 1954, lost to his rival in 1956, but was victorious again in 1958. He is seeking re-election.

Cleveland, who served as state representative for two years in 1956, is a resident of Craigs Meadow. He operates a plumbing business in East Stroudsburg. The Republican candidate won by a margin of 210 votes when he defeated the Democratic rival in 1956.

The two Smithfield Township neighbors provide the only local contest on the ballots, aside from the three-county congressional contest.

Nationally, the Monroe County voters will have to decide on U.S.'s next president. The 20,044 registered voters must make a choice between the Democratic slate of John F. Kennedy, for president and Lyndon B. Johnson, for vice president; or the Republican nominees of Richard M. Nixon, for the presidency, and his running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, as vice president.

Walter-Horn Race

In addition the county must help to decide on the 15th District Representative to Congress. The district includes the counties of Carbon, Monroe, and Northampton.

Incumbent U.S. Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Easton, is seeking reelection against his Republican, Woodrow A. Horn, of Palmer Township, near Easton.

Walter has held the office for the past 28 years and is seeking his 15th term as local representative to U.S. House.

In the last presidential election, Walter won by 1,192 votes. In 1958 he outpolled all other candidates on the ballot receiving 8,627 votes to 5,413 for his opponent.

These three battles figure to cause the most concern for the voters of Monroe County. However, statewide election offices will also have to be decided.

The State Treasurer contest pits Democratic Grace M. Sloan against Republican rival, Charles C. Smith. The Auditor General position has Robert F. Kent, Republican and Thomas Z. Minehart, Democratic, vieing for the state position.

Judgeship post in the state finds Republican incumbent Blair F. Gunther matched against Democratic rival Gerald F. Flood. Flood is from Philadelphia. Gunther is from Fox Chapel.

DEMOLISHED—Car driven by Norman J. Holdorff, 25, of Shawnee, jumped a curb, sideswiped a tree and crashed into Trader's Feed Store as he traveled east across the inter-borough bridge into East Stroudsburg. He was pinned in the wreckage for 20 minutes before police could free him to be taken to General Hospital for treatment of lacerations of the face and possible fractures of the skull and pelvis.

Driver Seriously Hurt When Auto Crashed Into Building

NORMAN J. Holdroff, 25, of Box 25, Shawnee-on-Delaware, was taken to the Monroe County General Hospital after being removed from his car, where he was pinned in the wreckage, after crashing into the wall of Trader's Feed Store in East Stroudsburg yesterday at 4:31 a.m.

Holdroff's left leg was pinned in the wreckage by the front seat of his car. Police from East Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg worked 20 minutes before they were able to free the leg.

He was taken to the hospital with one tooth knocked out, lacerations of the face and possible fractures of the skull and pelvis.

In a late report from the hospital last night he was reported in "fair condition."

Patrolmen Harry Lanahan and Harold Larison, East Stroudsburg police, said that Holdroff was traveling east across the inter-borough bridge at the time of the accident.

"Holdroff's car struck the island as he entered East Stroudsburg then hit the curb, blowing three tires, jumped the curb and continued east sideswipping a tree and finally coming to a stop after crashing into the Trader's Feed Store," Larison said.

Lanahan added, "The car hit the building with such force that the bales of hay stored next to the wall were knocked 30 feet across the building. The hole knocked in the building was about three feet wide."

The two East Stroudsburg patrolmen realized they needed help fast to remove Holdroff from the twisted wreckage. They called Stroudsburg police via the inter-borough radio control center and were given a helping hand.

Holdroff will be arrested on a chage of reckless driving, the investigating officers said.

The car is a total loss.

Woman Hurt In Accident On Rte. 611

ONE WOMAN was injured slightly in a two-car accident Saturday at 11:40 p.m. at the intersection of Bridge St. and Route 611.

Lester Rice, assistant chief of Stroud Township police, identified the drivers as Lawrence W. Englehart, of Staten Island, N. Y., and Saylorsburg, and Edward J. Chellis, of Florham Park, N. J.

Injured in the accident was Mrs. Lawrence Englehart who was taken to the Monroe County General Hospital and treated for an injured neck. She was released following treatment.

Englehart told police he was traveling north on Route 611 and was about to make a left turn into Bridge St. Not being sure of the exact location of the turn he stopped.

"I saw the lights of the car coming in back of me and I began to continue north to avoid being hit from the rear." A collision resulted, however.

Rice listed damages to the cars as the left rear fender of the Englehart car and right front fender of the Chellis vehicle. He estimated the damage at $200 to each car.

Boy Suffers Head Injury When Struck

DANIEL PAUL Schaller, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Schaller, of 508 Scott St., Stroudsburg, was taken to the Monroe County General Hospital Saturday at 5:50 p.m. after being struck by a car at the intersection of Ninth and Sarah Sts., Stroudsburg.

In a late report from the hospital his condition was listed as "good." He is being treated for a fracture of the skull.

Operator of the car was Garry Glick, 18, of Bethlehem, who was traveling north on Ninth St., at the time of the accident.

Glick told Stroudsburg police, "I was traveling at a slow rate of speed with my windshield wipers working and my lights on. I could see people in the road and I slowed down more.

Saw Pedestrians

"I saw the two women (Mrs. Schaller, the child's mother, and Mrs. Hogrelius, the child's grandmother) and the child. Each woman ran in a different direction after seeing the car approach," he continued.

Police believe each woman thought the other had the child by the hand.

Following the accident, police said they tested the brakes of the car and found them to be in good condition

At the time of the accident the highway was wet from the rain falling at the time.

Car Crashes As Driver Falls Asleep

MURREL W. Snyder, 25, of 72 N. Courtland St., East Stroudsburg, was taken to the Monroe County General Hospital after the car he was driving ran into a parked car in front of the East Stroudsburg Diner yesterday at 1:10 a.m.

Snyder was released from the hospital after being treated for a bruised forehead.

Patrolmen Harry Lanahan and Harold Larison, East Stroudsburg police investigating the accident said Snyder was traveling south on N. Courtland St. and ran into the rear of the car owned by Robert Mutchler, of 53 Lenox St., East Stroudsburg, that was parked in front of the diner.

Snyder told police, "I fell asleep at the wheel and woke up after the cars came together."

Larison said both cars were declared a total loss by the police.

How Will You Be Counted?

A record outpouring of voters, possibly as many as 65,000,000, will cast ballots tomorrow in the presidential election.

Will YOU be one of them? Or will you be counted among the stay-at-home citizens who prefer to save their energies until AFTER the election to criticize the actions of those elected to power?

The failure of millions of people to exercise their sacred right to vote is one of the reasons for weak candidates often being elected to office.

Americans still enjoy more freedom and more opportunity than any people who have ever lived. But the question is: for how much longer shall we enjoy our freedom and our opportunity?

Most of us seem to act as if the privilege of freedom and opportunity are rights. Even more, most of us take them for granted and act as if they were permanent possession which can never be taken away from us. Nothing could be more wrong.

In the entire history of human life, freedom and opportunity have been unique, hard-fought privileges earned and enjoyed only by a minority who have kept fighting to retain them.

Since the rise of Communism more and more people of the earth have been enslaved: some who once enjoyed freedom, some who only glimpsed it, some to whom freedom was never known. The latter never fight for their own freedom, because they've never known what freedom is.

We who still enjoy freedom must fight for it if we want to keep it.

In all the world America is the strongest bastion of freedom and opportunity that prevents world domination by the Communist slave state. How strong we remain determines whether America and Americans will survive. And right now, it is far later than most of us think.

Keeping freedom and opportunity alive within America is the responsibility of every individual. Right now that responsibility is still comparatively easy to discharge. It means having the courage of one's convictions.

It means standing up and being counted in elections: local, state and national, in union elections, in school elections, in elections in any group or organization. Fortunately, it does not yet mean risking one's life against the treachery of armed Communism.

But it will come to that sooner than you think if we as individuals do not take the trouble to defend freedom and opportunity here at home while we still have it by voting in the coming elections and all that follow.

The Lost Frontier

Whatever became of the New Frontier?

The election is not many days away; yet in all the millions of words, Senator Kennedy has neglected to unveil anything resembling his promised bold new plan for a brave new world.

That might be considered par for an election-year course, and certainly we do not mean to say that Vice President Nixon is offering anything startling novel.

But it is Mr. Kennedy who is attacking what Mr. Nixon must to a considerable extent defend, Mr. Kennedy who insists he will get a supposedly stagnant America off dead-center and charging into the New Frontier, Mr. Kennedy who says this is one of the most fateful elections, at home and abroad, in American history.

So what have we been hearing from Mr. Kenedy? An assortment of political promises proffered to old folks, farmers, communities; the rugged pork barrel, honored only by time; more foreign aid; much more Federal spending in general, along with artificially "cheap" money.

This is the New Frontier? This is how to move America forward? It sounds like nothing so much as the recipe for the Thirties, which has little indeed to do with the problems of the Sixties. In Mr. Eisenhower's phrase, America is asked to go "galloping in reverse" to this thing called a New Frontier.

Not only is this program largely irrelevant; it can do harm to try to apply the nostrums of the Thirties to today's problems in the mistaken belief the situations are the same. In these 30 years the U.S. has had a surfeit of Federal interventions and controls, of reckless Government spending and inflation-breeding Government deficits.

It is not true that this process can go indefinitely without real trouble; signs of trouble are already apparent in the foreign fears about the stability of the dollar if inflationary policies are again to be pursued here.

To impose a new inflation on this nation just as it has been achieving a considerable degree of price stability would be a cruel joke. It would not achieve the higher rate of real economic growth in the name of which it would be undertaken. It would hardly help the U.S. in its foreign relations, the area in which Mr. Kennedy is so particularly interested.

What, in fact, does Mr. Kennedy offer in the foreign field? He has expressed some debatable views on purely tactical matters regarding places like Quemoy and Cuba; also some rather foggy notions about "saving" Africa and India with much more aid.

But nowhere is there anything that could be called a new foreign policy. Essentially the Kennedy policy is a continuation of the Eisenhower policy of resisting Communism. Where it differs it is not a newness so much as oldness; it has overtones of a former time when this country was more disposed to take Communist words at face value.

If it is new, it is in the rather simple assumption that a still more centralized American Government can somehow right all the world's wrongs.

Reliance on Government is, indeed, the key to the New Frontier. More and more Government will solve all problems; the farm problem, for example, will be solved by taking over the farmers. Unfortunately Mr. Kennedy gives little evidence that he recognizes any limit at all to Government enlargement.

George Sokolsky Says . . .

Uncommitted Vote

The decision in 1960 puzzles the pollsters because of the enormous size of the uncommitted voters. Actually, it is unbelievable that so many voters should not, by now, know whether they are going to vote for Nixon or Kennedy. Why, then, do they not declare themselves?

In the first place, many state that they are uncertain because they favor or oppose one or the other for reasons which they themselves reject subconsciously. Among such emotional responses are the religious issue, the beauty contest, the glibness of the debates.

Thus, the uncommitted voter is holding off saying how he is going to vote because he anticipates that he may make a last moment change. Usually, in Presidential elections, there are few last moment changes. James Farley goes by the rule that the voter's decision is generally made just after the conventions. That has not been true this year.

New York State, with its 45 electoral votes, is a big prize in this campaign. Vice President Nixon left the management of that state to Governor Rockefeller and Senator Jacob Javits. It was most unfortunate because neither of them has done anything like an adequate job for Richard Nixon.

Senator Javits knows New York City politics and the very complicated racial and religious complex of this largest city of the nation. Professionals of both parties say that he was sabotaged both as to timing and as to the centers he visited.

If Vice President Nixon carries New York City or New York State, it will be because of the religious issue. Unfortunately this was revived by two factors: One, the insistence of the Puerti Rican Roman Catholic bishops that it is a sin to vote for Governor Luis Munoz Marin because he favors birth control and secular schools.

No matter what happens in Puerto Rico, the attention paid to the activities of these bishops on two Sundays, the failure of the Vatican to denounce them, and the widespread use of heir activities by Republican propaganda helped Nixon.

The other factor is that various organizations of bigots have accelerated their propaganda of hate. Many Catholics who dislike John Kennedy dislike even more the anti-Catholic propaganda. They will vote for Kennedy not because they prefer Kennedy as much as they take umbrage at anti-Catholicism.

Those who are conducting the anti-Catholic propaganda are not Republicans. They are Protestants who sincerely and fanatically believe that the Roman Curia dictates the conduct of every government headed by a Catholic.

Religious movements usually run deep and when they come to the surface, their impetus can be riotous. It is unfortunate that at a time like this, in world affairs, such a question should arise in the United States.

It is not likely to die down soon. For what has been raised in this campaign are many local issues, such as the large increase in parochial schools and high schools, the use of public buses by children going to parochial schools, tax exemption for church property, etc., etc.

These questions have nothing to do with the Presidential campaign but they are the side effects of the hate campaign against Catholicism.

Should John Kennedy be elected, the Republican Party will immediately face a battle for control between Senator Barry Goldwater, the Conservative leader, and Governor Nelson Rockefeller who will move to the left of the Democrats.

Whereas Goldwater's conception of the loyal opposition will be for Congress to put a brake on the expenditures of an inflationary Democratic Administration, Rockefeller is likely to contend that the Democrats are not doing enough.

Most of the remaining Republicans will follow Goldwater, but Rockefeller will immediately put his presently quiescent organization in high gear to capture the 1964 nomination of his party.

A Nixon victory would, at any rate, continue the Eisenhower-Nixon image of the party; a Nixon defeat would also be an Eisenhower defeat. The Conservatives, under Goldwater, would seek Democratic support because Republican Conservatives are weary of being associated with radical Keynesian Republicans such as Senator Jacob Javits, Clifford Case, etc.

They want a party which can have a clear-cut, distinct, meaningful program. They will, wherever they can, form an alliance with Conservative Democrats. They will therefore watch the vote in Virginia more closely than the vote in New York; to them Texas is more significant than California.

And if my party should be wrong,
I look at truth and wink,
Then thoughtlessly, I go along,
Because I do not dare to think.

Irresponsible Charge

Dear Sir:

I have listened with regret to the irresponsible charge cited against our Congressman from Easton and though he needs no defense with most of us, still I would like to present a few facts.

Congressman Walter has a record that needs no apology, it happens to be one of the best and we can be proud that this area produced a man of this calibre. To attack him with such a charge is not only incompetent, it is downright insulting and displays ignorance of current legislative and national events.

The truth is, Congressman Walter presided over every session of the Legislature wherein controversial or other important bills were presented. The presiding officer is selected by leaders of both political parties—therefore, Congressman Walter was honored by being selected.

Furthermore, the President himself selected the Congressman from Easton as one of two delegates representing this country at the Migration Convention in Europe last spring.

This was a signal honor and if he were not the man most conversant with the subject, he would not have been selected from among the Democrats. He was absent on this mission for several weeks. This was official business — not absenteeism.

The record shows that such bills as were presented in his absence were passed by majority votes in the hundreds and were unimportant to this area. While his public record is open to all, I wonder how much is known of the individual service he has rendered the "little" fellow?

In my work during the war I came in contact with hundreds of people daily and it was not long before I noted that the name of Congressman Walter had become a legend with serviceman and their families when it came to a helping hand.

He has myriads of friends who know him for a fair, honest gentleman who will always extend them a helping hand if humanly possible. He is well regarded by all these ex-servicemen and their families and they certainly must resent this attempted smear at his record.

Of course this propaganda can only be a smoke-screen to cover the inability of the originator to produce one legitimate reason why the public should oust a great statesman from a job well done to substitute a man with no comparable background, no qualifications in the field, no experience — and in an era fraught with ever-increasing complexities.

Wage Tax Is Issue

Dear Mr. Editor:

As a taxpayer and registered voter of Monroe County and keenly interested in affairs politic, I take exception to the following, and would appreciate your printing such in your "Letters to the Editor" column:

On Thursday, November 3, there appeared in your paper the coverage of a talk before the Middle Smithfield Democratic Club, by Rep. Van D. Yetter, under the heading "Yetter Against Wage Tax."

Yetter stated: ". . . that he will not vote for a state wage tax." . . . "the wage tax is really not an issue in this election."

I not only beg to differ with Rep. Van D. Yetter on this statement—but challenge him that it is.

When Yetter campaigned for his present term in office, he ran advertisements in the Daily Record in which he stated that he would not vote for a wage tax. Now, let's see just how that worked out.

On Aug. 11, 1959, it was announced that the House of Representatives passed the Lawrence-sponsored State Graduated Income Tax Bill—with a solid Democratic backing. Several days later—August 17, Rep. Van D. Yetter stated that he voted for this measure.

Therefore, Rep. Van D. Yetter is in grave error when he states to the people of Monroe County that ". . . this wage tax is not an issue in this election."

It is an issue—and will remain so—unless we have men who will stand up and vote no! and fulfill the pledge they made the people back home.

Fortunately, for the great mass of people of this Commonwealth—we have a State Constitution which prevents various political factions from forcing their will upon the people — in that this proposed State Graduated Income Tax must first pass several sessions of the Legislature before they can bring it to a referendum ballot. Shall we let this come to pass?

It appears that the present state administration is bent on taxing the working man and his family out of existence—as this proposed State Graduated Income Tax will inflict another cut into family income.

The undersigned is committed to serve on a committee dedicated to keeping an accurate record of the various candidates in office for the coming term. Only in this way will the people have a clear and accurate picture of how these candidates voted on the various bills passed —with particular attention to tax measures in Harrisburg.

In closing, I wish to express my thanks and appreciation to the Daily Record in printing the above.

THE HEADLINERS

Life made a tough bargain with Liz Taylor. It gave her beauty, gold and glory—and made her pay for them with personal and physical misfortunes. Her latest ailment has been page one news. The gilded prison of Miss Taylor's childhood helps explain many of her problems. Director George Stevens observed: "She worked on the set every morning and spent three hours in the MGM schoolroom every afternoon. She had no time to play, no contact with other children. Between takes, she was sent to a vacant room somewhere to study." Miss Taylor recalls: "In school at the studio, we weren't even allowed to stop to daydream. So I used to escape to the girls' room to daydream."

Such is the ironic story of a star who became a dream girl to millions — and discovered many nightmares in reality.

Jean Harlow's name popped into the headlines following a magazine's startling charge that she was murdered. One of Movieville's pioneer sex queens, her life was burdened with the same melancholy streak that torments most Hollywood bewitchers. Professional success and personal tragedy. Miss Harlow passed at 27 . . . Actually, she was the victim of curable uremic poisoning. Her family's religious beliefs prevented medical care until it was too late.

The formation of that shapeless mass known as success is full of fateful streaks. Nevertheless, certain qualities are essential: Time, toil and talent . . . Carol Lawrence is this season's teevee wonder girl. A lovely, talented doll, she deserves her starcess. Her springboard was the Broadway click "West Side Story." As a consequence, numerous newsstories hailed her as an overnight success. It was a long over-night for Miss Lawrence. She began performing when she was 7-years-young. It required seventeen years of effort before Miss Lawrence reached the pinnacle.

Smut is considered artistry and depravity is supposed to be a form of entertainment. Hence, it is refreshing to report that "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" is a wholesome musical. It is enhanced by Meredith Wilson's melodies.

The Allen-Scott Report

Bonus For Victor

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — The winner of tomorrow's tense presidential election has an unusual victory bonus awaiting him.

The new President will be able to gain control of practically all of the major regulatory agencies of the government within six months after he takes office next Jan. 20.

That's an exceptional situation, and quite different from the one that confronted President Eisenhower in 1953. It took him several years to secure Republican domination of these key bodies that regulate virtually all of the nation's business and industries — from stock markets to cosmetics.

But thanks to a combination of circumstances, the new President will be in a position to largely recast these far-reaching regulatory agencies within a few months.

These unwonted factors are: (1) Expiration of the terms of a number of commissioners, some of them even before he is inaugurated; (2) refusal of the Senate to confirm appointments made by President Eisenhower.

Democratic leaders of the chamber deliberately blocked that with their eye on the presidential election. Privately they made no bones of that.

The reasons are obvious from the following:

National Labor Relations Board — which could be transformed into a pro-labor agency by next August. At present it is management inclined, with only one of the five members, Democrat John Fanning, generally siding with labor. But the next President will have two vacancies to fill, thus giving him a majority of this highly important Board.

One vacancy is immediate, resulting from the Senate Labor Committee's pigeon-holing of the President's selection of Arthur Kimball for a five-year term. The other opening is the expiration in August of the term of Joseph Jenkins.

Federal Power Commission—which also can be wholly reorganized by next summer. By June the new President will be able to name three of the five members of this agency that has extensive authority over electric and natural gas rates. Two of these important appointments will await him when he takes office, due to the Senate's refusal to approve the nominations of Paul Sweeney and Thomas Donegan. The third opening will occur in June when Commissioner Arthur Kline's term expires.

Civil Aeronautic Board — another instance where the new President will be able to take over immediate control. The present partisan line-up in this agency is three to two Republican. But the first term to expire is that of Republican Commissioner John Bragdon — next month; thus opening the way for the new President to install his "swing man."

Interstate Commerce Commission — where two vacancies will await the new President, one of them the chairmanship of this body that regulates the railroads and truckers. The term of Chairman John Winchell expires next month. Also the Senate balked at confirming the President's appointment of Timothy Murphy. The Bostonian was named as a Democrat, but this was hotly challenged on the ground he has seconded Vice President Nixon's nomination at the 1956 convention in San Francisco.

Federal Trade Commission — where the political balance can be immediately shifted because the chairmanship is up in the air. The Senate stalled the reappointment of Chairman Earl Kintner for a new seven-year term. Under the law, he retains office until his successor is approved. Present party line-up in this agency is three Republicans and two Democrats. A new chairman could directly reverse that majority.

If Vice President Nixon is elected, Kintner has told friends he will be renamed and "given a free hand." He does not expect to be kept on if Kennedy is the victor.

The Money Tree — The Civil Service Commission has a list of juicy patronage jobs all ready and waiting for the new President.

Informally known as the "plum list," the compilation records the titles and salaries of some 3,000 appointive jobs with pay ranging from $12,000 to $18,500 a year. Cabinet posts are not included in this list.

Accompanying this patronage list, Commission Chairman Roger Jones has another of outstanding career government employes he feels should be named to many of these jobs. Most of these civil service workers know these jobs thoroughly and in many insances have filled them until political appointments were made.

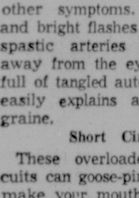
But their prospects of getting these prizes are not very bright regardless of who wins.

Inside You And Yours

Headaches

By Burton H. Fern, M. D.

Someone is pounding a bass drum with a sledge hammer inside your head. Black comets streak between bright flashes in front of your eyes.



Migraine has struck again!

Why?

Doctors are full of ideas but no answers. Migraine used to mean one-sided headaches—the word migraine is French for "half the head." But the march of medicine has trampled this half-head meaning into the ground.

Today's migraine can be one-sided, both-sided or no-sided. Special tummy aches are considered "abdominal migraine," even though the head feels fine.

Many Symptoms

Migraine isn't just any headache. It throbs and thumps -- often one-sided still! Black blind spots, cold blue skin, a bounding pulse and a nervous stomach all add to migraine's misery.

Usually, automatic nerves insure smooth control of blood vessels and internal organs. These nerves—called autonomic nerves—constantly relay signals from unconscious brain cells which never sleep.

Short circuits, overloaded lines or just plain plastic can break down this mysterious biological automation. Blood vessels shrink and tighten without reason. Stomach and intestines shift into high gear, back up or stop altogether. The heart either zooms ahead or slows down to under sixty.

Hammer-Like Pulse

Migrains headaches are also triggered by this overload autonomic nervous system. Certain blood vessels inside the brain clamp off cramp-preventing oxygen. Other arteries stretch and relax until each heartbeat pounds with a hammer-like pulse.

Mixed-up autonomic nerves also manufacture migraine's other symptoms. Black spots and bright flashes explode when spastic arteries detour blood away from the eyes. A tummy full of tangled autonomic nerves easily explains abdominal migraine.

Short Circuits

These overloaded short circuits can goose-pimple the skin, make your mouth water and force vomiting all at once.

Through troubled autonomic nerves, European doctors are trying to link migraine with high blood pressure, early baldness and premature graying.

Now what disrupts nervous automation?

All sorts of monkey-wrenches can foul up this biological machinery. Epilepsy can trigger convulsion-like autonomic signals. Allergy can bypass all the wiring and make its own chemical signals.

Many victims inherit some special susceptibility. The troubled mind often throbs with migraine. Instead of blowing your top, fierce headaches explode.

What Helps?

Aspirin can take the edge off mild migraine, but real relief lies in prescriptions for ergot-like drugs. Ergot chemicals tighten blood vessels until throbbing stops. You bounce back as your pulse loses its bounce. Newer drugs sometimes help, but not as regularly as ergot.

Personality-soothing helps prevent future migraine. Drugs, talk and hypnotism have all been used to smooth out emotional wrinkles. They don't really smooth anything; they merely move the wrinkles elsewhere.

But it still feels mighty good when those throbbing wrinkles are pushed away from the head.

Mirror of Time

Monroe County Federation of Clubs donated $3,700 to the Community Drive.

Dr. Frances B. McGarry, was re-elected as chairman of District Four, Delaware Valley Area Boy Scouts of America.

Both major parties were confident of victory on the eve of the State's off-year general election. The local issue was to authorize the building of an airport at Mt. Pocono.

At a football game played in Slatington, Stroudsburg High was defeated 25-14.

Social Security Guide

Q. Would you please advise me what I should do about social security for a cleaning woman I'm going to have come into my home every two weeks?

A. If you pay her as much as $50 cash wages during a calendar quarter, you must report her wages for social security purposes. A "quarter" is a three-month period beginning with the months of January, April, July, and October. Now as to how much the tax is and how you pay. The tax is now 3 percent for the employe and 3 percent for the employer, or a total of 6 percent of the total amount paid. The tax is not paid to the Social Security Administration but to the Internal Revenue Service. Once you have notified the Internal Revenue Service that you will have a domestic employe, they will put you on their mailing list and every quarter send you the form necessary to report the wages and pay the tax. You may contact either the Internal Revenue Office or your nearest social security office for information on how you can be placed on the mailing list.

Pennsylvania Story

How Much Cost?

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Tomorrow — election day 1960 — will be a day unquestionably destined to have much to do with the shaping of things to come in Pennsylvania in the next two years.

Much has been said — much has been done — much has been written.

But Tuesday, Nov. 8, 1960 is the "silent day."

It is true that a president and vice-president will be elected before the balloting is over tomorrow night.

Pennsylvania will also name 30 members of Congress from this state.

Each office in its own way will have much to do with the moulding of national policy—the charting of the course of the United States in the next two years until another new Congress is named.

But closer to home, almost painfully close, are equally decisive steps that will be taken tomorrow by the Keystone State electorate — steps that may well effect the everyday living of Pennsylvania in the next two years more than any other single factor.

For example, the complexion of the 1961 State Legislature — which meets little more than two months hence — will be painted tomorrow.

All 210 seats in the House of Representatives are up for filling on this election day 1960, along with half of the 50 State Senate seats.

The key question in everyone's mind here in the State Capital is whether the Democratic Lawrence Administration is to be favored with a pro-administration Democratic House and Senate — or an anti-administration Democratic House and Senate — or an anti-administration Republic-controlled General Assembly.

(The latter actually can be accomplished of course by GOP control of only one of the two houses as was the case in the 1955 session, the 1959 session — and the current still-in-being 1960 session.)

And — in the final analysis it boils down to the simple question of whether Pennsylvania taxpayers are willing to pay more for additional and expanded state services.

Pennsylvania is now operating with a record-breaking near-two billion dollar budget. The budgets for the next two fiscal years (the two remaining years of the Lawrence Administration) cannot help but exceed the two billion dollar-mark.

A pro-administration Legislature in 1960 would assure the granting of virtually every request the administration may submit.

On the other hand Republican legislative leaders have vowed a continuing policy of sharp tightening of the purse strings should they gain control of the 1961 General Assembly — following the pattern they have already established.

Either way additional funds over and above those already provided will be needed to meet an expected deficit — and previous commitments.

But it is the composition of the 1961 Legislature that will determine "how much" will be provided by Pennsylvania's taxpayers.

It is worth noting perhaps that a number of the ambitious programs advocated by the Lawrence Administration withered on the fiscal vine during the past 1959 legislative session as controlling Senate Republicans hoisted the red fiscal flag. In the current campaign this has been a bitter point of contest on the part of partisan Democrats.

Thus, in a nutshell, how much additional Pennsylvania taxpayers are going to pay and the manner in which this is to be paid in actuality may be largely determined tomorrow!

At stake on this election day 1960 is the pattern of everyday living Pennsylvania residents can expect to have set for them in the next two years — not only in fiscal matters but in nearly every walk of life.

In other words, there is all this — in addition to the presidency!

Reverse Split

By William A. Doyle

Q. Does a reverse split mean that a company buys back its common stock?

A. Not at all. In a reverse split, a company issues new stock to replace old stock and ends up with fewer shares of the new stock outstanding.

William A. Doyle

Let's say that you own 500 shares of common stock in XYZ Corp. and that XYZ goes through a one-for-five reverse split. After the reverse split becomes effective, you would own 100 shares.

You might be required to turn in your 500 shares of the old stock in order to receive the 100 shares of the new stock. Or you might not. You might keep it and paper your walls with it.

No matter how the details were worked, the new stock issued as a result of the reverse split would represent ownership in the company. The old stock would not.

Because the reverse split affected all the outstanding stock in the company, the 100 shares you would own after it became effective would represent the same percentage of ownership in the company as the 500 old shares previously did.

What five old shares represented, one new share will represent.

This, of course, will be reflected in the market price of the stock. The market value of each new share will be five times that of each old share — give or take a bit for price fluctuations in the market place.

Q. Why does a company put through a reverse split of its common stock?

A. It's usually done after the market price of the stock falls way down. It's sort of a matter of corporate dignity. Many outfits don't take to the idea of their stocks selling at very low prices.

Q. I was advised that, before I buy stock in any company, I should look up the number of shares outstanding. Is there any particular reason for this?

A. There are a number of reasons. Some of them are important. Some aren't.

Outstanding shares of stock represent ownership in a company.

By multiplying the number of outstanding shares by the market price of the stock, you get the total value that the investing public has put on ownership of the corporation.

A big corporation will normally have many more shares outstanding than a smaller corporation.

However, there are many more important things to consider. You should look at a company's earnings and its earnings per share, its past record, its future prospects and many other things.

You should study everything about any company before you make a decision on buying its stock.

Marine Corps Reserve To Collect Toys

MONROE County members of the Third Motor Transport Battalion, USMCR, Wyoming, will open their annual "Toys For Tots" drive for new or usable toys in the county today, Staff Sgt. Harold Jacobsen, Monroe County Toys for Tots chairman, said last night.

Organizations and businesses participating in this year's drive are the George N. Kemp, American Legion Post, East Stroudsburg; Pocono Mountain Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Sherman Theater.

It is the hope of the drive to realize more than 6,000 new or usable toys. These will be given to the Salvation Army, which will act as the distributing agency in Monroe County for the toys collected.

Toy Matinee

A matinee is scheduled for the Sherman Theater, time and date to be announced. Admission will be a new or usable toy. Present at the theater will be members of the reserve unit and members of the organizations aiding in the drive.

The drive is not limited to toys alone. Anyone having clothing that has been outgrown and could be used by one of the families in the county may donate them and the clothes will be distributed.

Those having toys or clothing too large to transport to one of the collecting points are urged to contact the American Legion after 6 p.m. any day of the week and one of the reservists will call to make the collection.

Last year the Toys for Tots drive reached a goal of 5,500 toys. The goal this year is increased 500 and the Marines are asking the help of the people of Monroe County to open up their hearts and make this drive another success.

"We of the reserve program from Monroe County make this appeal annually. It is our way of showing the community that we want to help in being a part of the civic life," said Staff Sgt. Jacobsen.

Walter Hits Injection Of Religion

REP. FRANCIS E. Walter charged Saturday night that injection of Sen. John Kennedy's religion into the current presidential campaign is "un-American."

Speaking before a rally of more than one hundred persons at the Central Labor Union in East Stroudsourg, Rep. Walter said that the choice in this election is between Sen. Kennedy, "who is a great Liberal, courageous and able statesman" and "a man who, on the other hand, is a politician, pure and simple."

Congressman Walter, who is chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities and a leading opponent of Communism, said that Sen. Kennedy "is thinking and fighting for a strong America—an America that will be able to meet the kind of attacks we can expect internally and externally."

"If Jack Kennedy belonged to any other church, there would be no campaign because he has proved himself to be far and away the better qualified of the two candidates. Yet the Republicans have kept this issue alive, constantly, by reminding people of it—even when they say that it should not exist," Rep. Walter said.

Backs Kennedy, Yetter

The veteran Congressman urged the election of Kennedy, and the return of Monroe County Rep. Van D. Yetter to the Lesislature in Harrisburg.

"It is just plain common sense that the people of Monroe County should vote for Van Yetter because Governor Lawrence and a Democratic Administration will be working for Pennsylvania in Harrisburg for two more years. Monroe County must have a man in Harrisburg who has access to the Administration. Van Yetter has served the people of this County well during his two terms in the Legislature and the County needs his support in the State Assembly these next two years," Rep. Walter said.

Accusing Republicans of "frantic, almost hysterical efforts to prevent what looks like an overwhelming defeat at the polls next Tuesday," Rep. Walter said that "the American people are not going to be deceived by the fact that a great military leader turned politician is now trying to drape his mantle over the very thin shoulders of a vice president."

Walter charged that most major American newspapers and governmental agencies agree that America's strength and prestige have declined. "There is going to come a day when not only our defenses but everything else in our nation will be second best," he said. "On Tuesday, we decide whether these newspaper articles are wrong and everything is rosy or whether we do need a change. I don't think the American people can take a chance on four more years of the same old thing in Washington."

Yetter assailed Republicans in the State Legislature for their failure to pass the tax on stocks and bonds which would have provided funds for education.

Sales Tax

"The Republicans won't pass a tax which would be based on the ability of people to pay—they want to make the wage earner pay through the nose with the sales tax because it is the wage earner who is hit hardest by sales taxes," Rep. Yetter said.

"The Democratic party has always been opposed to a wage tax and so have I during the 1959 session of the Legislature, we passed a resolution calling for a referendum which would let the people of Pennsylvania decide, by their own votes, whether they would rather have a sales tax or a graduated income tax based on ability to pay. The Democratic Party feels that the people, themselves, should have the right to decide which method they prefer—but the Republicans would rather cram a tax down the wage earner's throat."

Rep. Yetter told the group that $17 million forth of roads and bridges have been constructed in Monroe County during the two Democratic administrations in Harrisburg and that programs for the future would raise this total to $90 million in the next ten years.

"If you just take a ride around the County, you can see that the Democratic Administrations in Harrisburg have been very good for Monroe County. All this talk the Republicans are coming out with now during an election campaign about 'no taxes' might be fine—but promises don't mean a thing if they don't fulfill them. The record shows that the Republicans never have kept their promises. The record shows that the Democrats do," Rep. Yetter said.

Other speakers on the program included Earl Bohr, treasurer of the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO; Stuart Pipher, president of the Monroe-Pike Central Labor Union, who opposed Yetter in the Democratic primary and called for Yetter's re-election to the General Assembly "for the good of all the people of Monroe County." Carl Woolever, chairman of the CLU Committee on Political Education; District Attorney James Marsh, who reminded those present of the importance of getting out the vote and County Auditor James Cadue.

International Scholarship Program To Be Extended

BUCK HILL FALLS — The international scholarship exchange program conducted by the World Council of Churches will be expanded to include professional and technical scholarships for Asia, Africa, and Latin America. For the first time scholarships for lay men and women will be provided.

The administrative committee of the division of Inter-church Aid and Service to Refugees of the World Council meeting at the Inn, endorsed proposals which enable the group to help students in programs other than theological training. At the same time it voted to expand its theological training program to include men and women.

The purpose of the scholarship programme is to strengthen the churches and to increase their consciousness of the need for Christian unity. Under the programme 1600 students have studied abroad in seminaries of denominations other than their own.

During the current academic year 133 students hold scholarships. Of these 26 students from nine African countries are studying in Europe and Asia. This is in addition to the ecumenical scholarship exchange program of Church World Service of the National Council of Churches in the United States. Twelve students from Asia, six from Latin America, 82 from Europe, five from the U.S.A., and one from New Zealand are enrolled in the 1960-61 programme.

Most Places

Most of the places in one hundred seminaries in Europe and Asia are provided without charge by the institutions and travel grants made by the churches and missions. The World Council makes the selection of students from candidates recommended by national committees.

Under the enlarged programme special scholarships would provide for theological training for women. The lay scholarship program will encourage the formation of national committees to assist young men and women from Asia, Africa, and Latin America who are not theological students. Sixty such students are receiving advanced technical training as a project of the German churches now.

Other proposals are for training and orientation for young people living and working abroad in service projects and for short courses for students from Asia, Africa, and Latin America studying in Europe and the United States. A pilot project in 1961 will include short courses for African students at the end of their studies in Britain, Europe, and North America. They will evaluate their significance of their studies and view technical aspects of their work in the context of Christian vocation.

The new program will be undertaken immediately. The budget for operation expenses of administering the scholarship programme has been increased fro. $45,000 to $60,000. The Rev. Harry Morton, a former missionary in India, has recently joined the staff of the World Council of Churches, Geneva, Switzerland, to coordinate the scholarship programe.

Entertainment and refreshments will follow the business meeting.

Another Milestone Passed

THIS MONTH marks another milestone for Van D. Yetter Jr. and his Farm-Industrial Machinery and Mobile Home business. It was just 26 years ago this month that Yetter was awarded a dealership from The Caterpillar Tractor Co., which started him off in this business.

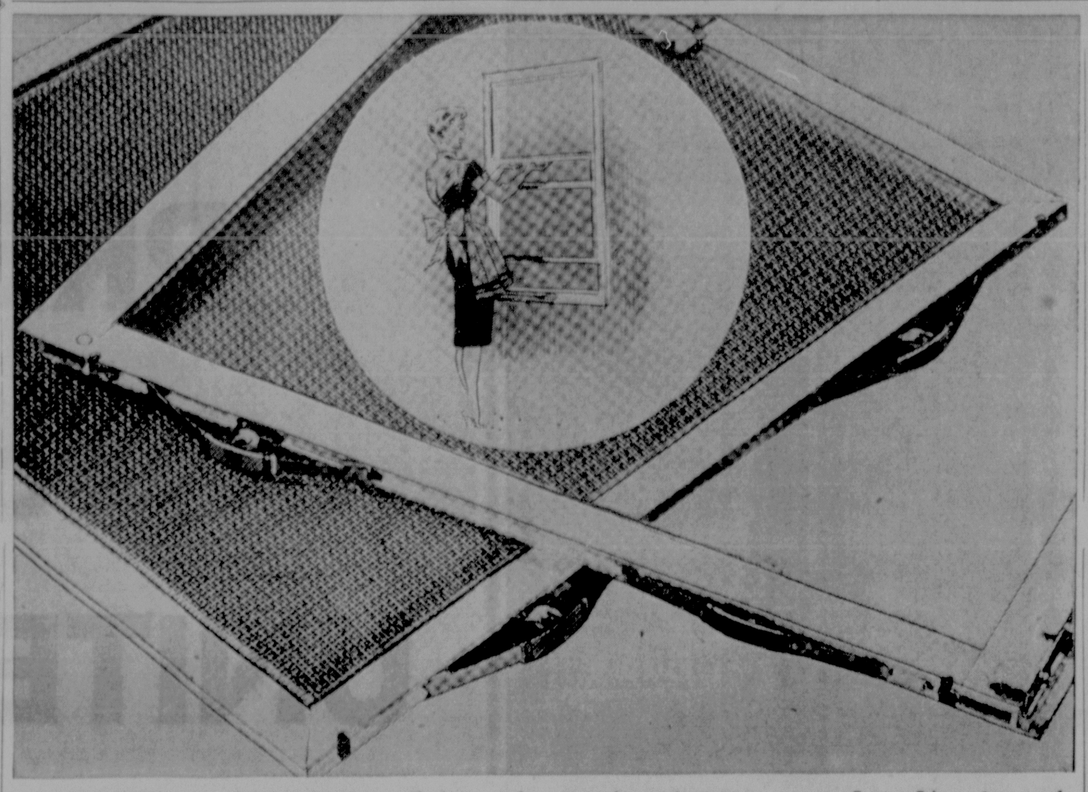
Although the business has expanded to include other lines and franchises, Caterpillar is still one of the most favored tractor lines today.

At Yetter's office and display yards along Route 402 near Marshalls Creek you will find one of the largest selections of Mobile Homes in Northeast Pennsylvania. Some of the more popular include, Ventura, New Moon, Marlette, Pioneer, Vindale and Airstream.

You'll find most any model from the small camping size to the luxurious 10 foot by 50 foot living models.

Other lines of equipment handled by Yetter include Homelite and McCulloch power saws, Massey Ferguson farm and industrial equipment, and popular lines of gardening equipment and power mowers.

Here is a business that has grown and prospered during the past 26 years by keeping pace with the changing times and trends. As new products are produced and there is a market here in Monroe County you can be sure that these will be added to Yetter's growing business.



JECTOR-LITE, the ultimate in storm windows and screens is now available at Sheldon Newell's of 129 Huston Ave., in Stroudsburg. Jector-Lite Windows are of all-incased triple track construction. Ease of operation is assured through the use of DuPont "Zytel" facings, a low-friction nylon material, extremely resistant to wear. Jector-Lite glass and screen panels employing "Zytel" never require lubrication and always slide easily. You can learn more about these amazing storm and screen units by visiting Newell's or by calling HA 1-7430.

Restoring Brushes

IF BRUSHES are worn and dry, soak them in a good commercial brush cleaner. Soak until bristles are soft and pliable. Another method of reclaiming hard brushes is to soak them 10 to 24 hours in a warm solution of 3 pints of water and 1 pound of sal soda. When the brushes are soft and pliable, wash thoroughly in warm, soapy water.

It Makes Sense To Give Half Your Products Away

IT MAKES sense for a manufacturer to give half his products away?

"Sure, it does — if he's doing it to make a point," says Robert Van Worp Sr., who estimates his paint company has given away more than 5 million gallons of free paint, enamel and varnish in the past nine years!

Van Worp, founder of Mary Carter Paint Factories, originated "every second can free" as a paint merchandising idea. Here in Stroudsburg, he is represented by Jack Muehlhan, who operates a Mary Carter franchise store at 5 South 6th St.

The free paint policy began as a mistake that worked out so well he decided to keep right on making it!

His first newspaper advertisement was supposed to read: "Get a free can of paint with all the paint you buy." Instead, it read: "Get a free can of paint with every can you buy." At the end of the first day's business, he found he'd moved 1,600 cans of paint and had money in the till for only 800!

Financially, it was a disastrous day for the budding paint maker, but Van Worp figured the volume he'd done was worth repeating on a regular basis.

Since then, every quart or gallon of Mary Carter paint sold has been matched with another quart or gallon, free of extra cost.

A stove top splashed with fat from a frying pan is easily cleaned with a cloth dampened with vinegar.

Both Parties See Gains At Polls

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Both Republicans and Democrats see some fertile ground to make 1960 Congressional and Governorship gains in elections in the 12 Eastern states. But, barring a sweep for one of the Presidential candidates, major shifts in party control are unlikely.

In their 1958 sweep, Democrats picked up three Eastern Senate seats and 19 Eastern House seats. The only likely Democratic Senate gains in 1960 would be Massachusetts and New Jersey, but Republican incumbents are favored in both those states. The Democratic Senate seat in Delaware is in jeopardy.

In the Governorship sweepstakes, six Republican and only one Democratic seat are at stake in 1960. Republicans have a good chance to win the single Democratic Governorship (in Massachusetts) but their own Governorships are in jeopardy in Delaware, Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and West Virginia.

Of the 129 House seats from the Eastern states, Democrats now hold 71 and Republicans 57. Thirteen of the Democratic seats and eight of the Republican seats are in the Doubtful column this year, but a strong sweep for Democratic Presidential nominee John F. Kennedy in New York, New Jersey or Pennsylvania might endanger several other GOP seats.

Eastern Roundup

Here is a quick look at each state:

Connecticut—Kennedy is favored to carry the state, but unless his margin is very high, Republicans may unseat up to three incumbent Democratic Congressmen who were swept into office on Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff's coattails in 1958.

Delaware — Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon is given an edge in the fight for the state's electoral votes, but Democrats are favored to win the Governorship now held by J. Caleb Boggs (R). Boggs, however, has a good chance to unseat incumbent Sen. J. Allen Frear Jr. (D).

Maine—Nixon appears to have the strong edge, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R) appears unbeatable, but the Governorship race between incumbent John H. Reed (R) and Rep. Frank M. Coffin (D) is very close. Republicans may pick up Coffin's House seat.

Maryland — The Presidential race is expected to be close, but Republicans have an even chance to unseat two Democratic Congressmen.

Massachusetts — All observers expect Kennedy to carry his home state, but Henry Cabot Lodge's presence on the Republican ticket may lessen the majority. Incumbent Sen. Leverett Saltonstall is favored over Springfield Mayor Thomas J. O'Connor Jr. (D), who defeated Gov. Foster Furcolo (D) in the Democratic Senate primary. Republican John A. Volpe, former Federal Highway Administrator, has a chance to win the Governorship in a contest with Secretary of State Joseph D. Ward (D).

New Hampshire — Despite an anticipated Nixon victory, Republican Gov. Wesley Powell is in danger of being defeated by Democrat Bernard L. Boutin. Powell survived a bitter primary fight to win the nomination, and has many enemies in both political parties. Sen. Styles Bridges (R) and the state's two GOP Congressmen are sure bets for re-election.

New Jersey—In the face of a predicted Kennedy victory in New Jersey, Sen. Clifford P. Case (R) is given a better-than-even chance to win re-election over lackluster Democratic opposition. But up to five Republican Congressmen could be defeated if Kennedy wins the state by a wide margin.

New York — Many observers believe Kennedy leads in the fight of New York's 45 electoral votes. If he were to win by a large majority, up to 14 Republican Congressional seats could be in jeopardy. If the Presidential election is close, two Democrat seats may be in serious danger.

Pennsylvania — The outcome of the Presidential race in Pennsylvania is still in doubt. Several Republican seats in heavily Catholic areas might switch to the Democrats, or Republicans might pick up one or two currently Democratic House seats if the vote divides sharply along religious lines. Four Democratic seats and one GOP seat are currently listed in the Doubtful column.

Rhode Island — Kennedy is counted a sure winner, and Democrats should hold the Senate seat of retiring Theodore Francis Green (D) with their surprise primary winner, Claiborne deB. Pell. Republican Gov. Christopher Del Sesto is in a close re-election race against Lt. Gov. John A. Notte (D). Democrats lead in both House races.

Vermont—Nixon is expected to win Vermont easily, and the Governorship is sure to remain Republican. Freshman Rep. William H. Meyer (D), who surprised the country by winning the traditionally Republican House seat in 1958, is likely to lose this year. His opponent is the incumbent Republican Governor, Robert T. Stafford.

West Virginia—Kennedy is favored to win the state's electoral votes, but the underlying religious issue could endanger his chances and those of one or two Democratic Congressmen. In the Senate race, popular Sen. Jennings Randolph is a heavy favorite for re-election over Gov. Cecil Underwood (R). Democrats are favored to take the Governorship, but scandals may endanger their chances.

Mack Sennett Dies–Broke

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Passed up by the Hollywood he made great, Mack Sennett spent the last years of his tumultuous life broke but proud.

It might be his epitaph.

Sennett died Saturday at the age of 80.

No two men did more to create the movie industry than Sennett ard D. W. Griffith. Both made millions. Both died broke and forgotten by Hollywood. But while Griffith spent his final years in bitterness, Sennett never lost the sunny optimism of his films, which always had happy endings.

Just Between Us — —

It wasn't mud our local politicians were throwing on Saturday afternoon — it was rice — and not at each other but at the newly-married Mr. and Mrs. John Savitt as they left St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Both the Clevelands and the Yetters were at the wedding and it did seem like a lot of politicians in the intimacy of the small church. But during the ceremony, nobody was thinking about politics — not even the candidates.

There is something very moving about a wedding in a small church. The audience is so much a part of the wedding party and there's so much surcharged emotion within such a little space that dry eyes are the exception rather than the rule.

But everybody had perked up at the reception, where even the salads came in heart-shapes, marked with the names of Jack and Kathleen.

Politics popped up again, however, at the banquet at the VFW on Saturday night honoring the Past Commanders and Past Presidents, but in the form of table favors from both candidates: combs, after-dinner mints, hand lotion and ballpoints.

It wonders me why some enterprising ways and means chairman hasn't thought of having an Election Party with all the campaign give-aways of all the candidates sort of like a Sample Fair.

MR. AND MRS. John Paul Savitt with Rev. William F. Wunder following their marriage at the St. Paul's Lutheran Church on Saturday.

Miss Kathleen LeSoine Bride Of John P. Savitt

Miss Kathleen Anne LeSoine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Irving LeSoine of East Stroudsburg RD 2 was married on Saturday afternoon at 2 to John Paul Savitt of Stroudsburg in the St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Craigs Meadow.

Mr. Savitt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Savitsky of Lansford.

Rev. William F. Wunder performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with bouquets white chrysanthemums and figi mums. White bows marked the end of the pews and Janice Mosteller as soloist sang "Because" and the hymn "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer" as they knelt at the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of white satin floral brocade imported from France, designed by her sister, Miss Ruth LeSoine. The fitted bodice had a scoop neckline, and long sleeves with a satin belt above the full, ankle-length skirt. A crown of seed pearls and brilliants held her veil of net, and she carried a bouquet of autumn red and white bud roses with white camellias.

The maid of honor, Miss Ruth Ellen LeSoine, and the bridesmaid, Miss Carol Marie LeSoine, also a sister of the bride, wore identical gowns of beige satin floral brocade from France, in cocktail length with cap sleeves and scooped neckline. Sequined crowns held their veils of scalloped net and they carried nosegays of white and yellow carnations.

Malcom Whittier Pennington of New York City, N.Y., was best man. Ushers were James Albert and Robert Huffman.

The bride's mother wore a dress of loden green taffeta with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore brown lace over pink taffeta with brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A reception for about 100 guests was held at Ross Common Manor which was decorated with floral sprays. A buffet supper was served from a decorated table and there was music by the Keats, Byron and Shelly Trio.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Boston, Mass., the bride wore a suit of brown hopsacking tweed with gold accessories. On their return they will make their home at 60 Broad St., Stroudsburg.

The bride is a graduate of East Stroudsburg High School and is attending East Stroudsburg State College where she is a staff reporter for the Stroud Courier.

Mr. Savitt, who is on the advertising staff of the Daily Record, is a graduate of Lansford High School, Lincoln Prep School and Albright College where he was a member of the Zeta Omega Epsilon fraternity, the Sciblerus Society and managing editor of Agon, national college magazine. He served in the military personnel department in the Far East.

Refreshments were served by the Stroudsburg Senior troop leaders and neighborhood chairmen.

Daily Record Supporting Van Yetter For Reelection

One week from today, Monroe County voters will go to the polls and elect their representative in the Pennsylvania General Assembly.

They will make their choice between the incumbent, Rep. Van D. Yetter, Democrat, and the challenger, Hanford L. Cleveland, Republican.

Mr. Yetter has served two terms in the Legislature — terms that were interrupted by the one two-year term served by Mr. Cleveland.

As a member of the majority party of the House, Mr. Yetter was able to accomplish much in the matter of legislation during his four years in office.

His seniority has paved the way for his appointment to a number of important standing committees: Highways Townships, Boroughs, Game, Fish and Agriculture, and several special committees.

It is this experience and seniority in Harrisburg which convinces us that the interests of Monroe County would be served best by the reelection of Mr. Yetter.

Our support of the incumbent assemblyman is further enhanced when the coming election is viewed from the standpoint of who has done the most for Monroe County during his service in Harrisburg. Here, again, we must side with Mr. Yetter.

During his two terms, Rep. Yetter sponsored or co-sponsored a total of 46 bills in the House. Of these, 25 passed both House and Senate and were signed into law.

His name was on four measures providing the money and making it possible for the state to clear the streams, build flood control dikes and rebuild the roads, streets and bridges that were damaged by the 1955 flood.

Other bills with which he was associated include those making an appropriation to the Department of Commerce for the promotion of Pennsylvania (thus creating more business for Pocono Mountains resorts); allowing New Jersey and Pennsylvania to cooperate in building dams on the Delaware River; eliminating the requirement of waiting a week for unemployment benefits when unemployment resulted from a flood or other disaster, and authorizing abatement of real estate tax if property was destroyed or damaged by the 1955 flood.

Among the Yetter-sponsored bills approved by the 1959-60 session of the Legislature were those requiring the Highway Department to erect signs notifying motorists of the penalty for throwing trash or rubbish along roads; clarifying enforcement of the sales and use tax and placing the burden of proof on the Department of Revenue; requiring the Highway Department to issue permits for movement of oversize and overweight equipment at county offices of the department, and an emergency appropriation to the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority. This money is used to bring new industry into the state and to help small firms expand and increase local employment.

Many of the measures he sponsored or co-sponsored have brought great benefit to Monroe County and its people. To ignore such service to the constituents he represents would be inflicting a major injustice upon Rep. Yetter.

Surely, Mr. Cleveland's record of service to Monroe County did not measure up to either of the two terms served by Mr. Yetter.

In fact, Mr. Cleveland himself gave evidence of his desire to step out of politics when he accepted a pension for the term he was in office. In other words, he actually retired himself when he accepted the pension benefits.

These, then, are the factors which have shaped our decision to endorse Rep. Yetter. We urge all voters in the county to support his candidacy at the Nov. 8 election.

—o—

The second in a series of editorials giving our reasons for endorsing certain candidates for office will appear tomorrow. It deals with the U.S. House of Representatives.

Vote Frauds In Luzerne Are Charged

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — The Republican chairman of Luzerne County asked the State Senate Sunday to investigate what he described as irregularities in issuing absentee ballots.

In a telegram to Sen. William Z. Scott (R—Carbon), chairman of a special Senate investigating committee, Joseph J. Gale, the party chairman, said:

"I respectfully request your committee to investigate absentee ballot irregularities in Luzerne County. I also suggest that you bring these matters to the attention of the proper federal authorities before this vital election is bought or stolen by unscrupulous politicians."

By the way of explanation, Gale said the Democratic-controlled county registration department and election board had made it very difficult for Republicans to get absentee ballots, while others were getting thousands.

Scott Advised

Scott told a newsman that he had received the telegram and on Monday would ask the U. S. attorney in Scranton and the Luzerne County district attorney to conduct a preliminary investigation.

"If there are sufficient facts reported to me indicating that an investigation is warranted, I most certainly will recommend to my committee that we visit Luzerne County and make an investigation."

The republican-controlled committee is now investigating charges of fraudulent voting in Philadelphia, a Democratic stronghold. It will resume its hearings in that city on Nov. 15.

Some 70,000 absentee ballots, or more, have been sent to servicemen and civilians by the state's 67 counties. Under a 1959 amendment to the state constitution, Pennsylvania civilians have absentee ballot privileges for the first time.

Protestants Raise Voices Against Religious Bias

NEW YORK (AP) — New Protestant voices were raised Sunday urging Americans not to let religious considerations govern their votes in the presidential election.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, who previously had questioned the religious views of the Democratic candidate, Sen. John F. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, said in a sermon at Marble Collegiate Church: "The American people are fortunate in that both presidential candidates, who are Christian in faith, have a generous regard for the religious beliefs of all their fellow Americans."

Dr. Poling, editor of the Christian Herald, said religion has become an issue in the campaign, but "it is not the only issue, nor do I believe that the election should be decided on this issue."

It should turn, instead, he said, "on those imperative matters, national and international, that threaten the very existence of American freedom, the peace and security of all mankind."

The Rev. Dr. Dana McLean Greeley, president of the American Unitarian Association, in a sermon at All Souls Unitarian church, urged listeners to "live up to your traditional beliefs in reason and tolerance.

"Unreasoning fear, anxiety and anger have been expressed in support of and to defame John F. Kennedy because he is an American Roman Catholic.

"There seems little doubt that there will be people who vote for the senator next week because of his religion. It is equally probable that there will be those who vote against him because of his religion. Both groups would be tragically mistaken."

Priests Warn Catholics Against Voting For Marin

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Roman Catholic priests reminded their parishioners Sunday that the church views a vote for Gov. Luis Munoz Marin and his Popular Democratic party as a sin.

No new pastoral letter was read in the churches of this island commonwealth on this last Sunday before Tuesday's elections.

For the last two Sundays priests had read letters signed by the island's three bishops forbidding Catholics to vote for Munoz Marin's party under pain of a sin of disobedience.

The governor told a rally Saturday night the bishops had insulted the Puerto Rican people and the bishops therefore had the responsibility "to right the wrong." He declared, "The wrong will be righted at the polls Tuesday."

The bishops accused Munoz Marin's party of following an anti-Christian policy due to the ruling Popular Democrats' failure to oppose birth control and their toleration of common law marriages.

Munoz Marin, himself a Catholic, is opposed by the Republicans, who advocate statehood; the Independence party, and the Christian Action party, which has the support of the bishops in this predominantly Catholic U.S. commonwealth.

Year-Round Plan For Colleges

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania's 14 state colleges can introduce a year-round school term if they choose to do so beginning next September.

The State Public Instruction Department said Shippensburg already has decided to go ahead with the new schedule and four other colleges are considering it.

The new plan was approved by the State College Board of Presidents, Superintendent Charles H. Boehm said Saturday, the idea was proposed by Dr. Ralph Heiges, Shippensburg president, for the benefit of students who want to accelerate their studies.

The decision whether to put the new program into effect was left to the colleges.

Four Quarters

Under the new system, the school year would be divided into four quarters of about 12 weeks each. Short vacations would separate each term.

Attendance at the summer quarter would be voluntary.

The change would allow a student attending consecutive quarters to graduate in three years.

Fees would remain about the same, the department reported, except there would be an additional fee covering the summer term.

Boehm said the plan would 'encourage accleration and the greater utiliziation of college facilities, which in turn will permit higher enrollments at a time when the demand for admission to college is mounting."

One Trimester

Thirteen of the state colleges now operate on the traditional two-semester plan. The 14th, California, put a trimester plan into effect in 1959.

In the four-quarter system, the terms would end in November, February, May and August. Students would enroll for three or four courses a term instead of the normal five courses. Class periods would be extended from an hour to 75 minutes.

Eagles, Baltimore Move Into Division Top Spots

THE champion Baltimore Colts moved back into first place in the Western Division of the National Football League Sunday with a 38-24 victory over the Green Bay Packers.

The Philadelphia Eagles edged into the undisputed lead in the Eastern Division by downing the Pittsburgh Steelers 34-7 as the Cleveland Browns bowed to the New York Giants 17-13.

In the American Football League the Houston Oilers swarmed over Denver 45-25 to retain their Eastern Division lead. Dallas got back into contention for the Western Division crown by defeating the Buffalo Bills 45-28.

Oilers Win

In the American Football League the Houston Oilers swarmed over Denver 45-25 to retain their Eastern Division lead. Dallas got back into contention for the Western Division crown by defeating the Buffalo Bills 45-28.

In other National League games, the St. Louis Cardinals swamped the Washington Redskins 44-7, the Los Angeles Rams downed Dallas 38-13 and the Detroit Lions blanked the San Francisco 49ers 24-0.

It virtually was a "must" game for the Colts as they won their fifth game in seven starts while the Packers lost their second in six starts. The victory was achieved through the throwing arm of Johnny Unitas, who tossed four touchdown passes, the third breaking a 24-24 tie. Paul Hornung, the NFL's leading scorer, added two more touchdowns to his total for Green Bay, booted a field goal and kicked three extra points.

Big Crowd

A crowd of 58,324, the largest Philadelphia pro gathering in 10 years, saw quarterback Norm Van Brocklin pitch the Eagles to victory as his teammates mothered the Steelers' Bobby Layne and his receivers. Three of Van Brocklin's tosses went to Tommy McDonald for touchdowns, and in all he completed 19 of 30 for 295 yards.

The Browns, who had been tied for the Eastern Division lead with the Eagles, dropped to third place as 39-year-old Chuck Conerly piloted the Giants to victory. The Giant defense limited the Brown's vaunted rushing attack to a net gain of six yards. It was New York's sixth straight victory over Cleveland.

The San Francisco shutout was the first suffered by the 49ers since 1955, and the victory was only the second of the season for Detroit. Two touchdowns in the final two minutes made the Lions' margin the more convincing. The Lions now have a 2-4 league record in the Western Division and the 49ers 3-4.

Quick Lead

Frank Ryan passed the Rams to a quick lead over the Dallas Cowboys as Dallas suffered its seventh straight setback. Ryan threw 61 yards to Jim Phillips for the first score, then hit Phillips with a 58-yarder to set up the second score. He then hit Phillips again for five yards and the next touchdown.

The Cardinals rolled to their third straight victory and fourth of the season in smothering the hapless Redskins. Johnny Roach passed to Sonny Randle for three touchdowns and John Crow ran for two.

The Chicago Bears, with a record of 3-2-1, were idle.

George Blanda threw four touchdown passes in the Houston victory over Denver in the AFL, and personally accounted for nine points to run his season total to 84, tops in the league.

Dallas brought its record to 4-4 in the Western Division by its success over Buffalo, whose usually stout defensive unit yielded three touchdowns in the third quarter.

SU Broke One-Touchdown Slump But Slaters Win 58-18

STROUD UNION High School broke out of its one touchdown slump Saturday but Slatington pushed across nine six-pointers, for a 58-18 win on their home field.

It was the first time this season that the Mountaineers had scored more than seven points in one game but it was also their worst defensive showing.

The Mounties did not score until the Slaters had a 46-0 lead. A 67-yard screen pass from quarterback John Baylor to fullback Tom Schatzman, put the West Main Streeters on the scoreboard and Baylor, who started in place of the injured Warren Loney, went over from the two on a sneak for the second score. Roy Delter blocked a Slater punt near the end of the game and Freddy Frantz scooped up the ball and raced 33 yards for a score.

Keep Pace

But Slatington was able to score two TDs in the final frame to keep the Mounties well of the pace.

Only 18 players were in uniform for the Mounties. Loney injured his shoulder in a practice session Friday and center Dave Shay had to take part in a wedding. The Mounties came through the game without any injuries.

Stroud Union gained only 36 yards on the ground but connected on five passes for 100. The Mounties collected seven first downs, while Slatington picked up 21 first downs and 338 yards rushing. The Slaters attempted only three passes and completed one for four yards.

Bjorn was impressed with the running of Schatzman and freshman halfback Glen Bisbing.

It was the seventh straight loss for the winless Mounties, who have given up 267 points.

T. MANNING Curtis, athletic director at Stroud Union High School, will address the Pocono Touchdown Club at noon today in the Towne Room of the Town Tavern. The club's membership drive has been extended another week.

Kist Praises Fellman For Role In Port Jervis Win

THE CAVALIERS of East Stroudsburg High School knew that Jack Fellman had won Saturday's game at Port Jervis and they showed their appreciation by carrying him off the field on their shoulders.

Fellman scored two touchdowns and passed for another in the 27-19 win. He ran for an extra point, intercepted two passes and made half a dozen tackles. He gained 80 yards on 18 carries.

"It was the best he has ever played since I've had him, says Cavalier coach Jack Kist.

If Fellman and company were hampered by the loss of their fullback Harold (Mach 2) Myers, they didn't show it. Myers had a rib cracked in last week's loss to Hellertown.

The Cavaliers spotted Port a 7-0 lead and a 13-6 advantage, before knotting the count in the second period.

The second half was all East Stroudsburg, with Port's final score coming on a 40-yard pass from Bill Morgan to T. A. Mackey in the closing seconds of the game.

Ankle Twisted

Fellman played almost the entire game, despite a twisted ankle that forced him out of the game for several plays in the first half.

But the senior quarterback limped for a seven-yard touchdown on a belly series play in the third period, to put East Stroudsburg ahead in the game for the first time, 20-13.

The Cavaliers used the belly series almost exclusively, with Fellman, either handing off to fullback Jim Harmon or keeping and going off tackle.

Harmon gained 48 yards in 13 tries. The halfbacks, Brian Farris and Jim Steele, also got a workout. Farris gained 60 yards in 14 carries and Steele added 41 yards in eight attempts.

Dominate Statistics

Kist's Cavaliers completely dominated the statistics, as they gained their fifth win against three losses.

East Stroudsburg picked up 20 first downs, 225-yards rushing and did not have to punt. Port gained only 53 yards against the Cavaliers but flashed a good pass offense that collected 121 yards on six completions.

"Our line looked good for a change," said Kist. "We saw our kids' heads popping across the line much quicker than they have in the past."

Kist had not been satisfied with the charge of his line in earlier games.

Port's Jack Hinkley put his team in front 6-0 early in the game, when he capped a Port drive with a one yard scoring run. The conversion run was good and it was 7-0.

Ties Score

Fellman scored late in the period on a two yarder and after Port went ahead again, flipped a 17-yard screen pass to Steele to pull the Cavaliers into a tie 13-13 at the half.

Fellman broke off tackle on a belly set-up for seven yards and six points in the third period and Steele capped the Cavalier scoring in the final period with a 40-yard run with an intercepted pass.

There is a chance that Myers may play Saturday against Nazareth, an upset winner over Northampton Saturday. Myers did some running Saturday morning and said he felt no pain.

Myers' doctor said he could play as soon as there was no pain connected with his breathing.

Palmerton Wins 14-6

Bangor Scored First But Couldn't Make It Stick

By ARMON WILLIAMS

Bangor High's Slaters ran into tough opposition Saturday afternoon and came off second best when they dropped their second game in a row, after winning six straight, to a hard driving Palmerton High eleven on the winners' field, 14-6.

Taking an early lead when Phil Falcone, the Slater fullback intercepted a Palmerton pass on the first play from scrimmage in the game and racing 37 yards to score for the Slaters, the Maroons failed to carry the distance after that point. The try for the extra point following the scamper was blocked.

Bangor had one touchdown called back in the second quarter when Bob Dawe attempting a hand off to Falcone, saw the way was blocked, spun to the outside and ran 80 yards to score. The officials, however, ruled that the play had been stopped at the line of scrimmage.

Bangor on Top

The first half was all Slaters, as they continued to pound out yardage goalward only to be stopped at the Palmerton 14 and 11 yard lines by hard snubby nosed defensive charges of the Palmerton line. Twice it looked as if the Slaters would turn the game into a rout.

But the tide turned late in the second quarter with minutes to play, the Slaters were forced to punt. A bad pass from center, and Falcone's subsquent punt attempt was blocked by the Blue Bombers on the Slater seven yard line.

From this point with Joe Carazo, Steve Kun and Luke Sebo pounding, they scored on fourth down with Kun going the final yard up the Slater middle.

Bill Heydt added the extra point via placement and the Bombers lead 7 to 6 at half time.

Start Drive

Bangor took the second half kickoff and started moving with first downs on the Bangor 37, 47, Palmerton 35 and just missing another on the Bomber 26, after grounding two passes.

The game, from this point until the latter part of the fourth quarter was fought out between the 30 yard lines. The Bombers getting possession on an interception of a Bangor pass on the Slater 11 moved over right end to score on a nine yard run by Kun, his second scoring drive of the afternoon. Heydt added the extra point via placement.

It was announced following the Saturday contest that the Palmerton Jayvees and the Bangor Little Slaters will meet in an unscheduled contest at the Bangor Memorial Park Stadium Monday afternoon at 4 p.m.

Lead State In Scoring

Warriors Snap Jinxes In 28-0 Dragon Win

By CURT PRINS
Daily Record Sports Editor

IT took East Stroudsburg State College only about 90 minutes Saturday to do what other Warrior teams needed 13 years to accomplish—score 15 points on a Cortland team.

It was a day for snapping jinxes for the Warriors, who blanked Cortland 28-0. The score was only three degrees below the temperature at game time on the southern New York field.

Since 1946 the Warriors had been able to score only 15 points at Cortland over a 13 year stretch and had not beaten the Dragons on their field since '46. The last home win for East Stroudsburg against Cortland was in 1951, when Jack Gregory, the Warrior coach, was a guard at Normal Hill.

Four Play Score

It took the Warriors only four plays to score their first touchdown but the rest of the first half to preserve it.

Four times in the first half East Stroudsburg, as a result of fumbles and poor punting, had to hold Cortland inside the 15-yard stripe, once on the two-yard line. Cortland managed to check the Warriors twice inside the 10.

Cortland never crossed midfield on a drive from its own territory and in the second half spent 30 minutes on its side of the 50.

The cold weather hurt both teams and the gate receipts. There were 13 fumbles in the game, one for every 23 customers.

Cortland bobbled the ball seven times and East Stroudsburg six, with each team recovering two of its own fumbles. Three of the Warrior fumbles were charged to freshman halfback Toby Barkman, who gained 64 yards in 10 cracks at the line.

Halfback Bill Race was the leading ground gainer, with 117 yards in 21 carries. And freshman halfback Henry Mowery, who played only in the second half, gained 90 yards on nine tries. Fullback Joe Heverin carried five times but added 39 yards to the 305 yard total the Warriors picked up on the ground.

It was the second "400" game of the year for East Stroudsburg. The Hillers hit on 10 of 17 passes for 100 yards and a 405 yard total offensive mark. Against Kutztown early in the season East Stroudsburg gained 445 yards in total offensive.

And the win, the third shutout of the year and the ninth in the last 17 games, puts East Stroudsburg only one victory away from the school record for the most victories in one season. The 1940 and '42 teams each had seven wins. The Warriers close their season next week at Indiana, which lost 19-0 to Geneva Saturday.

Lead State

The 28 points scored by East Stroudsburg, moves it into first place in scoring in Pennsylvania with 258 points. West Chester held a four point lead over the Warriors before the game but the Rams were idle this weekend.

Cortland managed only 59 yards on the ground against the "Stingy Seven" and gained only 20 yards in the last half.

Ed (Road Block) Becker, playing perhaps his best game of the year and center Dick Wolslayer accounted for 18 of the first 25 tackles in the game but then the rest of the Warriors, particularly Bruce Thomas, Harry Powlus and Sterling Brown, started breaking through Cortland's "weight wall."

The Dragon line, headed by 286 pound guard Bill Perry, outweighed the Warrior front men by 17 pounds per man.

Top Mark

It was the first time that any team had scored more than 21 points against Cortland this year and only the second time in two years. Buffalo University, a major college, beat the Dragons 68-2 last year.

Greentown Boys & Horse In Harrisburg Show This Week

GREENTOWN— Michael Smith and his horse, "Patches" have won the right to represent Wayne County at the Pennsylvania State 4-H Horse Show in Harrisburg Friday.

He is believed to be the first youth eligible to participate in the show from the county.

Mike, who is 14, placed first in the Wayne County 4-H Horse and Pony Show at Honesdale, and repeated the performance at the District Show at Waverly. This made him eligible to compete in the State meet.

He has also competed—and won — in the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Community Fair First Annual Horse Show; the Hill Meadow Horse Show in Stroudsburg; and in Wayne County Fair Horse Show. He has won altogether, a first, three seconds, two thirds, one each fourth and fifth place.

In Harrisburg, he will enter the Trail Class.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith, Mike and his horse met on Christmas Day two years ago and have been fast friends ever since. Mike is a freshman student at Southern Wayne Joint School, Newfoundland, where he has been a member of the student council.

Mike's first experience in show competition was this past summer.

fourth play of the game. The extra point run failed. Under NCAA rules, two points are awarded for a run or pass conversion and one for placement.

For almost the rest of the half, East Stroudsburg was on defense. It had only 22 more offensive changes in the first half.

Cortland missed four scoring chances in the half and it was 6-0 at intermission.

Two Stalls

East Stroudsburg drove to the Dragon two early in the third frame but Mowery was stopped for no gain on fourth down, minutes later another drive was stalled on the Cortland seven.

But Cortland could move the ball only five yards and was forced to punt. The kick traveled only six yards and the Hillers were in business again on the Dragon 18.

Race carried twice to the six and Mowery went over for the score. A Bill Lewis to Becker pass for the conversion made it 14-0.

Becker was on the end of an 11-yard scoring toss from Lewis in the fourth period. The Little All-American End candidate out-maneuvered the Dragon secondary and plucked Lewis' perfect pass out of the air with one hand. The extra-point run failed.

With less than 30 seconds left in the game freshman fullback Jan Beliveau bolted over from the two and Walt Snyder passed to Ken Hendricks, for the conversion, to close the scoring.

Hill Booters Blank Millers 5-0 For Fourth Straight

EAST STROUDSBURG State College's soccor team, prepping for its closing game with unbeaten Elizabethtown, Friday, blanked Millersville 5-0 at Normal Hill Saturday.

It was the fourth win in a row for the Warriors and their fifth win of the year, against three losses and a tie.

Outside right, Ernie Howe booted two of the East Stroudsburg goals and Dick Garham, Karl Dickl and Gene Collins collected single tallies.

The Warriors scored in every period, with two goals in the second frame. East Stroudsburg attempted 43 shots and Millersville 15.

Howe Opens

Howe opened the scoring at the 14:37 mark of the first period, with a shot in front of the Marauder net. Graham connected at the start of the second period and Howe hit on a tough ankle shot from the right side of the goal, three minutes later.

Dickl rammed in a bullet shot from 25-yards out in the third period and Collins' kick from the right side of the net closed the scoring, at 5:00 of the fourth period.

Millersville missed an opportunity to score in the first period, when Bob Hower failed on a penalty kick.

Farrell Addresses Little Leaguers

SOME 300 persons attended the fourth annual banquet of the Bangor Little League held Saturday evening in the Blue Valley Farm Show Building and heard Dick Farrell, relief pitcher of the Philadelphia Phillies recount his baseball experiences.

Farrell, one of the rookies of the year in 1957 and a star of the 1958 All Star game, urged the youth to work for perfection in the game. "Only the best get to the top, but play for the fun of playing, play to win and play for the wonderful kind of people that you find in the world of sports," he said.

Armon M. Williams, a member of the Bangor Area Joint High School faculty, acted as the master of ceremonies and paid tribute to the great success of the league and the tournament team representing the league that won the 20th district championship.

Guests Present

The welcome was offered by Glenn Grigg, league president and remarks were made by Chief Burgess Quintus LaBar. HOW CAN WE LEAD IF THEY'RE

NOT PERMITTED TO LEARN

In knowledge there is truth and power. But to have knowledge you must have education.

Today, many of our colleges and universities are already crowded. And in just ten years, college applications are expected to double.

If America is to continue as the vanguard for freedom, our colleges and universities must continue to grow.

You can help. But you must help now! Give generously! Help the college of your choice expand its facilities and pay adequate salaries to its instructors!

The leaders of tomorrow must be educated today.

Learn more about our current college crisis. Write for your free booklet, "OPEN WIDE THE COLLEGE DOOR," Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36, N.Y.

Something to think about BEFORE YOU VOTE!

(1) One of the greatest things at stake in the coming election is the well being and the financial condition of our country and how to keep it strong. Your own vote should be cast on the basis of what's good for the United States of America!

(2) The Republican Party and the Democratic Party are far apart on how best to conduct the country's business. On the one hand the Republicans stand for sound money and a balanced budget, consenting to deficit spending only in time of war or other great emergencies. On the other hand the Democrats stand for more spending, more dollars of less value.

(3) Clearly, therefore, your decision and your vote will help this country and yourself and family most if it is cast for the party of sound money and balanced budgets—and that party is the Republican Party.

(4) A candidate for the presidency of the United States, to be seriously considered, must be a man of mature judgment—a statesman—a man of sterling character—whose every act will be predicated on what's best for our country. He cannot wear the label of any one group at the expense of other great segments of the people and he must not deal for votes. Senator Kennedy has dealt for votes. He has callously made public statements downgrading the United States. He has advocated fiscal and economic policies that would, if adopted, break the treasury of the United States. He stands ready, if elected, to spend and spend and spend gigantic sums of money that must come from only one source—you the taxpayer and voter. But he has not told you this; he prefers to let you think the money is sitting idle in a vault somewhere awaiting his orders to spend at no cost to you. If he were talking about his own money we could offer a fervent amen—but up to now he has used only his vocal chords, not his money.

(5) Senator Kennedy has recklessly announced we should intervene with force of arms in Cuba. His regard for our signed agreement with the Organization of American States is low indeed. Mr. Mario G. Remo, until a few weeks ago a Democratic finance chairman, quit Sen. Kennedy and announced his support of Vice President Nixon and Mr. Lodge. Mr. Remo said if Sen. Kennedy is elected he will have us in a war within two years. Mr. James F. Byrnes, a former Democratic Secretary of State, said the presidency of the United States is no place for an immature or impetuous man. Sen. Kennedy has proved himself both immature and impetuous.

(6) Sen. Kennedy has promised to tinker and meddle with the Federal Reserve System, thereby making it a political pawn. Under President Eisenhower the Federal Reserve System is beyond politics, is managed by boards of skillful governors whose only job is to keep enough money in circulation in proper relation to our supply of gold. Under this skillful management the American Dollar has become the standard of the whole world. Vice President Nixon and Mr. Lodge promise to keep it that way.

(7) Sen. Kennedy's promise to meddle with our money system, to obligate us to spend huge sums of money overseas beyond our ability to pay out of income, has already aroused fears in the minds of European governments to such an extent that they want their pay in gold—not our dollar. The dollar is convertible into gold but if our credit is good those who do business with us will take our dollar; they ask for gold when they begin to lose faith. During this campaign Sen. Kennedy's rash statements have caused hundreds of millions of dollars worth of gold to leave us for a safer refuge overseas.

(8) The great issue in the United States today is sound money versus inflation. Inflation shrinks the value of the dollar, so much so it hurts us in the price of everything we buy, in the wages and salaries we receive for work performed, in the cost of buying a home or maintaining it if we already have one. It hurts us in employment for inflation in money inflates selling prices also and some nations as well as private citizens can no longer buy the products our factories produce — hence unemployment.

(9) Without a sound dollar and a sound economy we will be unable to deal effectively with our enemies, and our friends will not be able to depend upon us. World confidence in the United States is absolutely necessary if the free world is to remain free. The United States must not be downgraded as Sen. Kennedy is doing day in and day out. The record shows that Vice President Nixon and Mr. Lodge have, over the years, successfully kept our standing and prestige high in the eyes of the world. Let's keep it that way! Vote for Nixon and Lodge and you can have it—also support their whole team of Republicans and get Sound Money, Sound Economy, and Great Military Strength.

Your Horoscope Today

By FRANCIS DRAKE

MONDAY, NOV. 7, 1960

March 21 to April 20 (Aries) — Improvements may not please, but keep trying. The least expected often turns out well, and from there on new benefits can be reached. Be sure with whom you make agreements, plans.

April 21 to May 21 (Taurus) — A few scattered disagreements, changes, possibly a major shift in system or routine indicated. But whatever seems best, hesitate not, else losses can be greater and more may have to be redone.

May 22 to Juune 21 (Gemini) — A stimulating day on the whole — quick action may be needed. However, stop first to see that you have proper information and knew-how. Avoid extremes, but have courage.

June 22 to July 23 (Cancer) — Whether you like all your chores or not, if they are yours, tend to them promptly. With a smile, they can be less annoying, some even pleasant, could mean new contacts.

July 24 to August 23 (Leo) — Striving, as for all of us now, is the answer. Not being disgruntled or dismayed, but striking onward with renewed vigor and faith. It CAN be done, and YOU are an important factor.

August 24 to September 23 (Virgo) — There are more than a few ways to change some unwanted conditions, but you will have to show sage thinking quality, paring need to just demands. Interpret carefully; curb overindulgences.

September 24 to October 23 (Libra) Several new avenues for advancement indicated. Be sure you are on the right road and, without fuss or needless worry, proceed firmly. Activities requiring stamina and endurance favored.

October 24 to November 22 (Scorpio) — Mixed vibrations with the majority of planets in top position. Mental work, difficult projects, laborous chores can have unusual success, but conflicting influences prevail, so be mindful.

November 23 to December 21 (Sagittarius) — Jupiter's aspect advises against carelessness, mostly in little things that can create big incidents. Being forewarned in all instances should stir up commonsense action.

December 22 to January 20 (Capricorn) — Mixed influences. What you do well may not show returns immediately, but will strengthen your position soon. Accuracy, precision minus fussiness count.

January 21 to February 19 (Aquarius) — A good day for gathering data, planning for the week ahead. Writers, educators, students, matters which require dexterity and mental ability favored.

February 20 to March 20 (Pisces) —Neptune in favorable aspect, yet be cautioned that others will be touchy, anxious, etc., so you be on guard with practical rules and thinking. Shun prejudice.

YOU BORN TODAY have many strong qualifications for high-ranking success and happiness. It will mostly be a case of control, then you can roll past obstacles (they often serve to whet your appetite for bigger challenges), consolidate gains and help others reach new heights. This Zodiacal sector gives many explorers, chemists, organization leaders, statesmen, judges, accurate critics. Curb extremes, overstraining vitality. Use your keen intuition to prevent unwanted happenings. There is no height you cannot reach when you try consistently. Shun worry. Scott Says State To Go GOP PITTSBURGH (AP)—U. S. Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said Saturday that Republican presidential candidate Richard M. Nixon will carry Pennsylvania by 200,000 votes Tuesday.

Scott said he expects the popular vote throughout the nation to be close but said he is confident Nixon will get more electoral votes than his Democratic opponent, Sen. John F. Kennedy.

Is Reelected

ISTANBUL, Turkey (AP) — Istanbul University's senate has re-elected Siddik Sami Onar its president. Fikret Narter was re-elected rector of the University technical faculty. Both resigned last week in protest against dismissal of 147 university professors by Turkey's ruling National Unity Committee. Onar and Narter said they would resume their posts.

Hire Detectives To Watch Polls

HARRISBURG (AP)—Pennsylvania's Republican chairman says a corps of detectives will watch the polls Tuesday in the Democratic strongholds of Lackawanna and Philadelphia counties.

George I. Bloom declined Saturday to say how many detectives have been hired. Neither would he disclose the name of the detective agency.

"I can say the total is adequate," Bloom said.

In both counties there have been charges of fraudulent voting practices.

MR. CANDIDATE by Patrick and Vinmont

RICHARD MILHOUS NIXON

Born at Yorba Linda, California, January 9, 1913. He was graduated from Whittier College in 1934 and Duke University law school in 1937. He practiced law in Whittier, California, for five years and after serving as attorney in the Office of Emergency Management in Washington, D. C., he entered the U. S. Navy in 1942. Commissioned a lieutenant, junior grade, he was a lieutenant commander when discharged in 1946. He served as an elected Republican member of the United States House of Representatives, 1946-50, and as United States Senator from 1951 to 1953. In 1952 he was nominated Vice President of the United States and with Dwight D. Eisenhower was decisively elected. He was renominated and elected again in 1956.

As a congressman, he helped draft the Taft-Hartley act, and as a member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities gained national attention for his role in the investigation of a former State Department official. As Vice President, he has presided over the Cabinet and National Security Council meetings in the President's absence. He has been the leading spokesman for the Eisenhower administration and the President's good-will ambassador to the Middle and Far East in 1953, the Caribbean area in 1955, South Asia in 1956, and South America in 1958.

His activities mark a drastic change in the complexion of the office of Vice President and have shattered the old theory that the Vice President's job is the turnpike to oblivion. Recognition of his apprenticeship as being well spent was shown at the Republican National Convention by nomination on the first ballot as the Republican nominee for President.

Should he win in the November election, he would be the first Vice President in 124 years to be elected Chief Executive of the United States.

HENRY CABOT LODGE

Born in Beverly, Massachusetts, July 5, 1902. He was graduated from Harvard in 1924. After eight years as a reporter and editorial writer on Boston and New York newspapers, he entered politics as an elected member of the Massachusetts Legislature. Elected a member of the United States Senate in 1936, he served 14 years, taking time off after being re-elected in 1942 to serve in European and North African battle areas during World War II. He rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Army. He was the first United States Senator from the time of the Civil War to leave the Senate for military service. He resigned his elective seat in 1944 because of a Presidential ruling barring members of Congress from war service. He was elected to the Senate again in 1946. Defeated for re-election in 1952, he was appointed chief United States delegate to the United Nations in 1953 with the diplomatic rank of ambassador.

Standing firm in his belief that the United Nations is one of the great diplomatic facts of the world, he has in the eight years as the chief spokesman for the United States effectively counterattacked Communist propaganda. His hard-hitting tactics in debate and his proven ability to negotiate with the Communists have made him known to millions of Americans as the man who talks back to the Russians. He is a recognized authority on international issues.

At the Republican National Convention, he was unanimously nominated the Republican candidate for Vice President of the United States.

MRS. RICHARD M. NIXON

Patricia Ryan was born in Ely, Nevada, March 16, 1912. Always called Pat by her father, she dropped her christened name, Thelma Catherine, and took the name of Patricia. In 1913, the family moved to a truck farm near Artesia, California. Pat was 11 when her mother died, and she worked as housekeeper for her father and brothers. When she was 16, her father died. Eager and determined to gain a college education, she attended Fullerton Junior College for one year, earning her way by doing part-time work in a bank in Artesia.

A chance opportunity took her to New York where she worked as a secretary and laboratory assistant until her savings were sufficient to enable her to enter college. While a student at the University of Southern California, she earned her way working in the cafeteria, the college library and as a part-time salesgirl. She was graduated with high honors. As a teacher in Whittier Union High School, she met lawyer Richard Nixon. Three years later, in 1940, she became his wife. They have two daughters, aged 14 and 12.

Since 1946, when her husband entered politics, she has worked tirelessly in his campaigns, showing the same determination to succeed that is reflected in her early life. During the past eight years, she has traveled with her husband on his good-will missions to foreign countries, always exhibiting the qualities of a great lady.

Should Vice President Nixon be elected President, charming, accomplished and capable Patricia would be a popular First Lady in the White House.

Tomorrow: John F. Kennedy

Dear Abby

Fighting Losing Battle

Dear Abby: For 11 years I have been married to a man who has had me running in a contest with his mother. No matter what I do, his mother could have done it better, faster and cheaper. It's true, his mother is a very able woman, but in my own way I do all right, too. If he eats something at her house that he likes, I try to make it for him at home, but it never comes out like hers. (Maybe I try too hard?) His mother knits things for him, so I learned to knit, but he never wears my things—only hers. I really like his mother, but she makes everything so difficult for me because she is such an expert. Am I childish for feeling hurt and how can I overcome it?

NO MATCH FOR MAMMA

Dear No: Don't try to compete with your husband's mother. She is at least 20 years ahead of you, and always will be. Use a little originality, and quit knocking yourself out trying to top someone who became tops through years of practice and experience.

Dear Abby: Bill (not his real name) and I are very much in love, but we are not old enough to get married without our parents' consent. We thought if we HAD to get married they would sign for us, so we went ahead and followed that plan. Now it turns out that our parents refuse to sign for us. Bill is on probation and we were told the authorities would force him to marry me after getting me in this condition, but we discovered that wasn't true, either. Can you help us, Abby? I am 15 and Bill is 14. I want to keep my baby, but everybody is against it.

IN TROUBLE

Dear In Trouble: Better do as your parents advise, Kids; otherwise, with this start, you could be in trouble the rest of your lives — and you both have a long way to go!

Dear Abby: I have been reading a lot lately about people who have "willed" their eyes to a blind person. I am over 21 and would like to do this. How do I go about it, please?

JAY L.

Dear Jay: Get in touch with an International Lions Club or the Medical School in your area for full particulars.

Dear Abby: Maybe you can help us barbers. Why do women wait until Saturday to bring their kids in for haircuts? These women have all day. Why can't they bring them in after school? When working men come into the barber shop on Saturday, it is always full of kids.

Also, we barbers would rather have fathers bring in their kids than the mothers. The women stand around the chair and tell the barber how to cut hair. I wish the days would come back when no respectable woman would be seen in a barber shop.

BARBER

If you want a personal reply from Abby, write to her in care of this paper and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. She answers all letters.

Nothing short of our own errors should offend us.

Kennedy Has Good Lead

Doubtful States Biggest Factor

WASHINGTON (AP) — the eve of the election, Democrat John F. Kennedy evidently has opened a healthy electoral vote lead over Republican Richard M. Nixon and appears within striking distance of winning the presidency.

But in gauging the election battle tides, the Associated Press, found that many states —several of the bigger ones among them—remain in doubt. A number of them are believed inclining to Sen. Kennedy, a couple to Vice President Nixon.

Nixon could overtake and beat Kennedy by capturing a significant segment of the doubtful states and by wresting some of the states where Kennedy's lead is considered slight. Of course, Nixon would have to keep his own group intact. In various states, the undecided—or silent—vote is believed big enough to tip the balance.

The survey — encompassing the judgments of AP political observers, newspaper analysts, and party leaders, as well as certain poll findings—turns up this breakdown:

Kennedy rated out front in 15 states with 197 electoral votes—72 short of the 269 minimum needed to win. In all, there are 537 electoral votes.

Nixon credited with setting the pace in 17 states totaling 112 electoral votes, 85 behind Kennedy and 157 short of the minimum needed for election on Tuesday.

In the toss-up class 18 states accounting for 228 electoral votes—more than either man had to his credit.

This represented a substantial pickup for Kennedy over an AP survey three weeks ago when Nixon was given a lead in 19 states with 141 electoral votes, Kennedy in 14 states with 129 electoral votes, and 17 states with 267 votes were listed as doubtful.

This final pre-election survey indicates these states may be listed under Kennedy's name, with his margin ranging from substantial to tiny:

Alaska (3), Alabama (11), Arkansas (8), California, Connecticut (8), Georgia (12), Louisiana (10), Maryland (9), Massachusetts (16), Nevada (3), New Jersey (16), New York, Rhode Island (4), West Virginia (8), and Wisconsin (12).

In Alabama and Georgia—and in doubtful Mississippi as well—a Democratic popular vote victory would not necessarily assure Kennedy of all the electoral votes involved. And in Louisiana there is a rival slate of electors.

Only five of the 11 electors on the Democratic ticket in Alabama are committed to the Massachusetts senator. The other six are not pledged to anyone.

All 12 of Georgia's Democratic electors are unpledged, but a majority of them have announced their support of Kennedy.

Louisiana has a states rights slate bidding for the state's 10 electoral votes. They are not pledged to anyone.

Two slates of Democratic electors are competing for Mississippi's 8 electoral votes. One slate is pledged to Kennedy, the other is unpledged.

These may be placed under Nixon's name, also by varying degrees:

Delaware (3), Florida (1), Idaho (4), Iowa (10), Indiana (13), Kansas (8), Maine (5), North Dakota (4), New Hampshire (4), Nebraska (6), Oklahoma (8), Oregon (6), South Carolina (8), South Dakota (4), Utah, Virginia (12), and Vermont (3).

The doubtful states viewed as possibily leaning to Kennedy — Mississippi (8), Minnesota (11), Missouri, North Carolina, Ohio, Tennessee (11).

Tossup states possibly inclining to Nixon—Kentucky and Wyoming.

The other uncertain states — Arizona (4), Colorado (6), Hawaii, Illinois, Michigan (20), Montana (4), New Mexico (4) Pennsylvania (32), Texas (24), and Washington (9).

Clark Gable, 59 Suffers Attack

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Clark Gable, 59, the King of the movies, suffered a heart attack Sunday, his doctor reported.

After Gable was taken to Hollywood Presbyterian Hospital and examined, Dr. Fred Cerrini described the attack as a coronary thrombosis, saying: "His condition is good and he is resting comfortably."

The physician added: "Fortunately I ordered Mr. Gable under oxygen as soon as I was told of his condition and sent him to the hospital."

Cardiographic tests were made at the hospital.

Gable's wife Kay went with him. She is expecting a baby in March which will be the first child for Gable.

"He is resting comfortably and they have given him a lot of medicine," said Mrs. Gable. "The doctors are leaving and will return later tonight."

She said he will be confined to the hospital for some time.

Also at the hospital was Howard Strickling, director of publicity at MGM and long-time friend of Gable. He said he and Gable had planned to look at a horse Sunday but the actor telephoned Saturday saying: "I feel too lousy to look at horses."

Mrs. Gable called Strickling Sunday morning and told him her husband was feeling worse. Strickling advised her to call a doctor immediately.

As far as is known Gable had no previous history of a heart condition. Only Friday he was working on a movie, appearing in a scene with Marilyn Monroe for "The Misfits."

At that time all he could talk about was his impending fatherhood.

"This is a dividend that has come to me late in life," he told a reporter. "When I wind up this picture I'm taking off until after the baby is born in March. I want to be there and I want to be there a good many months afterward.

"I've made 90 pictures in my time and I want to be with the baby."

Kennedy Outlines Aid For Students

EN ROUTE WITH KENNEDY AP — Sen. John F. Kennedy, campaigning all day long before spectacular Sunday crowds, promised Sunday to work, if elected president, until a college education is available to every American with the talent to pursue it.

The Democratic nominee made this pledge in his final bid for New York's 45 electoral votes with another foray into normally Republican Suffolk County.

He spoke there before a wildly screaming, cheering crowd that overflowed the Commack, Long Island, Arena and spread out all around the meeting place outside.

Kennedy went into Suffolk County after previous speeches, starting after midnight, before large and enthusiastic turnouts in New Haven, Bridgeport, Waterbury and other Connecticut cities. He chose the Long Island arena for a prepared address proposing a system of higher education measuring up to every American's capacity rather than to his race or means.

Scholarships

He proposed federal scholarships for a limited number of needy and qualified students — perhaps 15 to 25,000 initially.

"Such a federal scholarship program — paying a substantial portion of expenses," the candidate said, "would enable thousands of bright young Americans who otherwise could not afford to do so to pursue their educations full time."

Kennedy also proposed increased federal loans to needy students under the National Defense Education Act as well as through a new student loan insurance program. At the same time he proposed "an adequate college housing program" to enable schools to keep pace with increasing enrollments, and for construction of technical and medical schools.

He was almost mobbed by well-wishers as he made his way to the arena. Hundreds surged against his car in an effort to shake his hand or touch him. Police estimated the crowd at 9,000.

Kennedy in his arena speech said it was vital for him to carry New York State with its big chunk of electoral votes if he is to win the election.

Expresses Thanks

In a brief speech on his arrival at MacArthur Airport, he expressed thanks to the crowd for waiting patiently in the cold for his arrival. At that point he told his listeners that "my wife came from this county," and added: "I hope Suffolk County — which is not noted for Democratic strength —will go Democratic on Tuesday."

Kennedy told a crowd in New Haven, estimated from 20,000 to 45,000, that recently published reports of a sharp increase in unemployment helped prove the error of his presidential rival's arguments.

He said reports of U. S. Information Agency polls showing a decline in American prestige and the prospect that automobile manufacturers will have a million unsold cars on hand by the middle of next month give further support for his contention the Democrats will have to take over to start America moving.

Over and over again he taunted his Republican presidential opponent, Richard M. Nixon, for what Kennedy said was an effort to convince the American people "the country never had it so good and its prestige was never higher."

Kennedy contended that "unless we make a greater effort there will be a military gap." He also said that steps must be taken to remedy a situation under which "we would have more unemployment now than in any time since 1958."

Actually, Kennedy started his campaigning in Connecticut in the wee small hours. A crowd estimated by the police chief at 26,000 gave Kennedy a wild welcome to Waterbury at 3 a.m.

He began his day by attending Mass at the Immaculate Conception Church in Waterbury where he spent last night.

Everywhere he went he was greeted by large turnouts along the highway.

From New Haven, Kennedy proceeded to Bridgeport where he addressed a crowd in the railroad station estimated by police at from 55,000 to 60,000.

Mother Saves Child From Den Of Snakes

SPARTANBURG, S. C. (AP)—A mother jumped into a den of poisonous copperhead snakes to save her 2-year-old child. Neither the mother nor the baby boy was hurt.

There were holes which appeared to be fang marks in the child's rubber pants, but he was examined at a hospital and no puncture was found in his skin.

The incident occurred Thursday in the community of Startex near here.

The child, Donald Williams, was playing in his back yard and fell into an abandoned, 6-foot-deep septic tank which had been covered by planks. He fell into water at one end of the hole and three copperhead snakes were on some boards at the other end.

Good Morning!

VOTING MACHINE — Sandra Mader, of N. Ninth St., Stroudsburg, shows how simple it is to cast a ballot on voting machine. She is pointing to panels showing names of candidates. Party levers are at left.

How To Split Ticket

"SPLITTING the ticket" in elections is a growing trend in American politics.

For those desiring to split their ticket, one procedure is as follows:

When told by one of the election board officials that the machine is ready for your vote, step into the booth and move the red handle to the right of the machine. This will close the curtain and unlock the machine to register your voting preferences.

Facing the voter will be the parties, names of the candidates and the offices for which the candidates are running.

Above each candidate of your choice is a small lever. Move the small lever downward. When this is done a small "x" will be seen. This is the candidate the vote will be cast for. Repeat this procedure for each office.

One other way to "split the ticket" is to pull the party lever after closing the curtain, then push up the levers of the candidates for whom you do not wish to vote, and pull down the levers on the corresponding columns for the candidates for whom you wish to cast a ballot.

The voter is now ready to register the vote. This is done by moving the red handle to the left.

With this action the vote is registered and the curtain will open allowing the voter to leave.

This is one of several methods used to "split the ticket."

Record Turnout Of Voters Is Seen In State

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvanians are expected to go to the polls in record numbers Tuesday with 32 possibly decisive presidential electoral votes at stake.

One of the most intensive political campaigns in Pennsylvania history will be settled during the 13 crucial hours the polls are open —from 7 a. m. to 8 p. m., EST.

The importance of this state's bloc of electoral votes was underscored by the total of 28 days the four national candidates spent in active campaigning to carry pivotal Pennsylvania.

President Eisenhower made two appearances in the state in behalf of Republican presidential nominee Richard M. Nixon and vice presidential candidate Henry Cabot Lodge.

Sen. John F. Kennedy, Nixon's Democratic opponent, and Lyndon B. Johnson, the Democratic vice presidential nominee, also were frequent visitors to the Commonwealth. Former President Harry Truman made one visit in behalf of the Democratic candidates.

Record To Post Election Returns

RETURNS from the General Election will be posted on a bulletin board in front of The Daily Record building tomorrow night.

The results will be made known as quickly as they are received in the newsroom from the County Election Board.

First returns are expected about a half hour after the close of the polls at 8 p.m.

The complete election returns will appear in the election table to be published in Wednesday's Daily Record, along with detailed stories from local, state and national contests.

The driveway leading to the newspaper building will be barricaded to vehicular traffic for the safety of the spectators. The public is invited to park in one of the Daily Record's parking lots or on nearby streets while watching the returns being posted.

The public is also reminded that the election polls will open at 7 a.m. Tuesday and remain open until 8 p.m.

Nixon Proposes Good-Will Tour

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Vice President Richard M. Nixon set forth Sunday night a plan for President Eisenhower to join after he leaves office with former Presidents Harry S. Truman and Herbert C. Hoover on a goodwill visit to the Iron Curtain satellite nations of Europe.

In a coast-to-coast television address as he started a final whirlwind drive for election to the presidency, Nixon said he already has talked this over with Eisenhower "and he assures me that he is more than ready to carry the torch of freedom on such a journey into the states of Eastern Europe."

Nixon, Republican candidate for the White House, said further that Eisenhower had suggested, "and I fully agree," that the two other living ex-presidents, Mr. Herbert Hoover and Mr. Harry Truman, be invited to join in carrying the message of peace and friendship to the comomn peoples of the Communist states."

In Washington, White House press secretary James C. Hagerty said he would have no comment on Nixon's proposal.

Most of Nixon's 30 minute address — he called it "the most important half hour of the campaign" — dealt with the world situation. However, in an apparent allusion to the controversy in some areas over the Roman Catholicism of his Democratic rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy, the vice president said: "There is no legitimate religious issue in this campaign. Sen. Kennedy and I differ as far as our faiths are concerned, but we both have faith in God...you should vote for neither me nor him on the basis of religion."

Shortly before taking off for Alaska, Nixon also proposed that representatives of the Communist satellite countries in Eastern Europe be invited to visit the United States next year, "and travel here as they see fit under official auspices."

Nixon said this would give such representatives the same opportunity to see America which Soviet Premier Khrushchev had when he first came to the United States last year.

Nixon went before television cameras to record his nationwide broadcast for use later in the evening after he had departed for Anchorage, Alaska, 50th state on the campaign trail which he hopes will lead to the White House.

Before taking off, Nixon—in a statement—accused his Democratic rival, Sen. John F. Kennedy, of proposing to undermine the Selective Service military draft with a program "obviously concocted for campaign purposes."

In the prepared text for his TV address, Nixon said regarding his Eisenhower - Truman - Hoover proposal:

States Proposed

"Representing as they do virtually all the American people, regardless of their political affiliation, these three men who have held the most important elective office in the free world are uniquely qualified to carry our message of good will and state the case for peace and freedom behind the Iron Curtain.

"If they are willing, I would extend my warmest invitation to them to join President Eisenhower in this crusade.

"I say to the Communist leaders, if you believe in your system —if you believe that our grandchildren will choose your way—you can have no objection to allowing your grandchildren to look upon and hear the words of these American statesmen."

Nixon recently announced that if elected he personally would visit such European Iron Curtain countries. So far, however, there have been no indications whether an official invitation would be forthcoming from such nations.

Claiming he has won his home state, vote-rich California, Nixon started a whirlwind drive to the election finish line with a new blast at Kennedy.

The charge was aimed at Kennedy's plan under which young Americans could serve in a "peace corps" abroad with U. S. technical missions as an alternative to military duty under the draft.

"Here is another example," Nixon said in a statement, "of Mr. Kennedy's fast and flashy technique of proposing a program that looks good on the surface but which is inherently dangerous. The presidency is no place for a man who acts first and thinks later."

Vote Early, Avoid Rush

A reminder to all voters is that the polls will remain open from 7 a.m. until 8 p.m. tomorrow.

Those registered to cast their votes in this important presidential election are also urged to vote early in the day. This will avoid the possibility of congestion and inconvenience later in the day.

N.Y. Bomb Blast Kills 1, Injures 13

NEW YORK (AP)—A powerful dynamite explosion killed one person, injured 13 others and mangled a subway car at an underground station in the heart of Harlem Sunday night.

The blast—apparently not the work of New York's crazed "Sunday Bomber," who has been blamed for four other explosions since Oct. 2—wrecked a car of the express "A train to Harlem" of jazz music fame.

The victim and most of the injured were not immediately identified. The injured were rushed to three different hospitals.

The explosion left the subway car of the train—halted at the time beneath 125th Street and St. Nicholas Avenue—a twisted mass of smoke and blood. Until help arrived, the injured helped each other, improvising bandages and tourniquets.

Mysterious homemade bombs have exploded four times near famous places during the past 35 days. Three occurred on Sundays and the other on Columbus Day.

But Police Commissioner Stephen P. Kennedy said this latest blast apparently resulted from dynamite. He said he doubted that the "Sunday Bomber" was responsible.

The explosion was the first to kill anyone. Some of those during October caused injuries, however.

George Metesky, New York's "Mad Bomber" of the 1940s and 1950s who was captured in 1957, never killed anyone with any of his many bombs.

About 30 passengers were in the car.

Patrolman Rupert Cobb said he heard the explosion and leaped downstairs to the lower of the station's two levels.

"Smoke was pouring from the car. The platform was foggy with smoke. I got into the car and heard a woman screaming faintly "Please help me. Please help me," he said.

"Her legs had been blown off. She was sitting on one of the seats and then she fell over. She died within minutes."

Methodists Exceed Goal In Appeal

STROUDSBURG area churches have reached or exceeded their goals in the $3,300,000 Forward Fund for Christ appeal being conducted by the Philadelphia Methodist Conference.

This was announced yesterday by Rev. Dr. Alexander K. Smith, general co-chairman, following initial reports in the appeal among approximately 140,000 members in 357 churches.

Rev. G. H. Miller, pastor of the Tannersville Charge, reported 129 percent pledged from the Tannersville, Reeders and Wesley Churches. Lay chairmen are John Rinker and Mrs. B. H. Granacher at the Tannersville Church; Carl Price and Mrs. Warren Smith at Reeders Church, and James N. Canfield Jr., and Mrs. James N. Canfield Sr., at the Wesley Church. A total of $9785 was pledged at the first report, representing 129 percent of the suggested goal.

The Stroudsburg Church pledged $20,679 or 100 percent of its goal. Rev. R. C. Stimson is pastor and Howard Chester is men's chairman of the appeal.

A total of $27,688 was pledged from the East Stroudsburg Church. This also represented 100 percent of its goal. Rev. Harold C. Eaton is pastor.

These area churches were among 32 to reach or exceed their goals at the end of the first report period.

PITTSBURGH (AP)—The Pennsylvania branch of the National League of Postmasters announced Friday that the next president is being asked to help set up a better relationship with postal employes.

The Pennsylvanians, in their monthly publication now in the mails, call attention to a resolution adopted Oct. 22 at Gettysburg.

The resolution calls on the next president to ask his postmaster general to meet with representatives of the various postal groups quarterly "to discuss mutual problems of the postal service."

Copies of the resolution are being sent both presidential nominees, a spokesman for the group said.

Urges Gambling Be Legalized

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The October grand jury has recommended that gambling be legalized in Pennsylvania.

The jury, in its report to Judge Bernard J. Kelley at the end of last week, said the state should supervise and regulate gambling and that profits should go to health, welfare and educational agencies.

The jury said also it was shocked to hear that a political leader in the community offered to bet $25,000 on the outcome of the election.

Ward Bond, Actor, Dies

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — A saddened duo is all that remained Sunday of one of the most successful triumvirates in movie history—Director John Ford, John Wayne and Ward Bond. Bond died Saturday.

Ford was mentor and Wayne and Bond starred in some of the screen's all-time classic Westerns. Wayne combined leading man good looks with his rugged frame and thus overshadowed Bond until TV's "Wagon Train" made him a star.

But unlike the usual run of actors, the success of Wayne in the movies never affected the friendship of the two buddies who first met as tackles on the Southern California football teams of the late Howard Jones.

County Set For Election Tomorrow

THE political scene is set for the last big move. While political candidates toured the counties and presidential candidates covered record-breaking trips, the citizens sat and listened.

Now the candidates will sit back as the citizenry goes out to express its honored obligation—that is, to vote.

The county's registration has reached a record high for the general election.

The Democratic party has 11,720 registered to vote. The Republican party has 8,054. The combined registration of other parties is 270, making a total of 20,044.

The big issue locally in the political circles is the Van D. Yetter, Jr. (D), and Hanford L. Cleveland (R), battle for the state representative role.

Rival Candidates

Yetter, a Democrat is the incumbent who hails from Marshalls Creek. He is a farm equipment and house trailer dealer. Yetter has been the party's biennial candidate for the state House since 1952. He was elected in 1954, lost fo his rival in 1956, but was victorious again in 1958. He is seeking re-election.

Cleveland, who served as state representative for two years in 1956, is a resident of Craigs Meadow. He operates a plumbing business in East Stroudsburg. The Republican candidate won by a margin of 210 votes when he defeated the Democratic rival in 1956.

The two Smithfield Township neighbors provide the only local contest on the ballots, aside from the three-county congressional contest.

Nationally, the Monroe County voters will have to decide on U.S.'s next president. The 20,044 registered voters must make a choice between the Democratic slate of John F. Kennedy, for president and Lyndon B. Johnson, for vice president; or the Republican nominees of Richard M. Nixon, for the presidency, and his running mate, Henry Cabot Lodge, as vice president.

Walter-Horn Race

In addition the county must help to decide on the 15th District Representative to Congress. The district includes the counties of Carbon, Monroe, and Northampton.

Incumbent U.S. Rep. Francis E. Walter, D-Easton, is seeking reelection against his Republican, Woodrow A. Horn, of Palmer Township, near Easton.

Walter has held the office for the past 28 years and is seeking his 15th term as local representative to U.S. House.

In the last presidential election, Walter won by 1,192 votes. In 1958 he outpolled all other candidates on the ballot receiving 8,627 votes to 5,413 for his opponent.

These three battles figure to cause the most concern for the voters of Monroe County. However, statewide election offices will also have to be decided.

The State Treasurer contest pits Democratic Grace M. Sloan against Republican rival, Charles C. Smith. The Auditor General position has Robert F. Kent, Republican and Thomas Z. Minehart, Democratic, vieing for the state position.

Judgeship post in the state finds Republican incumbent Blair F. Gunther matched against Democratic rival Gerald F. Flood. Flood is from Philadelphia. Gunther is from Fox Chapel.

Pocono Jointure Groups To Meet

Members of the committee, school board and authority are urged to be present at the stated times so that the business can be transacted promptly.

DEMOLISHED—Car driven by Norman J. Holdorff, 25, of Shawnee, jumped a curb, sideswiped a tree and crashed into Trader's Feed Store as he traveled east across the inter-borough bridge into East Stroudsburg. Driver Seriously Hurt When Auto Crashed Into Building

NORMAN J. Holdroff, 25, of Box 25, Shawnee-on-Delaware, was taken to the Monroe County General Hospital after being removed from his car, where he was pinned in the wreckage, after crashing into the wall of Trader's Feed Store in East Stroudsburg yesterday at 4:31 a.m.

Holdroff's left leg was pinned in the wreckage by the front seat of his car. Police from East Stroudsburg and Stroudsburg worked 20 minutes before they were able to free the leg.

He was taken to the hospital with one tooth knocked out, lacerations of the face and possible fractures of the skull and pelvis.

In a late report from the hospital last night he was reported in "fair condition."

Patrolmen Harry Lanahan and Harold Larison, East Stroudsburg police, said that Holdroff was traveling east across the inter-borough bridge at the time of the accident.

"Holdroff's car struck the island as he entered East Stroudsburg then hit the curb, blowing three tires, jumped the curb and continued east sideswipping a tree and finally coming to a stop after crashing into the Trader's Feed Store," Larison said.

Lanahan added, "The car hit the building with such force that the bales of hay stored next to the wall were knocked 30 feet across the building. The hole knocked in the building was about three feet wide."

The two East Stroudsburg patrolmen realized they needed help fast to remove Holdroff from the twisted wreckage. They called Stroudsburg police via the inter-borough radio control center and were given a helping hand.

Holdroff will be arrested on a chage of reckless driving, the investigating officers said.

The car is a total loss.

Boy Suffers Head Injury When Struck

DANIEL PAUL Schaller, 4, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard J. Schaller, of 508 Scott St., Stroudsburg, was taken to the Monroe County General Hospital Saturday at 5:50 p.m. after being struck by a car at the intersection of Ninth and Sarah Sts., Stroudsburg.

In a late report from the hospital his condition was listed as "good." He is being treated for a fracture of the skull.

Operator of the car was Garry Glick, 18, of Bethlehem, who was traveling north on Ninth St., at the time of the accident.

Glick told Stroudsburg police, "I was traveling at a slow rate of speed with my windshield wipers working and my lights on. I could see people in the road and I slowed down more.

Saw Pedestrians

"I saw the two women (Mrs. Schaller, the child's mother, and Mrs. Hogrelius, the child's grandmother) and the child. Each woman ran in a different direction after seeing the car approach," he continued.

Police believe each woman thought the other had the child by the hand.

Following the accident, police said they tested the brakes of the car and found them to be in good condition

At the time of the accident the highway was wet from the rain falling at the time.

Police are continuing the investigation.

Woman Hurt In Accident On Rte. 611

ONE WOMAN was injured slightly in a two-car accident Saturday at 11:40 p.m. at the intersection of Bridge St. and Route 611.

Lester Rice, assistant chief of Stroud Township police, identified the drivers as Lawrence W. Englehart, of Staten Island, N. Y., and Saylorsburg, and Edward J. Chellis, of Florham Park, N. J.

Injured in the accident was Mrs. Lawrence Englehart who was taken to the Monroe County General Hospital and treated for an injured neck. She was released following treatment.

Englehart told police he was traveling north on Route 611 and was about to make a left turn into Bridge St. Not being sure of the exact location of the turn he stopped.

"I saw the lights of the car coming in back of me and I began to continue north to avoid being hit from the rear." A collision resulted, however.

Rice listed damages to the cars as the left rear fender of the Englehart car and right front fender of the Chellis vehicle. He estimated the damage at $200 to each car.

How Will You Be Counted?

A record outpouring of voters, possibly as many as 65,000,000, will cast ballots tomorrow in the presidential election.

Will YOU be one of them? Or will you be counted among the stay-at-home citizens who prefer to save their energies until AFTER the election to criticize the actions of those elected to power?

The failure of millions of people to exercise their sacred right to vote is one of the reasons for weak candidates often being elected to office.

Americans still enjoy more freedom and more opportunity than any people who have ever lived. But the question is: for how much longer shall we enjoy our freedom and our opportunity?

Most of us seem to act as if the privilege of freedom and opportunity are rights. Even more, most of us take them for granted and act as if they were permanent possession which can never be taken away from us. Nothing could be more wrong.

In the entire history of human life, freedom and opportunity have been unique, hard-fought privileges earned and enjoyed only by a minority who have kept fighting to retain them.

Since the rise of Communism more and more people of the earth have been enslaved: some who once enjoyed freedom, some who only glimpsed it, some to whom freedom was never known. The latter never fight for their own freedom, because they've never known what freedom is.

We who still enjoy freedom must fight for it if we want to keep it.

In all the world America is the strongest bastion of freedom and opportunity that prevents world domination by the Communist slave state. How strong we remain determines whether America and Americans will survive. And right now, it is far later than most of us think.

Keeping freedom and opportunity alive within America is the responsibility of every individual. Right now that responsibility is still comparatively easy to discharge. It means having the courage of one's convictions.

It means standing up and being counted in elections: local, state and national, in union elections, in school elections, in elections in any group or organization. Fortunately, it does not yet mean risking one's life against the treachery of armed Communism.

But it will come to that sooner than you think if we as individuals do not take the trouble to defend freedom and opportunity here at home while we still have it by voting in the coming elections and all that follow.

The Lost Frontier

Whatever became of the New Frontier?

The election is not many days away; yet in all the millions of words, Senator Kennedy has neglected to unveil anything resembling his promised bold new plan for a brave new world.

That might be considered par for an election-year course, and certainly we do not mean to say that Vice President Nixon is offering anything startling novel.

But it is Mr. Kennedy who is attacking what Mr. Nixon must to a considerable extent defend, Mr. Kennedy who insists he will get a supposedly stagnant America off dead-center and charging into the New Frontier, Mr. Kennedy who says this is one of the most fateful elections, at home and abroad, in American history.

So what have we been hearing from Mr. Kenedy? An assortment of political promises proffered to old folks, farmers, communities; the rugged pork barrel, honored only by time; more foreign aid; much more Federal spending in general, along with artificially "cheap" money.

This is the New Frontier? This is how to move America forward? It sounds like nothing so much as the recipe for the Thirties, which has little indeed to do with the problems of the Sixties. In Mr. Eisenhower's phrase, America is asked to go "galloping in reverse" to this thing called a New Frontier.

Not only is this program largely irrelevant; it can do harm to try to apply the nostrums of the Thirties to today's problems in the mistaken belief the situations are the same. In these 30 years the U.S. has had a surfeit of Federal interventions and controls, of reckless Government spending and inflation-breeding Government deficits.

It is not true that this process can go indefinitely without real trouble; signs of trouble are already apparent in the foreign fears about the stability of the dollar if inflationary policies are again to be pursued here.

To impose a new inflation on this nation just as it has been achieving a considerable degree of price stability would be a cruel joke. It would not achieve the higher rate of real economic growth in the name of which it would be undertaken. It would hardly help the U.S. in its foreign relations, the area in which Mr. Kennedy is so particularly interested.

What, in fact, does Mr. Kennedy offer in the foreign field? He has expressed some debatable views on purely tactical matters regarding places like Quemoy and Cuba; also some rather foggy notions about "saving" Africa and India with much more aid.

But nowhere is there anything that could be called a new foreign policy. Essentially the Kennedy policy is a continuation of the Eisenhower policy of resisting Communism. Where it differs it is not a newness so much as oldness; it has overtones of a former time when this country was more disposed to take Communist words at face value.

If it is new, it is in the rather simple assumption that a still more centralized American Government can somehow right all the world's wrongs.

Reliance on Government is, indeed, the key to the New Frontier. More and more Government will solve all problems; the farm problem, for example, will be solved by taking over the farmers. Unfortunately Mr. Kennedy gives little evidence that he recognizes any limit at all to Government enlargement.

Uncommitted Vote

The decision in 1960 puzzles the pollsters because of the enormous size of the uncommitted voters. Actually, it is unbelievable that so many voters should not, by now, know whether they are going to vote for Nixon or Kennedy. Why, then, do they not declare themselves?

In the first place, many state that they are uncertain because they favor or oppose one or the other for reasons which they themselves reject subconsciously. Among such emotional responses are the religious issue, the beauty contest, the glibness of the debates.

Thus, the uncommitted voter is holding off saying how he is going to vote because he anticipates that he may make a last moment change. Usually, in Presidential elections, there are few last moment changes. James Farley goes by the rule that the voter's decision is generally made just after the conventions. That has not been true this year.

New York State, with its 45 electoral votes, is a big prize in this campaign. Vice President Nixon left the management of that state to Governor Rockefeller and Senator Jacob Javits. It was most unfortunate because neither of them has done anything like an adequate job for Richard Nixon.

Senator Javits knows New York City politics and the very complicated racial and religious complex of this largest city of the nation. Professionals of both parties say that he was sabotaged both as to timing and as to the centers he visited.

If Vice President Nixon carries New York City or New York State, it will be because of the religious issue. Unfortunately this was revived by two factors: One, the insistence of the Puerti Rican Roman Catholic bishops that it is a sin to vote for Governor Luis Munoz Marin because he favors birth control and secular schools.

No matter what happens in Puerto Rico, the attention paid to the activities of these bishops on two Sundays, the failure of the Vatican to denounce them, and the widespread use of heir activities by Republican propaganda helped Nixon.

The other factor is that various organizations of bigots have accelerated their propaganda of hate. Many Catholics who dislike John Kennedy dislike even more the anti-Catholic propaganda. They will vote for Kennedy not because they prefer Kennedy as much as they take umbrage at anti-Catholicism.

Those who are conducting the anti-Catholic propaganda are not Republicans. They are Protestants who sincerely and fanatically believe that the Roman Curia dictates the conduct of every government headed by a Catholic.

Religious movements usually run deep and when they come to the surface, their impetus can be riotous. It is unfortunate that at a time like this, in world affairs, such a question should arise in the United States.

It is not likely to die down soon. For what has been raised in this campaign are many local issues, such as the large increase in parochial schools and high schools, the use of public buses by children going to parochial schools, tax exemption for church property, etc., etc.

These questions have nothing to do with the Presidential campaign but they are the side effects of the hate campaign against Catholicism.

Should John Kennedy be elected, the Republican Party will immediately face a battle for control between Senator Barry Goldwater, the Conservative leader, and Governor Nelson Rockefeller who will move to the left of the Democrats.

Whereas Goldwater's conception of the loyal opposition will be for Congress to put a brake on the expenditures of an inflationary Democratic Administration, Rockefeller is likely to contend that the Democrats are not doing enough.

Most of the remaining Republicans will follow Goldwater, but Rockefeller will immediately put his presently quiescent organization in high gear to capture the 1964 nomination of his party.

A Nixon victory would, at any rate, continue the Eisenhower-Nixon image of the party; a Nixon defeat would also be an Eisenhower defeat. The Conservatives, under Goldwater, would seek Democratic support because Republican Conservatives are weary of being associated with radical Keynesian Republicans such as Senator Jacob Javits, Clifford Case, etc.

They want a party which can have a clear-cut, distinct, meaningful program. They will, wherever they can, form an alliance with Conservative Democrats. They will therefore watch the vote in Virginia more closely than the vote in New York; to them Texas is more significant than California.

Irresponsible Charge

Dear Sir:

I have listened with regret to the irresponsible charge cited against our Congressman from Easton and though he needs no defense with most of us, still I would like to present a few facts.

Congressman Walter has a record that needs no apology, it happens to be one of the best and we can be proud that this area produced a man of this calibre. To attack him with such a charge is not only incompetent, it is downright insulting and displays ignorance of current legislative and national events.

The truth is, Congressman Walter presided over every session of the Legislature wherein controversial or other important bills were presented. The presiding officer is selected by leaders of both political parties—therefore, Congressman Walter was honored by being selected.

Furthermore, the President himself selected the Congressman from Easton as one of two delegates representing this country at the Migration Convention in Europe last spring.

This was a signal honor and if he were not the man most conversant with the subject, he would not have been selected from among the Democrats. He was absent on this mission for several weeks. This was official business — not absenteeism.

The record shows that such bills as were presented in his absence were passed by majority votes in the hundreds and were unimportant to this area. While his public record is open to all, I wonder how much is known of the individual service he has rendered the "little" fellow?

In my work during the war I came in contact with hundreds of people daily and it was not long before I noted that the name of Congressman Walter had become a legend with serviceman and their families when it came to a helping hand.

He has myriads of friends who know him for a fair, honest gentleman who will always extend them a helping hand if humanly possible. He is well regarded by all these ex-servicemen and their families and they certainly must resent this attempted smear at his record.

Of course this propaganda can only be a smoke-screen to cover the inability of the originator to produce one legitimate reason why the public should oust a great statesman from a job well done to substitute a man with no comparable background, no qualifications in the field, no experience — and in an era fraught with ever-increasing complexities.

Wage Tax Is Issue

Dear Mr. Editor:

As a taxpayer and registered voter of Monroe County and keenly interested in affairs politic, I take exception to the following, and would appreciate your printing such in your "Letters to the Editor" column:

On Thursday, November 3, there appeared in your paper the coverage of a talk before the Middle Smithfield Democratic Club, by Rep. Van D. Yetter, under the heading "Yetter Against Wage Tax."

Yetter stated: ". . . that he will not vote for a state wage tax." . . . "the wage tax is really not an issue in this election."

I not only beg to differ with Rep. Van D. Yetter on this statement—but challenge him that it is.

When Yetter campaigned for his present term in office, he ran advertisements in the Daily Record in which he stated that he would not vote for a wage tax. Now, let's see just how that worked out.

On Aug. 11, 1959, it was announced that the House of Representatives passed the Lawrence-sponsored State Graduated Income Tax Bill—with a solid Democratic backing. Several days later—August 17, Rep. Van D. Yetter stated that he voted for this measure.

Therefore, Rep. Van D. Yetter is in grave error when he states to the people of Monroe County that ". . . this wage tax is not an issue in this election."

It is an issue—and will remain so—unless we have men who will stand up and vote no! and fulfill the pledge they made the people back home.

Fortunately, for the great mass of people of this Commonwealth—we have a State Constitution which prevents various political factions from forcing their will upor the people — in that this proposed State Graduated Income Tax must first pass several sessions of the Legislature before they can bring it to a referendum ballot. Shall we let this come to pass?

It appears that the present state administration is bent on taxing the working man and his family out of existence—as this proposed State Graduated Income Tax will inflict another cut into family income.

The undersigned is committed to serve on a committee dedicated to keeping an accurate record of the various candidates in office for the coming term. Only in this way will the people have a clear and accurate picture of how these candidates voted on the various bills passed —with particular attention to tax measures in Harrisburg.

In closing, I wish to express my thanks and appreciation to the Daily Record in printing the above.

THE HEADLINERS

Life made a tough bargain with Liz Taylor. It gave her beauty, gold and glory—and made her pay for them with personal and physical misfortunes. Her latest ailment has been page-one news. The gilded prison of Miss Taylor's childhood helps explain many of her problems. Director George Stevens observed: "She worked on the set every morning and spent three hours in the MGM schoolroom every afternoon. She had no time to play, no contact with other children. Between takes, she was sent to a vacant room somewhere to study." Miss Taylor recalls: "In school at the studio, we weren't even allowed to stop to daydream. So I used to escape to the girls' room to daydream."

Such is the ironic story of a star who became a dream girl to millions — and discovered many nightmares in reality.

Jean Harlow's name popped into the headlines following a magazine's startling charge that she was murdered. One of Movieville's pioneer sex queens, her life was burdened with the same melancholy streak that torments most Hollywood bewitchers. Professional success and personal tragedy. Miss Harlow passed at 27 . . . Actually, she was the victim of curable uremic poisoning. Her family's religious beliefs prevented medical care until it was too late.

The formation of that shapeless mass known as success is full of fateful streaks. Nevertheless, certain qualities are essential: Time, toil and talent . . . Carol Lawrence is this season's teevee wonder girl. A lovely, talented doll, she deserves her starcess. Her springboard was the Broadway click "West Side Story." As a consequence, numerous newsstories hailed her as an overnight success. It was a long over-night for Miss Lawrence. She began performing when she was 7-years-young. It required seventeen years of effort before Miss Lawrence reached the pinnacle.

Smut is considered artistry and depravity is supposed to be a form of entertainment. Hence, it is refreshing to report that "The Unsinkable Molly Brown" is a wholesome musical. It is enhanced by Meredith Wilson's melodies.

The Allen-Scott Report

Bonus For Victor

By Robert S. Allen and Paul Scott

Washington — The winner of tomorrow's tense presidential election has an unusual victory bonus awaiting him.

The new President will be able to gain control of practically all of the major regulatory agencies of the government within six months after he takes office next Jan. 20.

That's an exceptional situation, and quite different from the one that confronted President Eisenhower in 1953. It took him several years to secure Republican domination of these key bodies that regulate virtually all of the nation's business and industries — from stock markets to cosmetics.

But thanks to a combination of circumstances, the new President will be in a position to largely recast these far-reaching regulatory agencies within a few months.

These unwonted factors are: (1) Expiration of the terms of a number of commissioners, some of them even before he is inaugurated; (2) refusal of the Senate to confirm appointments made by President Eisenhower.

Democratic leaders of the chamber deliberately blocked that with their eye on the presidential election. Privately they made no bones of that.

The reasons are obvious from the following:

National Labor Relations Board — which could be transformed into a pro-labor agency by next August. At present it is management inclined, with only one of the five members, Democrat John Fanning, generally siding with labor. But the next President will have two vacancies to fill, thus giving him a majority of this highly important Board.

One vacancy is immediate, resulting from the Senate Labor Committee's pigeon-holing of the President's selection of Arthur Kimball for a five-year term. The other opening is the expiration in August of the term of Joseph Jenkins.

Federal Power Commission—which also can be wholly reorganized by next summer. By June the new President will be able to name three of the five members of this agency that has extensive authority over electric and natural gas rates. Two of these important appointments will await him when he takes office, due to the Senate's refusal to approve the nominations of Paul Sweeney and Thomas Donegan. The third opening will occur in June when Commissioner Arthur Kline's term expires.

Civil Aeronautic Board — another instance where the new President will be able to take over immediate control. The present partisan line-up in this agency is three to two Republican. But the first term to expire is that of Republican Commissioner John Bragdon — next month; thus opening the way for the new President to install his "swing man."

Interstate Commerce Commission — where two vacancies will await the new President, one of them the chairmanship of this body that regulates the railroads and truckers. The term of Chairman John Winchell expires next month. Also the Senate balked at confirming the President's appointment of Timothy Murphy. The Bostonian was named as a Democrat, but this was hotly challenged on the ground he has seconded Vice President Nixon's nomination at the 1956 convention in San Francisco.

Federal Trade Commission — where the political balance can be immediately shifted because the chairmanship is up in the air. The Senate stalled the reappointment of Chairman Earl Kintner for a new seven-year term. Under the law, he retains office until his successor is approved. Present party line-up in this agency is three Republicans and two Democrats. A new chairman could directly reverse that majority.

If Vice President Nixon is elected, Kintner has told friends he will be renamed and "given a free hand." He does not expect to be kept on if Kennedy is the victor.

The Money Tree — The Civil Service Commission has a list of juicy patronage jobs all ready and waiting for the new President.

Informally known as the "plum list," the compilation records the titles and salaries of some 3,000 appointive jobs with pay ranging from $12,000 to $18,500 a year. Cabinet posts are not included in this list.

Accompanying this patronage list, Commission Chairman Roger Jones has another of outstanding career government employes he feels should be named to many of these jobs. Most of these civil service workers know these jobs thoroughly and in many insances have filled them until political appointments were made.

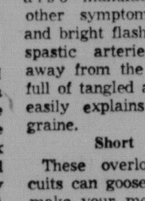
But their prospects of getting these prizes are not very bright regardless of who wins.

Inside You And Yours

Headaches

By Burton H. Fern, M. D.

Someone is pounding a bass drum with a sledge hammer inside your head. Black comets streak between bright flashes in front of your eyes.



Migraine has struck again!

Why?

Doctors are full of ideas but no answers. Migraine used to mean one-sided headaches—the word migraine is French for "half the head." But the march of medicine has trampled this half-head meaning into the ground.

Today's migraine can be one-sided, both-sided or no-sided. Special tummy aches are considered "abdominal migraine," even though the head feels fine.

Many Symptoms

Migraine isn't just any headache. It throbs and thumps -- often one-sided still! Black blind spots, cold blue skin, a bounding pulse and a nervous stomach all add to migraine's misery.

Usually, automatic nerves insure smooth control of blood vessels and internal organs. These nerves—called autonomic nerves—constantly relay signals from unconscious brain cells which never sleep.

Short circuits, overloaded lines or just plain plastic can break down this mysterious biological automation. Blood vessels shrink and tighten without reason. Stomach and intestines shift into high gear, back up or stop altogether. The heart either zooms ahead or slows down to under sixty.

Hammer-Like Pulse

Migrains headaches are also triggered by this overload autonomic nervous system. Certain blood vessels inside the brain clamp off cramp-preventing oxygen. Other arteries stretch and relax until each heartbeat pounds with a hammer-like pulse.

Mixed-up autonomic nerves also manufacture migraine's other symptoms. Black spots and bright flashes explode when spastic arteries detour blood away from the eyes. A tummy full of tangled autonomic nerves easily explains abdominal migraine.

Short Circuits

These overloaded short circuits can goose-pimple the skin, make your mouth water and force vomiting all at once.

Through troubled autonomic nerves, European doctors are trying to link migraine with high blood pressure, early baldness and premature graying.

Now what disrupts nervous automation?

All sorts of monkey-wrenches can foul up this biological machinery. Epilepsy can trigger convulsion-like autonomic signals. Allergy can bypass all the wiring and make its own chemical signals.

Many victims inherit some special susceptibility. The troubled mind often throbs with migraine. Instead of blowing your top, fierce headaches explode.

What Helps?

Aspirin can take the edge off mild migraine, but real relief lies in prescriptions for ergot-like drugs. Ergot chemicals tighten blood vessels until throbbing stops. You bounce back as your pulse loses its bounce. Newer drugs sometimes help, but not as regularly as ergot.

Personality-soothing helps prevent future migraine. Drugs, talk and hypnotism have all been used to smooth out emotional wrinkles. They don't really smooth anything; they merely move the wrinkles elsewhere.

But it still feels mighty good when those throbbing wrinkles are pushed away from the head.

Social Security Guide

Q. Would you please advise me what I should do about social security for a cleaning woman I'm going to have come into my home every two weeks?

A. If you pay her as much as $50 cash wages during a calendar quarter, you must report her wages for social security purposes. A "quarter" is a three-month period beginning with the months of January, April, July, and October. Now as to how much the tax is and how you pay. The tax is now 3 percent for the employe and 3 percent for the employer, or a total of 6 percent of the total amount paid. The tax is not paid to the Social Security Administration but to the Internal Revenue Service. Once you have notified the Internal Revenue Service that you will have a domestic employe, they will put you on their mailing list and every quarter send you the form necessary to report the wages and pay the tax. You may contact either the Internal Revenue Office or your nearest social security office for information on how you can be placed on the mailing list.

Pennsylvania Story

How Much Cost?

By Mason Denison

Harrisburg — Tomorrow — election day 1960 — will be a day unquestionably destined to have much to do with the shaping of things to come in Pennsylvania in the next two years.

Much has been said — much has been done — much has been written.

But Tuesday, Nov. 8, 1960 is the "silent day."

It is true that a president and vice-president will be elected before the balloting is over tomorrow night.

Pennsylvania will also name 30 members of Congress from this state.

Each office in its own way will have much to do with the moulding of national policy—the charting of the course of the United States in the next two years until another new Congress is named.

But closer to home, almost painfully close, are equally decisive steps that will be taken tomorrow by the Keystone State electorate — steps that may well effect the everyday living of Pennsylvania in the next two years more than any other single factor.

For example, the complexion of the 1961 State Legislature — which meets little more than two months hence — will be painted tomorrow.

All 210 seats in the House of Representatives are up for filling on this election day 1960, along with half of the 50 State Senate seats.

The key question in everyone's mind here in the State Capital is whether the Democratic Lawrence Administration is to be favored with a pro-administration Democratic House and Senate — or an anti-administration Democratic House and Senate — or an anti-administration Republic-controlled General Assembly.

(The latter actually can be accomplished of course by GOP control of only one of the two houses as was the case in the 1955 session, the 1959 session — and the current still-in-being 1960 session.)

And — in the final analysis it boils down to the simple question of whether Pennsylvania taxpayers are willing to pay more for additional and expanded state services.

Pennsylvania is now operating with a record-breaking near-two billion dollar budget. The budgets for the next two fiscal years (the two remaining years of the Lawrence Administration) cannot help but exceed the two billion dollar-mark.

A pro-administration Legislature in 1960 would assure the granting of virtually every request the administration may submit.

On the other hand Republican legislative leaders have vowed a continuing policy of sharp tightening of the purse strings should they gain control of the 1961 General Assembly — following the pattern they have already established.

Either way additional funds over and above those already provided will be needed to meet an expected deficit — and previous commitments.

But it is the composition of the 1961 Legislature that will determine "how much" will be provided by Pennsylvania's taxpayers.

It is worth noting perhaps that a number of the ambitious programs advocated by the Lawrence Administration withered on the fiscal vine during the past 1959 legislative session as controlling Senate Republicans hoisted the red fiscal flag. In the current campaign this has been a bitter point of contest on the part of partisan Democrats.

Thus, in a nutshell, how much additional Pennsylvania taxpayers are going to pay and the manner in which this is to be paid in actuality may be largely determined tomorrow!

At stake on this election day 1960 is the pattern of everyday living Pennsylvania residents can expect to have set for them in the next two years — not only in fiscal matters but in nearly every walk of life.

In other words, there is all this — in addition to the presidency!

The Daily Investor

Reverse Split

By William A. Doyle

Q. Does a reverse split mean that a company buys back its common stock?

William A. Doyle

A. Not at all. In a reverse split, a company issues new stock to replace old stock and ends up with fewer shares of the new stock outstanding.

Let's say that you own 500 shares of common stock in XYZ Corp. and that XYZ goes through a one-for-five reverse split. After the reverse split becomes effective, you would own 100 shares.

You might be required to turn in your 500 shares of the old stock in order to receive the 100 shares of the new stock. Or you might not. You might keep it and paper your walls with it.

No matter how the details were worked, the new stock issued as a result of the reverse split would represent ownership in the company. The old stock would not.

Because the reverse split affected all the outstanding stock in the company, the 100 shares you would own after it became effective would represent the same percentage of ownership in the company as the 500 old shares previously did.

What five old shares represented, one new share will represent.

This, of course, will be reflected in the market price of the stock. The market value of each new share will be five times that of each old share — give or take a bit for price fluctuations in the market place.

Q. Why does a company put through a reverse split of its common stock?

A. It's usually done after the market price of the stock falls way down. It's sort of a matter of corporate dignity. Many outfits don't take to the idea of their stocks selling at very low prices.

Q. I was advised that, before I buy stock in any company, I should look up the number of shares outstanding. Is there any particular reason for this?

A. There are a number of reasons. Some of them are important. Some aren't.

Outstanding shares of stock represent ownership in a company.

By multiplying the number of outstanding shares by the market price of the stock, you get the total value that the investing public has put on ownership of the corporation.

A big corporation will normally have many more shares outstanding than a smaller corporation.

However, there are many more important things to consider. You should look at a company's earnings and its earnings per share, its past record, its future prospects and many other things.

You should study everything about any company before you make a decision on buying its stock.

Marine Corps Reserve To Collect Toys

MONROE County members of the Third Motor Transport Battalion, USMCR, Wyoming, will open their annual "Toys For Tots" drive for new or usable toys in the county today, Staff Sgt. Harold Jacobsen, Monroe County Toys for Tots chairman, said last night.

Organizations and businesses participating in this year's drive are the George N. Kemp, American Legion Post, East Stroudsburg; Pocono Mountain Junior Chamber of Commerce and the Sherman Theater.

It is the hope of the drive to realize more than 6,000 new or usable toys. These will be given to the Salvation Army, which will act as the distributing agency in Monroe County for the toys collected.

Toy Matinee

A matinee is scheduled for the Sherman Theater, time and date to be announced. Admission will be a new or usable toy. Present at the theater will be members of the reserve unit and members of the organizations aiding in the drive.

The drive is not limited to toys alone. Anyone having clothing that has been outgrown and could be used by one of the families in the county may donate them and the clothes will be distributed.

Those having toys or clothing too large to transport to one of the collecting points are urged to contact the American Legion after 6 p.m. any day of the week and one of the reservists will call to make the collection.

Last year the Toys for Tots drive reached a goal of 5,500 toys. The goal this year is increased 500 and the Marines are asking the help of the people of Monroe County to open up their hearts and make this drive another success.

"We of the reserve program from Monroe County make this appeal annually. It is our way of showing the community that we want to help in being a part of the civic life," said Staff Sgt. Jacobsen.

Walter Hits Injection Of Religion

REP. FRANCIS E. Walter charged Saturday night that injection of Sen. John Kennedy's religion into the current presidential campaign is "un-American."

Speaking before a rally of more than one hundred persons at the Central Labor Union in East Stroudsburg, Rep. Walter said that the choice in this election is between Sen. Kennedy, "who is a great Liberal, courageous and able statesman" and "a man who, on the other hand, is a politician, pure and simple."

Congressman Walter, who is chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities and a leading opponent of Communism, said that Sen. Kennedy "is thinking and fighting for a strong America—an America that will be able to meet the kind of attacks we can expect internally and externally."

"If Jack Kennedy belonged to any other church, there would be no campaign because he has proved himself to be far and away the better qualified of the two candidates. Yet the Republicans have kept this issue alive, constantly, by reminding people of it—even when they say that it should not exist," Rep. Walter said.

Backs Kennedy, Yetter

The veteran Congressman urged the election of Kennedy, and the return of Monroe County Rep. Van D. Yetter to the Lesislature in Harrisburg.

"It is just plain common sense that the people of Monroe County should vote for Van Yetter because Governor Lawrence and a Democratic Administration will be working for Pennsylvania in Harrisburg for two more years. Monroe County must have a man in Harrisburg who has access to the Administration. Van Yetter has served the people of this County well during his two terms in the Legislature and the County needs his support in the State Assembly these next two years," Rep. Walter said.

Accusing Republicans of "frantic, almost hysterical efforts to prevent what looks like an overwhelming defeat at the polls next Tuesday," Rep. Walter said that "the American people are not going to be deceived by the fact that a great military leader turned politician is now trying to drape his mantle over the very thin shoulders of a vice president."

Walter charged that most major American newspapers and governmental agencies agree that America's strength and prestige have declined. "There is going to come a day when not only our defenses but everything else in our nation will be second best," he said. "On Tuesday, we decide whether these newspaper articles are wrong and everything is rosy or whether we do need a change. I don't think the American people can take a chance on four more years of the same old thing in Washington."

Yetter assailed Republicans in the State Legislature for their failure to pass the tax on stocks and bonds which would have provided funds for education.

Sales Tax

"The Republicans won't pass a tax which would be based on the ability of people to pay—they want to make the wage earner pay through the nose with the sales tax because it is the wage earner who is hit hardest by sales taxes," Rep. Yetter said.

"The Democratic party has always been opposed to a wage tax and so have I during the 1959 session of the Legislature, we passed a resolution calling for a referendum which would let the people of Pennsylvania decide, by their own votes, whether they would rather have a sales tax or a graduated income tax based on ability to pay. The Democratic Party feels that the people, themselves, should have the right to decide which method they prefer—but the Republicans would rather cram a tax down the wage earner's throat."

Rep. Yetter told the group that $17 million forth of roads and bridges have been constructed in Monroe County during the two Democratic administrations in Harrisburg and that programs for the future would raise this total to $90 million in the next ten years.

"If you just take a ride around the County, you can see that the Democratic Administrations in Harrisburg have been very good for Monroe County. All this talk the Republicans are coming out with now during an election campaign about 'no taxes' might be fine—but promises don't mean a thing if they don't fulfill them. The record shows that the Republicans never have kept their promises. The record shows that the Democrats do," Rep. Yetter said.

Other speakers on the program included Earl Bohr, treasurer of the Pennsylvania AFL-CIO; Stuart Pipher, president of the Monroe-Pike Central Labor Union, who opposed Yetter in the Democratic primary and called for Yetter's re-election to the General Assembly "for the good of all the people of Monroe County." Carl Woolever, chairman of the CLU Committee on Political Education; District Attorney James Marsh, who reminded those present of the importance of getting out the vote and County Auditor James Cadue.

Post Office Robbery

AYLESBURY, England (AP) — Thieves broke into a post office in this Buckinghamshire town Saturday night, blew open a safe and stole stamps, cash and registered letters worth $159,600. Postmaster Walter Oughton discovered the theft Sunday morning and said the robbers clearly used the bangs of firecrackers during Britain's annual Guy Fawkes celebration to cover their activities.

International Scholarship Program To Be Extended

BUCK HILL FALLS — The international scholarship exchange program conducted by the World Council of Churches will be expanded to include professional and technical scholarships for Asia, Africa, and Latin America. For the first time scholarships for lay men and women will be provided.

The administrative committee of the division of Inter-church Aid and Service to Refugees of the World Council meeting at the Inn, endorsed proposals which enable the group to help students in programs other than theological training. At the same time it voted to expand its theological training program to include men and women.

The purpose of the scholarship programme is to strengthen the churches and to increase their consciousness of the need for Christian unity. Under the programme 1600 students have studied abroad in seminaries of denominations other than their own.

During the current academic year 133 students hold scholarships. Of these 26 students from nine African countries are studying in Europe and Asia. This is in addition to the ecumenical scholarship exchange program of Church World Service of the National Council of Churches in the United States. Twelve students from Asia, six from Latin America, 82 from Europe, five from the U.S.A., and one from New Zealand are enrolled in the 1960-61 programme.

Most Places

Most of the places in one hundred seminaries in Europe and Asia are provided without charge by the institutions and travel grants made by the churches and missions. The World Council makes the selection of students from candidates recommended by national committees.

Under the enlarged programme special scholarships would provide for theological training for women. The lay scholarship program will encourage the formation of national committees to assist young men and women from Asia, Africa, and Latin America who are not theological students. Sixty such students are receiving advanced technical training as a project of the German churches now.

Other proposals are for training and orientation for young people living and working abroad in service projects and for short courses for students from Asia, Africa, and Latin America studying in Europe and the United States. A pilot project in 1961 will include short courses for African students at the end of their studies in Britain, Europe, and North America. They will evaluate their significance of their studies and view technical aspects of their work in the context of Christian vocation.

The new program will be undertaken immediately. The budget for operation expenses of administering the scholarship programme has been increased fro. $45,000 to $60,000. The Rev. Harry Morton, a former missionary in India, has recently joined the staff of the World Council of Churches, Geneva, Switzerland, to coordinate the scholarship programe.

Another Milestone Passed

THIS MONTH marks another milestone for Van D. Yetter Jr. and his Farm-Industrial Machinery and Mobile Home business. It was just 26 years ago this month that Yetter was awarded a dealership from The Caterpillar Tractor Co., which started him off in this business.

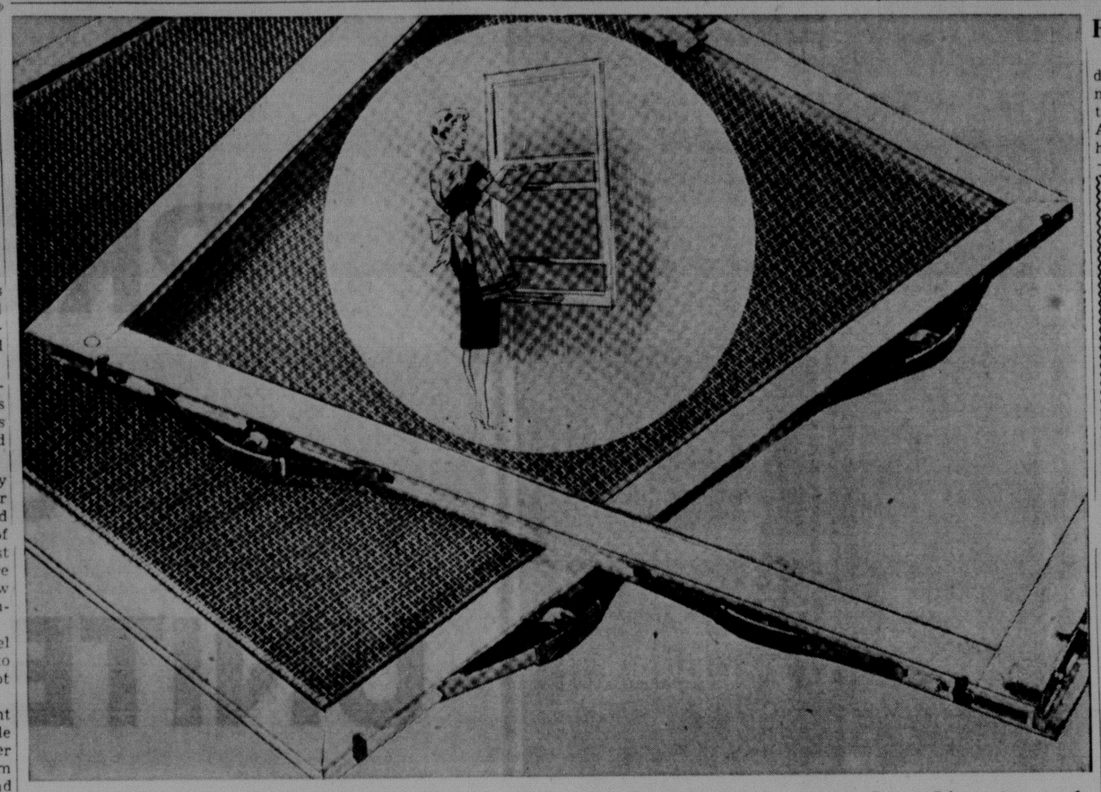
Although the business has expanded to include other lines and franchises, Caterpillar is still one of the most favored tractor lines today.

At Yetter's office and display yards along Route 402 near Marshalls Creek you will find one of the largest selections of Mobile Homes in Northeast Pennsylvania. Some of the more popular include, Ventura, New Moon, Marlette, Pioneer, Vindale and Airstream.

You'll find most any model from the small camping size to the luxurious 10 foot by 50 foot living models.

Other lines of equipment handled by Yetter include Homelite and McCulloch power saws, Massey Ferguson farm and industrial equipment, and popular lines of gardening equipment and power mowers.

Here is a business that has grown and prospered during the past 26 years by keeping pace with the changing times and trends. As new products are produced and there is a market here in Monroe County you can be sure that these will be added to Yetter's growing business.



JECTOR-LITE, the ultimate in storm windows and screens is now available at Sheldon Newell's of 129 Huston Ave., in Stroudsburg. Jector-Lite Windows are of all-incased triple track construction. Ease of operation is assured through the use of DuPont "Zytel" facings, a low-friction nylon material, extremely resistant to wear. Jector-Lite glass and screen panels employing "Zytel" never require lubrication and always slide easily. You can learn more about these amazing storm and screen units by visiting Newell's or by calling HA 1-7430.

Restoring Brushes

IF BRUSHES are worn and dry, soak them in a good commercial brush cleaner. Soak until bristles are soft and pliable. Another method of reclaiming hard brushes is to soak them 10 to 24 hours in a warm solution of 3 pints of water and 1 pound of sal soda. When the brushes are soft and pliable, wash thoroughly in warm, soapy water.

It Makes Sense To Give Half Your Products Away

IT MAKES sense for a manufacturer to give half his products away?

"Sure, it does — if he's doing it to make a point," says Robert Van Worp Sr., who estimates his paint company has given away more than 5 million gallons of free paint, enamel and varnish in the past nine years!

Van Worp, founder of Mary Carter Paint Factories, originated "every second can free" as a paint merchandising idea. Here in Stroudsburg, he is represented by Jack Muehlhan, who operates a Mary Carter franchise store at 5 South 6th St.

The free paint policy began as a mistake that worked out so well he decided to keep right on making it!

His first newspaper advertisement was supposed to read: "Get a free can of paint with all the paint you buy." Instead, it read: "Get a free can of paint with every can you buy." At the end of the first day's business, he found he'd moved 1,600 cans of paint and had money in the till for only 800!

Financially, it was a disastrous day for the budding paint maker, but Van Worp figured the volume he'd done was worth repeating on a regular basis.

Since then, every quart or gallon of Mary Carter paint sold has been matched with another quart or gallon, free of extra cost.

A stove top splashed with fat from a frying pan is easily cleaned with a cloth dampened with vinegar.

Both Parties See Gains At Polls

By Congressional Quarterly

WASHINGTON — Both Republicans and Democrats see some fertile ground to make 1960 Congressional and Governorship gains in elections in the 12 Eastern states. But, barring a sweep for one of the Presidential candidates, major shifts in party control are unlikely.

In their 1958 sweep, Democrats picked up three Eastern Senate seats and 19 Eastern House seats. The only likely Democratic Senate gains in 1960 would be Massachusetts and New Jersey, but Republican incumbents are favored in both those states. The Democratic Senate seat in Delaware is in jeopardy.

In the Governorship sweepstakes, six Republican and only one Democratic seat are at stake in 1960. Republicans have a good chance to win the single Democratic Governorship (in Massachusetts) but their own Governorships are in jeopardy in Delaware, Maine, New Hampshire, Rhode Island and West Virginia.

Of the 129 House seats from the Eastern states, Democrats now hold 71 and Republicans 57. Thirteen of the Democratic seats and eight of the Republican seats are in the Doubtful column this year, but a strong sweep for Democratic Presidential nominee John F. Kennedy in New York, New Jersey or Pennsylvania might endanger several other GOP seats.

Eastern Roundup

Here is a quick look at each state:

Connecticut—Kennedy is favored to carry the state, but unless his margin is very high, Republicans may unseat up to three incumbent Democratic Congressmen who were swept into office on Gov. Abraham A. Ribicoff's coattails in 1958.

Delaware — Republican nominee Richard M. Nixon is given an edge in the fight for the state's electoral votes, but Democrats are favored to win the Governorship now held by J. Caleb Boggs (R). Boggs, however, has a good chance to unseat incumbent Sen. J. Allen Frear Jr. (D).

Maine—Nixon appears to have the strong edge, Sen. Margaret Chase Smith (R) appears unbeatable, but the Governorship race between incumbent John H. Reed (R) and Rep. Frank M. Coffin (D) is very close. Republicans may pick up Coffin's House seat.

Maryland — The Presidential race is expected to be close, but Republicans have an even chance to unseat two Democratic Congressmen.

Massachusetts — All observers expect Kennedy to carry his home state, but Henry Cabot Lodge's presence on the Republican ticket may lessen the majority. Incumbent Sen. Leverett Saltonstall is favored over Springfield Mayor Thomas J. O'Connor Jr. (D), who defeated Gov. Foster Furcolo (D) in the Democratic Senate primary. Republican John A. Volpe, former Federal Highway Administrator, has a chance to win the Governorship in a contest with Secretary of State Joseph D. Ward (D).

New Hampshire — Despite an anticipated Nixon victory, Republican Gov. Wesley Powell is in danger of being defeated by Democrat Bernard L. Boutin. Powell survived a bitter primary fight to win the nomination, and has many enemies in both political parties. Sen. Styles Bridges (R) and the state's two GOP Congressmen are sure bets for re-election.

New Jersey—In the face of a predicted Kennedy victory in New Jersey, Sen. Clifford P. Case (R) is given a better-than-even chance to win re-election over lackluster Democratic opposition. But up to five Republican Congressmen could be defeated if Kennedy wins the state by a wide margin.

New York — Many observers believe Kennedy leads in the fight of New York's 45 electoral votes. If he were to win by a large majority, up to 14 Republican Congressional seats could be in jeopardy. If the Presidential election is close, two Democrat seats may be in serious danger.

Pennsylvania — The outcome of the Presidential race in Pennsylvania is still in doubt. Several Republican seats in heavily Catholic areas might switch to the Democrats, or Republicans might pick up one or two currently Democratic House seats if the vote divides sharply along religious lines. Four Democratic seats and one GOP seat are currently listed in the Doubtful column.

Rhode Island — Kennedy is counted a sure winner, and Democrats should hold the Senate seat of retiring Theodore Francis Green (D) with their surprise primary winner, Claiborne deB. Pell. Republican Gov. Christopher Del Sesto is in a close re-election race against Lt. Gov. John A. Notte (D). Democrats lead in both House races.

Vermont—Nixon is expected to win Vermont easily, and the Governorship is sure to remain Republican. Freshman Rep. William H. Meyer (D), who surprised the country by winning the traditionally Republican House seat in 1958, is likely to lose this year. His opponent is the incumbent Republican Governor, Robert T. Stafford.

West Virginia—Kennedy is favored to win the state's electoral votes, but the underlying religious issue could endanger his chances and those of one or two Democratic Congressmen. In the Senate race, popular Sen. Jennings Randolph is a heavy favorite for re-election over Gov. Cecil Underwood (R). Democrats are favored to take the Governorship, but scandals may endanger their chances.

Just Between Us — —

It wasn't mud our local politicians were throwing on Saturday afternoon — it was rice — and not at each other but at the newly-married Mr. and Mrs. John Savitt as they left St. Paul's Lutheran church.

Both the Clevelands and the Yetters were at the wedding and it did seem like a lot of politicians in the intimacy of the small church. But during the ceremony, nobody was thinking about politics — not even the candidates.

There is something very moving about a wedding in a small church. The audience is so much a part of the wedding party and there's so much surcharged emotion within such a little space that dry eyes are the exception rather than the rule.

But everybody had perked up at the reception, where even the salads came in heart-shapes, marked with the names of Jack and Kathleen.

Politics popped up again, however, at the banquet at the VFW on Saturday night honoring the Past Commanders and Past Presidents, but in the form of table favors from both candidates: combs, after-dinner mints, hand lotion and ball-points.

It wonders me why some enterprising ways and means chairman hasn't thought of having an Election Party with all the campaign give-aways of all the candidates sort of like a Sample Fair.

Pocono Garden Club Tuesday

Tannersville — The Pocono Garden Club will meet Tuesday afternoon at 2 p.m. at the firehouse in Tannersville.

Mrs. Madalyn Maloney will be the guest speaker on "Christmas Decorations and Madonnas."

MR. AND MRS. John Paul Savitt with Rev. William F. Wunder following their marriage at the St. Paul's Lutheran Church on Saturday.

Miss Kathleen LeSoine Bride Of John P. Savitt

Miss Kathleen Anne LeSoine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Irving LeSoine of East Stroudsburg RD 2 was married on Saturday afternoon at 2 to John Paul Savitt of Stroudsburg in the St. Paul's Lutheran Church, Craigs Meadow.

Mr. Savitt is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Edward Savitsky of Lansford.

Rev. William F. Wunder performed the ceremony before an altar decorated with bouquets white chrysanthemums and figi mums. White bows marked the end of the pews and Janice Mosteller as soloist sang "Because" and the hymn "O Perfect Love" and "The Lord's Prayer" as they knelt at the altar.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a dress of white satin floral brocade imported from France, designed by her sister, Miss Ruth LeSoine.

The fitted bodice had a scoop neckline, and long sleeves with a satin belt above the full, ankle-length skirt. A crown of seed pearls and brilliants held her veil of net, and she carried a bouquet of autumn red and white bud roses with white camellias.

The maid of honor, Miss Ruth Ellen LeSoine, and the bridesmaid, Miss Carol Marie LeSoine, also a sister of the bride, wore identical gowns of beige satin floral brocade from France, in cocktail length with cap sleeves and scooped neckline. Sequined crowns held their veils of scalloped net and they carried nosegays of white and yellow carnations.

Malcom Whittier Pennington of New York City, N.Y., was best man. Ushers were James Albert and Robert Huffman.

The bride's mother wore a dress of loden green taffeta with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations. The bridegroom's mother wore brown lace over pink taffeta with brown accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

A reception for about 100 guests was held at Ross Common Manor which was decorated with floral sprays. A buffet supper was served from a decorated table and there was music by the Keats, Byron and Shelly Trio.

Leaving for a wedding trip to Boston, Mass., the bride wore a suit of brown hopsacking tweed with gold accessories. On their return they will make their home at 60 Broad St., Stroudsburg.

The bride is a graduate of East Stroudsburg High School and is attending East Stroudsburg State College where she is a staff reporter for the Stroud Courier.

Daily Record Supporting Van Yetter For Reelection

One week from today, Monroe County voters will go to the polls and elect their representative in the Pennsylvania General Assembly.

They will make their choice between the incumbent, Rep. Van D. Yetter, Democrat, and the challenger, Hanford L. Cleveland, Republican.

Mr. Yetter has served two terms in the Legislature — terms that were interrupted by the one two-year term served by Mr. Cleveland.

As a member of the majority party of the House, Mr. Yetter was able to accomplish much in the matter of legislation during his four years in office.

His seniority has paved the way for his appointment to a number of important standing committees: Highways Townships, Boroughs, Game, Fish and Agriculture, and several special committees.

It is this experience and seniority in Harrisburg which convinces us that the interests of Monroe County would be served best by the reelection of Mr. Yetter.

Our support of the incumbent assemblyman is further enhanced when the coming election is viewed from the standpoint of who has done the most for Monroe County during his service in Harrisburg. Here, again, we must side with Mr. Yetter.

During his two terms, Rep. Yetter sponsored or co-sponsored a total of 46 bills in the House. Of these, 25 passed both House and Senate and were signed into law.

His name was on four measures providing the money and making it possible for the state to clear the streams, build flood control dikes and rebuild the roads, streets and bridges that were damaged by the 1955 flood.

Other bills with which he was associated include those making an appropriation to the Department of Commerce for the promotion of Pennsylvania (thus creating more business for Pocono Mountains resorts); allowing New Jersey and Pennsylvania to cooperate in building dams on the Delaware River; eliminating the requirement of waiting a week for unemployment benefits when unemployment resulted from a flood or other disaster, and authorizing abatement of real estate tax if property was destroyed or damaged by the 1955 flood.

Among the Yetter-sponsored bills approved by the 1959-60 session of the Legislature were those requiring the Highway Department to erect signs notifying motorists of the penalty for throwing trash or rubbish along roads; clarifying enforcement of the sales and use tax and placing the burden of proof on the Department of Revenue; requiring the Highway Department to issue permits for movement of oversize and overweight equipment at county offices of the department, and an emergency appropriation to the Pennsylvania Industrial Development Authority. This money is used to bring new industry into the state and to help small firms expand and increase local employment.

Many of the measures he sponsored or co-sponsored have brought great benefit to Monroe County and its people. To ignore such service to the constituents he represents would be inflicting a major injustice upon Rep. Yetter.

Surely, Mr. Cleveland's record on service to Monroe County did not measure up to either of the two terms served by Mr. Yetter.

In fact, Mr. Cleveland himself gave evidence of his desire to step out of politics when he accepted a pension for the term he was in office. In other words, he actually retired himself when he accepted the pension benefits.

These, then, are the factors which have shaped our decision to endorse Rep. Yetter. We urge all voters in the county to support his candidacy at the Nov. 8 election.

—o—

The second in a series of editorials giving our reasons for endorsing certain candidates for office will appear tomorrow. It deals with the U.S. House of Representatives.

Vote Frauds In Luzerne Are Charged

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP) — The Republican chairman of Luzerne County asked the State Senate Sunday to investigate what he described as irregularities in issuing absentee ballots.

In a telegram to Sen. William Z. Scott (R—Carbon), chairman of a special Senate investigating committee, Joseph J. Gale, the party chairman, said:

"I respectfully request your committee to investigate absentee ballot irregularities in Luzerne County. I also suggest that you bring these matters to the attention of the proper federal authorities before this vital election is bought or stolen by unscrupulous politicians."

By the way of explanation, Gale said the Democratic-controlled county registration department and election board had made it very difficult for Republicans to get absentee ballots, while others were getting thousands.

Scott Advised

Scott told a newsman that he had received the telegram and on Monday would ask the U. S. attorney in Scranton and the Luzerne County district attorney to conduct a preliminary investigation.

"If there are sufficient facts reported to me indicating that an investigation is warranted, I most certainly will recommend to my committee that we visit Luzerne County and make an investigation."

The republican-controlled committee is now investigating charges of fraudulent voting in Philadelphia, a Democratic stronghold. It will resume its hearings in that city on Nov. 15.

Some 70,000 absentee ballots, or more, have been sent to servicemen and civilians by the state's 67 counties. Under a 1959 amendment to the state constitution, Pennsylvania civilians have absentee ballot privileges for the first time.

Protestants Raise Voices Against Religious Bias

NEW YORK (AP) — New Protestant voices were raised Sunday urging Americans not to let religious considerations govern their votes in the presidential election.

The Rev. Dr. Daniel A. Poling, who previously had questioned the religious views of the Democratic candidate, Sen. John F. Kennedy, a Roman Catholic, said in a sermon at Marble Collegiate Church: "The American people are fortunate in that both presidential candidates, who are Christian in faith, have a generous regard for the religious beliefs of all their fellow Americans."

Dr. Poling, editor of the Christian Herald, said religion has become an issue in the campaign, but "it is not the only issue, nor do I believe that the election should be decided on this issue."

It should turn, instead, he said, "on those imperative matters, national and international, that threaten the very existence of American freedom, the peace and security of all mankind."

The Rev. Dr. Dana McLean Greeley, president of the American Unitarian Association, in a sermon at All Souls Unitarian church, urged listeners to "live up to your traditional beliefs in reason and tolerance.

"Unreasoning fear, anxiety and anger have been expressed in support of and to defame John F. Kennedy because he is an American Roman Catholic.

"There seems little doubt that there will be people who vote for the senator next week because of his religion. It is equally probable that there will be those who vote against him because of his religion. Both groups would be tragically mistaken."

Priests Warn Catholics Against Voting For Marin

SAN JUAN, Puerto Rico (AP) — Roman Catholic priests reminded their parishioners Sunday that the church views a vote for Gov. Luis Muñoz Marin and his Popular Democratic party as a sin.

No new pastoral letter was read in the churches of this island commonwealth on this last Sunday before Tuesday's elections.

For the last two Sundays priests had read letters signed by the island's three bishops forbidding Catholics to vote for Munoz Marin's party under pain of a sin of disobedience.

The governor told a rally Saturday night the bishops had insulted the Puerto Rican people and the bishops therefore had the responsibility "to right the wrong." He declared, "The wrong will be righted at the polls Tuesday."

The bishops accused Munoz Marin's party of following an anti-Christian policy due to the ruling Popular Democrats' failure to oppose birth control and their toleration of common law marriages.

Munoz Marin, himself a Catholic, is opposed by the Republicans, who advocate statehood; the Independence party, and the Christian Action party, which has the support of the bishops in this predominantly Catholic U.S. commonwealth.

Year-Round Plan For Colleges

HARRISBURG (AP) — Pennsylvania's 14 state colleges can introduce a year-round school term if they choose to do so beginning next September.

The State Public Instruction Department said Shippensburg already has decided to go ahead with the new schedule and four other colleges are considering it.

The new plan was approved by the State College Board of Presidents, Superintendent Charles H. Boehm said Saturday. the idea was proposed by Dr. Ralph Heiges, Shippensburg president, for the benefit of students who want to accelerate their studies.

The decision whether to put the new program into effect was left to the colleges.

Four Quarters

Under the new system, the school year would be divided into four quarters of about 12 weeks each. Short vacations would separate each term.

Attendance at the summer quarter would be voluntary.

The change would allow a student attending consecutive quarters to graduate in three years.

Fees would remain about the same, the department reported, except there would be an additional fee covering the summer term.

Boehm said the plan would 'encourage accleration and the greater utiliziation of college facilities, which in turn will permit higher enrollments at a time when the demand for admission to college is mounting."

One Trimester

Thirteen of the state colleges now operate on the traditional two-semester plan. The 14th, California, put a trimester plan into effect in 1959.

In the four-quarter system, the terms would end in November, February, May and August. Students would enroll for three or four courses a term instead of the normal five courses. Class periods would be extended from an hour to 75 minutes.

Eagles, Baltimore Move Into Division Top Spots

THE champion Baltimore Colts moved back into first place in the Western Division of the National Football League Sunday with a 38-24 victory over the Green Bay Packers.

The Philadelphia Eagles edged into the undisputed lead in the Eastern Division by downing the Pittsburgh Steelers 34-7 as the Cleveland Browns bowed to the New York Giants 17-13.

In the American Football League the Houston Oilers swarmed over Denver 45-25 to retain their Eastern Division lead. Dallas got back into contention for the Western Division crown by defeating the Buffalo Bills 45-28.

Oilers Win

In the American Football League the Houston Oilers swarmed over Denver 45-25 to retain their Eastern Division lead. Dallas got back into contention for the Western Division crown by defeating the Buffalo Bills 45-28.

In other Natonal League games, the St. Louis Cardinals swamped the Washington Redskins 44-7, the Los Angeles Rams downed Dallas 38-13 and the Detroit Lions blanked the San Francisco 49ers 24-0.

It virtually was a "must" game for the Colts as they won their fifth game in seven starts while the Packers lost their second in six starts. The victory was achieved through the throwing arm of Johnny Unitas, who tossed four touchdown passes, the third breaking a 24-24 tie. Paul Hornung, the NFL's leading scorer, added two more touchdowns to his total for Green Bay, booted a field goal and kicked three extra points.

Big Crowd

A crowd of 58,324, the largest Philadelphia pro gathering in 10 years, saw quarterback Norm Van Brocklin pitch the Eagles to victory as his teammates mothered the Steelers' Bobby Layne and his receivers. Three of Van Brocklin's tosses went to Tommy McDonald for touchdowns, and in all he completed 19 of 30 for 295 yards.

The Browns, who had been tied for the Eastern Division lead with the Eagles, dropped to third place as 39-year-old Chuck Conerly piloted the Giants to victory. The Giant defense limited the Brown's vaunted rushing attack to a net gain of six yards. It was New York's sixth straight victory over Cleveland.

The San Francisco shutout was the first suffered by the 49ers since 1955, and the victory was only the second of the season for Detroit. Two touchdowns in the final two minutes made the Lions' margin the more convincing. The Lions now have a 2-4 league record in the Western Division and the 49ers 3-4.

Quick Lead

Frank Ryan passed the Rams to a quick lead over the Dallas Cowboys as Dallas suffered its seventh straight setback. Ryan threw 61 yards to Jim Phillips for the first score, then hit Phillips with a 58-yarder to set up the second score. He then hit Phillips again for five yards and the next touchdown.

The Cardinals rolled to their third straight victory and fourth of the season in smothering the hapless Redskins. Johnny Roach passed to Sonny Randle for three touchdowns and John Crow ran for two.

The Chicago Bears, with a record of 3-2-1, were idle.

George Blanda threw four touchdown passes in the Houston victory over Denver in the AFL, and personally accounted for nine points to run his season total to 84, tops in the league.

Dallas brought its record to 4-4 in the Western Division by its success over Buffalo, whose usually stout defensive unit yielded three touchdowns in the third quarter.

Local Clubs With DVL Pin Tests

CROWES' blanked Oakwood Lanes 4-0 at Colonial Lanes and Twin City TV scored a 3-1 win over Pasch Refrigeration at Easton Saturday in the Delaware Valley Bowling League.

Jake Nittel tossed the top three for Crowe, a 617, with a high single of 218. Ted Hoffman, however, had the best single of the night, a 224.

Kist Praises Fellman For Role In Port Jervis Win

THE CAVALIERS of East Stroudsburg High School knew that Jack Fellman had won Saturday's game at Port Jervis and they showed their appreciation by carrying him off the field on their shoulders.

Fellman scored two touchdowns and passed for another in the 27-19 win. He ran for an extra point, intercepted two passes and made half a dozen tackles. He gained 80 yards on 18 carries.

"It was the best he has ever played since I've had him, says Cavalier coach Jack Kist.

If Fellman and company were hampered by the loss of their fullback Harold (Mach 2) Myers, they didn't show it. Myers had a rib cracked in last week's loss to Hellertown.

The Cavaliers spotted Port a 7-0 lead and a 13-6 advantage, before knotting the count in the second period.

The second half was all East Stroudsburg, with Port's final score coming on a 40-yard pass from Bill Morgan to T. A. Mackey in the closing seconds of the game.

Ankle Twisted

Fellman played almost the entire game, despite a twisted ankle that forced him out of the game for several plays in the first half.

But the senior quarterback limped for a seven-yard touchdown on a belly series play in the third period, to put East Stroudsburg ahead in the game for the first time, 20-13.

The Cavaliers used the belly series almost exclusively, with Fellman, either handing off to fullback Jim Harmon or keeping and going off tackle.

Harmon gained 48 yards in 13 tries. The halfbacks, Brian Farris and Jim Steele, also got a workout. Farris gained 60 yards in 14 carries and Steele added 41 yards in eight attempts.

Dominate Statistics

Kist's Cavaliers completely dominated the statistics, as they gained their fifth win against three losses.

East Stroudsburg picked up 20 first downs, 225-yards rushing and did not have to punt. Port gained only 53 yards against the Cavaliers but flashed a good pass offense that collected 121 yards on six completions.

"Our line looked good for a change," said Kist. "We saw our kids' heads popping across the line much quicker than they have in the past."

Kist had not been satisfied with the charge of his line in earlier games.

Port's Jack Hinkley put his team in front 6-0 early in the game, when he capped a Port drive with a one yard scoring run. The conversion run was good and it was 7-0.

Ties Score

Fellman scored late in the period on a two yarder and after Port went ahead again, flipped a 17-yard screen pass to Steele to pull the Cavaliers into a tie 13-13 at the half.

Fellman broke off tackle on a belly set-up for seven yards and six points in the third period and Steele capped the Cavalier scoring in the final period with a 40-yard run with an intercepted pass.

There is a chance that Myers may play Saturday against Nazareth, an upset winner over Northampton Saturday. Myers did some running Saturday morning and said he felt no pain.

Myers' doctor said he could play as soon as there was no pain connected with his breathing.

Lead State In Scoring

Warriors Snap Jinxes In 28-0 Dragon Win

By CURT PRINS
Daily Record Sports Editor

IT took East Stroudsburg State College only about 90 minutes Saturday to do what other Warrior teams needed 13 years to accomplish—score 15 points on a Cortland team.

It was a day for snapping jinxes for the Warriors, who blanked Cortland 28-0. The score was only three degrees below the temperature at game time on the southern New York field.

Since 1946 the Warriors had been able to score only 15 points at Cortland over a 13 year stretch and had not beaten the Dragons on their field since '46. The last home win for East Stroudsburg against Cortland was in 1951, when Jack Gregory, the Warrior coach, was a guard at Normal Hill.

Four Play Score

It took the Warriors only four plays to score their first touchdown but the rest of the first half to preserve it.

Four times in the first half East Stroudsburg, as a result of fumbles and poor punting, had to hold Cortland inside the 15-yard stripe, once on the two-yard line. Cortland managed to check the Warriors twice inside the 10.

Cortland never crossed midfield on a drive from its own territory and in the second half spent 30 minutes on its side of the 50.

The cold weather hurt both teams and the gate receipts. There were 13 fumbles in the game, one for every 23 customers.

Cortland bobbled the ball seven times and East Stroudsburg six, with each team recovering two of its own fumbles. Three of the Warrior fumbles were charged to freshman halfback Toby Barkman, who gained 64 yards in 10 cracks at the line.

Halfback Bill Race was the leading ground gainer, with 117 yards in 21 carries. And freshman halfback Henry Mowery, who played only in the second half, gained 90 yards on nine tries. Fullback Joe Heverin carried five times but added 39 yards to the 305 yard total the Warriors picked up on the ground.

It was the second "400" game of the year for East Stroudsburg. The Hillers hit on 10 of 17 passes for 100 yards and a 405 yard total offensive mark. Against Kutztown early in the season East Stroudsburg gained 445 yards in total offensive.

And the win, the third shutout of the year and the ninth in the last 17 games, puts East Stroudsburg only one victory away from the school record for the most victories in one season. The 1940 and '42 teams each had seven wins. The Warriers close their season next week at Indiana, which lost 19-0 to Geneva Saturday.

Lead State

The 28 points scored by East Stroudsburg, moves it into first place in scoring in Pennsylvania with 258 points. West Chester held a four point lead over the Warriors before the game but the Rams were idle this weekend.

Cortland managed only 59 yards on the ground against the "Stingy Seven" and gained only 20 yards in the last half.

Ed (Road Block) Becker, playing perhaps his best game of the year and center Dick Wolslayer accounted for 18 of the first 25 tackles in the game but then the rest of the Warriors, particularly Bruce Thomas, Harry Powlus and Sterling Brown, started breaking through Cortland's "weight wall."

The Dragon line, headed by 286 pound guard Bill Perry, outweighed the Warrior front men by 17 pounds per man.

Top Mark

It was the first time that any team had scored more than 21 points against Cortland this year and only the second time in two years. Buffalo University, a major college, beat the Dragons 68-2 last year.

Walt Snyder returned the opening kickoff 56 yards, to the Dragon 34 to set-up the first score. Barkman and Race added 26 yards in three cracks and Race scored from the eight on the

SU Broke One-Touchdown Slump But Slaters Win 58-18

STROUD UNION High School broke out of its one touchdown slump Saturday but Slatington pushed across nine six-pointers, for a 58-18 win on their home field.

It was the first time this season that the Mountaineers had scored more than seven points in one game but it was also their worst defensive showing.

The Mounties did not score until the Slaters had a 46-0 lead. A 67-yard screen pass from quarterback John Baylor to fullback Tom Schatzman, put the West Main Streeters on the scoreboard and Baylor, who started in place of the injured Warren Loney, went over from the two on a sneak for the second score. Roy Deiter blocked a Slater punt near the end of the game and Freddy Frantz scooped up the ball and raced 33 yards for a score.

Keep Pace

But Slatington was able to score two TDs in the final frame to keep the Mounties well of the pace.

Only 18 players were in uniform for the Mounties. Loney injured his shoulder in a practice session Friday and center Dave Shay had to take part in a wedding. The Mounties came through the game without any injuries.

Stroud Union gained only 36 yards on the ground but connected on five passes for 100. The Mounties collected seven first downs, while Slatington picked up 21 first downs and 338 yards rushing. The Slaters attempted only three passes and completed one for four yards.

Bjorn was impressed with the running of Schatzman and freshman halfback Glen Bisbing.

It was the seventh straight loss for the winless Mounties, who have given up 267 points.

Greentown Boys & Horse In Harrisburg Show This Week

GREENTOWN— Michael Smith and his horse, "Patches" have won the right to represent Wayne County at the Pennsylvania State 4-H Horse Show in Harrisburg Friday.

He is believed to be the first youth eligible to participate in the show from the county.

Mike, who is 14, placed first in the Wayne County 4-H Horse and Pony Show at Honesdale, and repeated the performance at the District Show at Waverly. This made him eligible to compete in the State meet.

He has also competed—and won — in the Greene-Dreher-Sterling Community Fair First Annual Horse Show; the Hill Meadow Horse Show in Stroudsburg; and in Wayne County Fair Horse Show. He has won altogether, a first, three seconds, two thirds, one each fourth and fifth place.

In Harrisburg, he will enter the Trail Class.

The son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Smith, Mike and his horse met on Christmas Day two years ago and have been fast friends ever since. Mike is a freshman student at Southern Wayne Joint School, Newfoundland, where he has been a member of the student council.

Mike's first experience in show competition was this past summer.

Palmerton Wins 14-6

Bangor Scored First But Couldn't Make It Stick

By ARMON WILLIAMS

Bangor High's Slaters ran into tough opposition Saturday afternoon and came off second best when they dropped their second game in a row, after winning six straight, to a hard driving Palmerton High eleven on the winners' field, 14-6.

Taking an early lead when Phil Falcone, the Slater fullback intercepted a Palmerton pass on the first play from scrimmage in the game and racing 37 yards to score for the Slaters, the Maroons failed to carry the distance after that point. The try for the extra point following the scamper was blocked.

Bangor had one touchdown called back in the second quarter when Bob Dawe attempting a hand off to Falcone, saw the way was blocked, spun to the outside and ran 80 yards to score. The officials, however, ruled that the play had been stopped at the line of scrimmage.

Bangor on Top

The first half was all Slaters, as they continued to pound out yardage goalward only to be stopped at the Palmerton 14 and 11 yard lines by hard snubby nosed defensive charges of the Palmerton line. Twice it looked as if the Slaters would turn the game into a rout.

But the tide turned late in the second quarter with minutes to play, the Slaters were forced to punt. A bad pass from center, and Falcone's subsquent punt attempt was blocked by the Blue Bombers on the Slater seven yard line.

From this point with Joe Carazo, Steve Kun and Luke Sebo pounding, they scored on fourth down with Kun going the final yard up the Slater middle.

Bill Heydt added the extra point via placement and the Bombers lead 7 to 6 at half time.

Start Drive

Bangor took the second half kickoff and started moving with first downs on the Bangor 37, 47, Palmerton 35 and just missing another on the Bomber 26, after grounding two passes.

Farrell Addresses Little Leaguers

SOME 300 persons attended the fourth annual banquet of the Bangor Little League held Saturday evening in the Blue Valley Farm Show Building and heard Dick Farrell, relief pitcher of the Philadelphia Phillies recount his baseball experiences.

"Only the best get to the top, but play for the fun of playing, play to win and play for the wonderful kind of people that you find in the world of sports," he said.

Armon M. Williams, a member of the Bangor Area Joint High School faculty, acted as the master of ceremonies and paid tribute to the great success of the league and the tournament team representing the league that won the 20th district championship.

fourth play of the game. The extra point run failed. Under NCAA rules, two points are awarded for a run or pass conversion and one for placement.

For almost the rest of the half, East Stroudsburg was on defense. It had only 22 more offensive changes in the first half.

Cortland missed four scoring chances in the half and it was 6-0 at intermission.

Two Stalls

East Stroudsburg drove to the Dragon two early in the third frame but Mowery was stopped for no gain on fourth down, minutes later another drive was stalled on the Cortland seven.

But Cortland could move the ball only five yards and was forced to punt. The kick traveled only six yards and the Hillers were in business again on the Dragon 18.

Race carried twice to the six and Mowery went over for the score. A Bill Lewis to Becker pass for the conversion made it 14-0.

Becker was on the end of an 11-yard scoring toss from Lewis in the fourth period. The Little All-American End candidate out-maneuvered the Dragon secondary and plucked Lewis' perfect pass out of the air with one hand. The extra-point run failed.

With less than 30 seconds left in the game freshman fullback Jan Beliveau bolted over from the two and Walt Snyder passed to Ken Hendricks, for the conversion, to close the scoring.

Hill Booters Blank Millers 5-0 For Fourth Straight

EAST STROUDSBURG State College's soccer team, prepping for its closing game with unbeaten Elizabethtown, Friday, blanked Millersville 5-0 at Normal Hill Saturday.

Millersville missed an opportunity to score in the first period, when Bob Hower failed on a penalty kick.

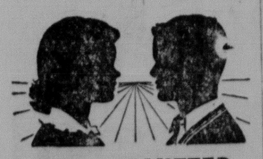
HOW CAN WE LEAD IF THEY'RE



NOT PERMITTED TO LEARN

In knowledge there is truth and power. But to have knowledge you must have education.

Today, many of our colleges and universities are already crowded. And in just ten years, college applications are expected to double.

If America is to continue as the vanguard for freedom, our colleges and universities must continue to grow.

You can help. But you must help now! Give generously! Help the college of your choice expand its facilities and pay adequate salaries to its instructors!

The leaders of tomorrow must be educated today.

Learn more about our current college crisis. Write for your free booklet, "OPEN WIDE THE COLLEGE DOOR," Box 36, Times Square Station, New York 36, N.Y.

Published as a public service in cooperation with The Advertising Council and the Newspaper Advertising Executives Association.

Something to think about BEFORE YOU VOTE!

(1) One of the greatest things at stake in the coming election is the well being and the financial condition of our country and how to keep it strong. Your own vote should be cast on the basis of what's good for the United States of America!

(2) The Republican Party and the Democratic Party are far apart on how best to conduct the country's business. On the one hand the Republicans stand for sound money and a balanced budget, consenting to deficit spending only in time of war or other great emergencies. On the other hand the Democrats stand for more spending, more dollars of less value.

(3) Clearly, therefore, your decision and your vote will help this country and yourself and family most if it is cast for the party of sound money and balanced budgets—and that party is the Republican Party.

(4) A candidate for the presidency of the United States, to be seriously considered, must be a man of mature judgment—a statesman—a man of sterling character—whose every act will be predicated on what's best for our country. He cannot wear the label of any one group at the expense of other great segments of the people and he must not deal for votes. Senator Kennedy has dealt for votes. He has callously made public statements downgrading the United States. He has advocated fiscal and economic policies that would, if adopted, break the treasury of the United States. He stands ready, if elected, to spend and spend and spend gigantic sums of money that must come from only one source—you the taxpayer and voter. But he has not told you this; he prefers to let you think the money is sitting idle in a vault somewhere awaiting his orders to spend at no cost to you. If he were talking about his own money we could offer a fervent amen—but up to now he has used only his vocal chords, not his money.

(5) Senator Kennedy has recklessly announced we should intervene with force of arms in Cuba. His regard for our signed agreement with the Organization of American States is low indeed. Mr. Mario G. Remo, until a few weeks ago a Democratic finance chairman, quit Sen. Kennedy and announced his support of Vice President Nixon and Mr. Lodge. Mr. Remo said if Sen. Kennedy is elected he will have us in a war within two years. Mr. James F. Byrnes, a former Democratic Secretary of State, said the presidency of the United States is no place for an immature or impetuous man. Sen. Kennedy has proved himself both immature and impetuous.

(6) Sen. Kennedy has promised to tinker and meddle with the Federal Reserve System, thereby making it a political pawn. Under President Eisenhower the Federal Reserve System is beyond politics, is managed by boards of skillful governors whose only job is to keep enough money in circulation in proper relation to our supply of gold. Under this skillful management the American Dollar has become the standard of the whole world. Vice President Nixon and Mr. Lodge promise to keep it that way.

(7) Sen. Kennedy's promise to meddle with our money system, to obligate us to spend huge sums of money overseas beyond our ability to pay out of income, has already aroused fears in the minds of European governments to such an extent that they want their pay in gold—not our dollar. The dollar is convertible into gold but if our credit is good those who do business with us will take our dollar; they ask for gold when they begin to lose faith. During this campaign Sen. Kennedy's rash statements have caused hundreds of millions of dollars worth of gold to leave us for a safer refuge overseas.

(8) The great issue in the United States today is sound money versus inflation. Inflation shrinks the value of the dollar, so much so it hurts us in the price of everything we buy, in the wages and salaries we receive for work performed, in the cost of buying a home or maintaining it if we already have one. It hurts us in employment for inflation in money inflates selling prices also and some nations as well as private citizens can no longer buy the products our factories produce — hence unemployment.

(9) Without a sound dollar and a sound economy we will be unable to deal effectively with our enemies, and our friends will not be able to depend upon us. World confidence in the United States is absolutely necessary if the free world is to remain free. The United States must not be downgraded as Sen. Kennedy is doing day in and day out. The record shows that Vice President Nixon and Mr. Lodge have, over the years, successfully kept our standing and prestige high in the eyes of the world. Let's keep it that way! Vote for Nixon and Lodge and you can have it—also support their whole team of Republicans and get Sound Money, Sound Economy, and Great Military Strength.

MR. CANDIDATE by Patrick and Vinmont

RICHARD MILHOUS NIXON

Born at Yorba Linda, California, January 9, 1913. He was graduated from Whittier College in 1934 and Duke University law school in 1937. He practiced law in Whittier, California, for five years and after serving as attorney in the Office of Emergency Management in Washington, D. C., he entered the U. S. Navy in 1942. Commissioned a lieutenant, junior grade, he was a lieutenant commander when discharged in 1946. He served as an elected Republican member of the United States House of Representatives, 1946-50, and as United States Senator from 1951 to 1953. In 1952 he was nominated Vice President of the United States and with Dwight D. Eisenhower was decisively elected. He was renominated and elected again in 1956.

As a congressman, he helped draft the Taft-Hartley act, and as a member of the House Committee on Un-American Activities gained national attention for his role in the investigation of a former State Department official. As Vice President, he has presided over the Cabinet and National Security Council meetings in the President's absence. He has been the leading spokesman for the Eisenhower administration and the President's good-will ambassador to the Middle and Far East in 1953, the Caribbean area in 1955, South Asia in 1956, and South America in 1958.

His activities mark a drastic change in the complexion of the office of Vice President and have shattered the old theory that the Vice President's job is the turnpike to oblivion. Recognition of his apprenticeship as being well spent was shown at the Republican National Convention by nomination on the first ballot as the Republican nominee for President.

Should he win in the November election, he would be the first Vice President in 124 years to be elected Chief Executive of the United States.

HENRY CABOT LODGE

Born in Beverly, Massachusetts, July 5, 1902. He was graduated from Harvard in 1924. After eight years as a reporter and editorial writer on Boston and New York newspapers, he entered politics as an elected member of the Massachusetts Legislature. Elected a member of the United States Senate in 1936, he served 14 years, taking time off after being re-elected in 1942 to serve in European and North African battle areas during World War II. He rose to the rank of lieutenant colonel in the Army. He was the first United States Senator from the time of the Civil War to leave the Senate for military service. He resigned his elective seat in 1944 because of a Presidential ruling barring members of Congress from war service. He was elected to the Senate again in 1946. Defeated for re-election in 1952, he was appointed chief United States delegate to the United Nations in 1953 with the diplomatic rank of ambassador.

Standing firm in his belief that the United Nations is one of the great diplomatic facts of the world, he has in the eight years as the chief spokesman for the United States effectively counterattacked Communist propaganda. His hard-hitting tactics in debate and his proven ability to negotiate with the Communists have made him known to millions of Americans as the man who talks back to the Russians. He is a recognized authority on international issues.

At the Republican National Convention, he was unanimously nominated the Republican candidate for Vice President of the United States.

MRS. RICHARD M. NIXON

Patricia Ryan was born in Ely, Nevada, March 16, 1912. Always called Pat by her father, she dropped her christened name, Thelma Catherine, and took the name of Patricia. In 1913, the family moved to a truck farm near Artesia, California. Pat was 11 when her mother died, and she worked as housekeeper for her father and brothers. When she was 16, her father died. Eager and determined to gain a college education, she attended Fullerton Junior College for one year, earning her way by doing part-time work in a bank in Artesia.

A chance opportunity took her to New York where she worked as a secretary and laboratory assistant until her savings were sufficient to enable her to enter college. While a student at the University of Southern California, she earned her way working in the cafeteria, the college library and as a part-time salesgirl. She was graduated with high honors. As a teacher in Whittier Union High School, she met lawyer Richard Nixon. Three years later, in 1940, she became his wife. They have two daughters, aged 14 and 12.

Since 1946, when her husband entered politics, she has worked tirelessly in his campaigns, showing the same determination to succeed that is reflected in her early life. During the past eight years, she has traveled with her husband on his good-will missions to foreign countries, always exhibiting the qualities of a great lady.

Should Vice President Nixon be elected President, charming, accomplished and capable Patricia would be a popular First Lady in the White House.

Fighting Losing Battle

Dear Abby : For 11 years I have been married to a man who has had me running in a contest with his mother. No matter what I do, his mother could have done it better, faster and cheaper. It's true, his mother is a very able woman, but in my own way I do all right, too. If he eats something at her house that he likes, I try to make it for him at home, but it never comes out like hers. (Maybe I try too hard?) His mother knits things for him, so I learned to knit, but he never wears my things—only hers, I really like his mother, but she makes everything so difficult for me because she is such an expert. Am I childish for feeling hurt and how can I overcome it?

NO MATCH FOR MAMMA

Dear No: Don't try to compete with your husband's mother. She is at least 20 years ahead of you, and always will be. Use a little originality, and quit knocking yourself out trying to top someone who became tops through years of practice and experience.

Dear Abby: Bill (not his real name) and I are very much in love, but we are not old enough to get married without our parents' consent. We thought if we HAD to get married they would sign for us, so we went ahead and followed that plan. Now it turns out that our parents refuse to sign for us. Bill is on probation and we were told the authorities would force him to marry me after getting me in this condition, but we discovered that wasn't true, either. Can you help us, Abby? I am 15 and Bill is 14. I want to keep my baby, but everybody is against it.

IN TROUBLE

Dear In Trouble: Better do as your parents advise, Kids; otherwise, with this start, you could be in trouble the rest of your lives — and you both have a long way to go!

Dear Abby: I have been reading a lot lately about people who have "willed" their eyes to a blind person. I am over 21 and would like to do this. How do I go about it, please?

JAY L.

Dear Jay: Get in touch with an International Lions Club or the Medical School in your area for full particulars.

Dear Abby: Maybe you can help us barbers. Why do women wait until Saturday to bring their kids in for haircuts? These women have all day. Why can't they bring them in after school? When working men come into the barber shop on Saturday, it is always full of kids.

Also, we barbers would rather have fathers bring in their kids than the mothers. The women stand around the chair and tell the barber how to cut hair. I wish the days would come back when no respectable woman would be seen in a barber shop.

BARBER

If you want a personal reply from Abby, write to her in care of this paper and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. She answers all letters.

Nothing short of our own errors should offend us.
